Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, here we go with a brand new year and a "Number 1" showing up in the corner again. And it sure is nice to have spring with us already. Think I'll get the glove out and start oiling it up.

Say, when these dairymen finally decide it's time for a new car, they REALLY decide.

Have you noticed the Kline's cruising around in their hardtop Lincoln??

"Now, Ted, it's not a new one," I can hear Morrie saying to pass the affair off. No, it isn't. But we hear that when you push one of the buttons, the glove compartment opens and out comes a glass of homogenized milk!

Virgil Smith was explaining some of the finer points of marriage to Melvin one day thusly, "Cooperation is the foundation of a successful marriage. You must do things together. For instance, if your wife wants to go for a walk, go for a walk with her. If she wants to go to the movies, go to the movies with her. If she wants to do the dishes, do the dishes with her."

Melvin listened dutifully and then asked, "Suppose she wants to mop the floor?"

Fox Hunt Saturday

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club will sponsor a Fox Hunt this coming Saturday, January 8, according to an announcement by Jerry Haver.

It is planned to start the hunt at 9:00 a.m. sharp and hunters are urged to be at the club grounds ready for action at that hour.

Shot guns will be allowed but no rifles.

Local Students Enrolled At Purdue

Thirty students from DeKalb County are enrolled in classes on the campus at Purdue University for the current semester of the 1954-55 academic year, acocrding to classification of students by counties made recently by the Tabulating Division for the Office of the Registrar.

Lions, Legion Re-establsh Boy Scouts

The St. Joe - Spencerville Lions Club and the Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post 283 of St. Joe are cooperating in a joint move to reestablish Boy Scout Troops in both the St. Joe and Spencerville communities.

With financial asistance given through the will of the late Dr. C. R. Price, the troop committees have proceeded with the organization and the St. Joe Troop held its first meeting on Monday evening at the Legion Home in St. Joe.

Joe Walter is serving as chairman of the troop committee with the following men also serving:

Walter Ervin, finance chairman.

Clayton A. Baker, quartermaster.

Teo Haberkorn, secretary.

Roy Reidenbach, assistant secretary.

Bud Shockley has taken the task of serving as scoutmaster for the St. Joe Troop with Joe Yaste as assistant scoutmaster and Joe Robinson as explorer advisor.

The scoutmaster of the Spencerville Troop is Rev. Wayne Baxter with Bill Hudson serving as assistant.

Seventeen boys were present Monday evening at the first meeting in St. Joe. Meetings will be held each Monday evening from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Legion Home.

Dale Collins, Ralph Sechler and Frank Sechler are serving the local troop in capacities as supervisors.

Thieves Take Clover Seed

The mild rainy weather evidently has someone thinking of "plantin' time" already as DeWayne Baker of northwest of St. Joe reported the theft of $200 worth of clover seed this week.

More than five bushels of the valuable seed was taken from the Baker garage sometime Sunday. The family visited from about 10:30 a.m. Sunday until 6:30 p.m. They were on a trip to Muncie.

The seed was in sacks, Mr. Baker told investigating officers.

St. Joe Wins; Face Waterloo In Tourney

In a New Years Day game at Pleasant Lake Saturday evening the St. Joe Comets added to their victory column with a 52-47 win over Pleasant Lake.

The prelim was also won by St. Joe by a score of 38-24.

The next competition for the Comets will come in the county tourney to be held at Waterloo Friday and Saturday of this week.

Waterloo and St. Joe will meet in the first game Friday night while Ashley and Butler take the floor for the second contest.

March of Dimes In Progress

The March of Dimes annual campaign for DeKalb County has been launched. The polio drive will extend through the month of January according to county chairman Dorothy Shugart of Auburn.

March of Dimes funds lend a hand to all new and old poliomyelitis patients. The money is used to save and mend lives. Even if vaccines are successful, polio will strike and cripple many in 1955.

Other members of the county organization are Helen Johnson of Auburn, secretary; Lloyd Hoodelmier of Auburn, treasurer; and reporter, Jean Jackson.

Chairmen for the various communities in the county are as follows:

St. Joe—Ben Simpson and Edna Amstutz.

Spencerville — Howard Hill, Lois Fisher and Charlotte Hudson.

Auburn—Dr. M. R. Greuter.

Auburn schools—Carol Dawson.

DeKalb County schools—Virgil Hagerty.

Garrett—Mrs. G. L. Staley.

Butler—Dr. Darrell Miller.

Waterloo—Charles Overmeyer.

Ashley—Fred Frederick and Charles Schweitzer.

Adult Farm Classes Start Monday

Mr. William Sadler, vocational agriculture instructor of St. Joe High School, has announced the formation of an adult instruction class which will begin meeting next Monday evening at the school in St. Joe.

Mr. Sadler stated that all who are interested in farming are invited to attend these meetings.

The meeting will be held in the ag room starting at 8 p.m.

Grandson Of Cecil Shilling Dies

Donald D. Shilling, 8, of Garrett, grandson of Cecil Shilling of St. Joe, died Monday at the Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett of a circulatory failure.

Cause of the eight-year-old boy's death was unusual. He had developed a stomach ache Sunday afternoon after attending Sunday School in the morning and playing in the afternoon. Emergency surgery was performed Monday afternoon and it was discovered that the boy had an internal strangulated hernia in the small intestine. This is a rare occurrence in children. It was at first thought that the boy's life had been saved, but the operation was too much for him and he died of the circulatory failure at 4 p.m.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday and burial was in Union Cemetery, northwest of Garrett.

Survivors include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shilling; a sister, Linda; the paternal grandfather, Mr. Shilling; the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Sam Davis, of Fremont; and the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elza Howe, of near Garrett.

Conservation Meeting Next Thursday

The next meeting of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club will be its regular monthly get-together on Thursday evening, January 13, at the Knights of Pythias Hall in St. Joe.

The program will include a very interesting film shown by the State Conservation Department.

Club members and the public are urged and invited to attend.

Change In County Agent's Office

George F. Aker, who has been assistant county agent for DeKalb County for nearly three years, has been transferred to the county agent's office in Jay County.

Purdue University made the appointment effective January 1 of this year. His office is that of assistant county agent in Jay County at Portland.

Mr. Aker was appointed as assistant to Ernest J. Lesiuk in 1951. He graduated in 1950 from Purdue University School of Agriculture and attended Missouri University prior to his DeKalb County appointment.

No replacement has been named for the local county agent's office.

Meet The Faculty

Health, history, geography, physical education and driver training are among the classes taught this year in St. Joe High School by Mr. Richard Calbeck.

A native of Cromwell, Indiana, Mr. Calbeck attended school there and graduated from high school before beginning studies at Manchester College. He graduated from Manchester in 1951, majoring in physical education and social studies.

He taught first in the Spencerville High School and was basketball coach for the team.

RICHARD CALBECK

When the consolidation of Concord and Spencer townships was accomplished, Mr. Calbeck became assistant coach, a position which he yet holds in the Riverdale High School consolidation.

Mr. and Mrs. Calbeck live in Harlan where Mrs. Calbeck is employed as a teacher.

Ours A Nation of Principle

Our efforts today in world and national affairs are aimed at bringing about a peaceful solution to the conflicts that men create when they associate with one another, be it individually or collectively.

But whether or not the best procedure is being followed in reaching for the goal of peaceful understanding is a matter of conjecture and, indeed, a matter for deep consideration. For our country is looked to, respectfully and disrespectfully, in all that it does. To other peoples of the world, our country is somewhat of a daredevil, we surmise, because of its beginning as a refuge from oppression and, through the years of its infancy, because of its daring attempt to give to the best of its ability freedom to all its citizens to live, work and worship as they desire.

When speaking of "the best procedure" we are taking into consideration the failures of governments of the past to withstand the test of the years. In that consideration most of us are certain to remember from our school days an undercurrent thought which was planted in our minds—a thought which we also gain from the church as well as from school—that these failures in history have occurred because government became "militaristic."

It isn't necessary to go back into ancient history to find perfect examples of this militaristic government which is bound inevitably to falter. In addition to the tales of the past centuries, we have tales of this century to give even greater impetus to the thought, "Militarism leads to destruction."

Before we talk too long about "militarism," we perhaps should have some idea in mind of what that term means so that we can compare ourselves, for instance, with the militaristic nations of the past. It can be safely said that a "militaristic nation" is one which calls upon the preparation and maintenance of military force to provide safety and strength for itself. to borrow a few of the terms from our old Webster. There are also other elements which go along with this explanation, such as the fact that a militaristic nation minimizes the defects of war (injury, cost, death itself) and emphasizes the military virtues and ideals. Oh, it isn't necessary to go to the dictionary to get a technical explanation of the term. We are all aware of the general meaning of the word by its sound alone. It helps to have a concise description, however, in attempting to point out that these very things of which militarism is composed are the very things which these United States TODAY exalt and are the very things we now practice.

It doesn't take too much scrutiny of the papers today to find mention of the term "universal military training." If those words do not show a militaristic tendency in our national thinking, nothing does. How can we train ourselves and our children in terms of peace when we would provide for training for war? Where is the consistency needed for saying, "The United States is a peace loving country and will do all in its power to exist in harmony with its neighors." Yes, there will be cries of "what about the Communists" and "look what Russia is doing." What about their actions? Must we be imitators of the very thing we say we ahor? Must we participate in an arms race which finds our resources and manpower turning to production of anything but a peaceful existence?

In connection with the discussion these days of universal military training, what do we find immediately with regard to the service of our young men in the armed forces. If they are not called by selective service, they are given the enticements of a "career" in the service or of "learning a trade" in service or of getting "more education" through their service. What's happened to the thought that as members of a free nation, all owe service to his or her country in time of need? Is this a "time of need?" Well, some say yes. But on the basis of their reasons for calling the 1950's a time of need, we can practically describe the entire book of history of the United States as depicting a "time of need." We have become so accustomed to an emergency that is perpetuating itself that we cease to comprehend conditions which are indicative of the necessity to return to thoughts of peaceful existence.

What else is there that indicates our militaristic status? Take a look at the budget from year to year. Where does the biggest chunk of taxpayers' dollars go - for "defense." It would be far more accurate to say those billions are going for militarism. To those who say that we must be ready to defend ourselves, hence the large amount of spending, we say, defend ourselves against what? Haven't we spent billions in the past to give aid to other countries, expecting the almighty dollar to bring us the friendship and cooperation of those people to whom we hand out the dollars? And what do we seek their friendship and cooperation for? —For girding for war. Haven't we yet awakened to the fact that we are losing the respect of the world by our reliance upon those dollars to bring what only thought, word and deed will bring? How long will it be before we again become a nation of principle, believing in what we say we believe in, acting as we say we ought to act?

And again we rely upon the almighty dollar in our thinking when we "reward" servicemen with bonuses, when we give preference to them in education, in seeking employment, in obtaining financial assistance. Can we say that these actions are anything but indications of militarism, glorifying all that connects itself with war? Men do not enter military service today with any feeling of patriotism. They do not think of their service in terms of time of need. Rather, it is something that just is and must be done. There are going to be a few years after high school when they will be "out of action" as civilians. Those few years are the most valuable for they come at the time when normally young men are furthering their education or finding jobs to earn their living. Sure, they can get their education through military service while in military service, they can get education even after military service through their military service, they can get preferential treatment after their term of service in all phases of living through their military service. While we are thinking, "Well, what's wrong with that. Maybe they wouldn't have had the opportunity for their education if they hadn't received this assistance through their military service," let's also ask, "What became of this great land of opportunity in which they live, the land of opportunity which they were defending, ideally, while they served in military service? Is it as good as we say it is, then why do we need such an excuse to justify serving it?"

Militarism? You bet!

One thing which in the past set this country above all others is its belief in principle. Some may ask, "We MUST arm ourselves. Would you do nothing if you saw your neighbor loading a shot gun (an unfriendly neighbor at that)? Would you ignore his actions and just sit there waiting to be shot at?"

The answer is this.

If we are to exist as a nation of principle, we must adhere to principle. The moment we falter, we show a lack of faith in ourselves --- no, we show a lack of faith in God. For all our principles are based upon our Christian belief. We cannot be practitioners of expediency. What our neighbor does, even if he is a Communist loading his gun, does not warrant our loading our gun. For there will be others watching us to see if we fall from our pedestal of principle. When our neighbor starts shooting, then we begin defending.

Sounds foolish, doesn't it. It might take but one shot to finish us off. But even if it should, there would be someone to take our place. History is full of such fools who believed in and practiced their principles. Our country even gives them credit for making its existence possible. They faced death as a matter of principle. It's time our country faced the present with the same steadfastness.

Where You From??

Have you run into this yet? —Or something like it.

"I've been watching the papers to see how your school is doing in basketball but I haven't seen the scores yet. They never give the St. Joe scores."

" It isn't St. Joe. It's Riverdale."

End of episode.

There isn't any joke to it, nor anything that you could call a punch line. But it brings up a question - why lose the last method of recognition of our high school basketball team for who knows what reason?

When Concord and Spencer townships consolidated, to prevent injury to anyone's pride, we suppose, we didn't call the team "St. Joe" but "Concord-Spencer." There were just as many who did not recognize that name as there are now who do not recognize "Riverdale." In fact, just in the name itself, what is there to recognize? There are lots of rivers in Indiana and lots of dales, so as far as locating is concerned the name fails. Look at the other names of schools listed in the scores. With very, very few exceptions (ours is one), the name tells you geographically what team played. Go down the list - Pleasant Lake, Butler, Auburn, Garrett, Avilla, Churubusco, Fort Wayne North - and so on. Then we come to Riverdale. Riverdale??? Where's that? It's in St. Joe. Well, then, why don't they call it St. Joe?

Well, why don't we? There's no argument about the school corporation name. Riverdale suits us as well as any monicker. But when it comes to everyday talk about the ball team and such, it isn't necessary to be so technical about the matter. When someone wants to know your team, they are doing the same as asking, "Where are you from?"

We're from St. Joe!

In 1943 he was appointed DeKalb County assessor to complete the term of the late Charles Miser of Waterloo.

Mr. Likens was born May 17, 1872, in a log cabin six miles east of Auburn. He lived on the farm before moving to Auburn in 1920.

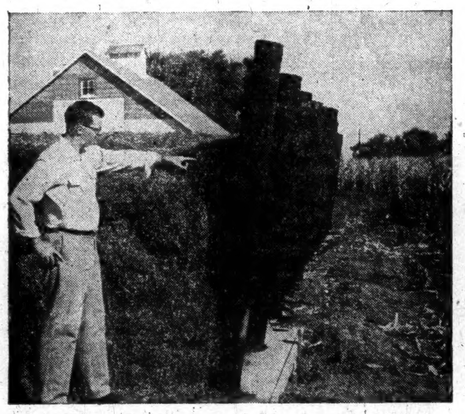
New Method For Constructing Silo



John Foley, agricultural engineer, Purdue University, is shown here pointing out the construction of the horizontal silo which can be adapted to any type farm.

There are a lot of farmers who have shied away from building a trench silo up until now because they didn't have a suitable location or the necessary slope. A Purdue University agricultural engineer recently came to the aid of these level land farmers by developing a modified trench silo that can be built within shouting distance of the farmstead.

The ground doesn't even require tearing up for this new surface silo, made entirely of wood and concrete. Extensionist John Foley calls his discovery a horizontal, pole-type silo. He says it will be a lifesaver for many farmers who considered a regular trench silo too difficult an operation for level land.

Two of the silo's most amazing features are its design and price. The two sided structure resembles a stockade of the early West more than anything else. It is made mostly of two by six inch tongue and groove slats for sides. Supporting the slats are creosoted poles, 10 feet long, embedded three feet deep in concrete. The silo floor is a concrete slab, poured six inches deep.

This durable silo can be built any length, any width, and a farmer can use native timber from his own woodlot for the sides. Cost for a 200-ton capacity silo is about $1,-100. That's about one-third the cost of an upright silo.

"Figure this horizontal silo at $6.00 to $7.00 a ton," says Foley. "Once built, it will last you for twenty years. At the end of that time, you can replace the sides for one-third the original cost, and the concrete floor, of course, will last much longer."

On hearing of the new silo, some farmers ask Foley how he figures his invention can hold up under pressure of tons of silage on the sides.

"It's no secret," says the young extension specialist. "We dig shallow trenches on each side of the proposed site, set 10-inch concrete field tile straight up and down in the trenches every four feet, and pour six inches of concrete around each. Once our form sets, we dig a hole beneath each tile, shave off the inside of each with a hand auger, and set our poles in the tile so they lean out at the same angle from the trench." Foley says the poles should have a minimum six-inch top diameter.

The first farmers who tried and successfully used Foley's silo in 1954 were among the first to ask this question, "What's the advantage of slanted sides"

Foley reasons this way, "If the poles were straight up and down, the silage would shrink away from the sides. Air would get into the silo and cause spoilage. This way, as the silage shrinks, it settles deeper into its slanted container, like a cork in a bottle, and prevents air from entering."

For those farmers who may want to try this silo, but aren't sure how big to make it, Foley offers this suggestion:

"Fix your width according to the number of cows you want to feed." In other words, most farmers should allow about six inches width for each cow or steer. To allow more than that invites spoilage.

This silo should be as long in feet as the number of feeding days anticipated. Most farmers are building these new silos so they can stack their forage from five to six feet high.

With more and more farmers hopping on the silage bandwagon for a cattle feeding program, it looks now like the horizontal silo may become a familiar sight on many Indiana farms.

THE SON OF GOD

Lesson for January 16, 1955

The churches composing the World Council have set up one theological condition for membership, and in spite of efforts to induce them to change, they have stuck to it. No church can be admitted that does not acknowledge Jesus Christ "as God and Savior." Now when Jesus is called God outright, the church is saying something the Bible rarely says. Furthermore, it can be confusing to say this. The church universal has never meant to say that Jesus is all the God there is, or that Jesus is identical with God. For God exists in three persons (as the church expresses it), and Christ is only one person. Christ is both God and man, but God is not man at all. And yet the church universal, and churches in particular, cling to the statement "Jesus is God," partly because they would rather make this mistake of saying too much than too little about Christ, and partly because this does express their real faith.

Equal With God

Laying all technical theology aside, and speaking as plainly as possible, things can be said about Christ, which the Bible teaches, and which the church believes, and which put together come out where the church stands—on the deity of Christ. First, Jesus himself called himself regularly the "Son of God," and even his enemies could see that that meant placing himself on an equality with God. Paul in the New Testament speaks of Christ as the "image of the invisible God;" Hebrews says he "bears the very stamp of God's nature." As was said here last week, Christ is our true picture of God, our best way of knowing what God is like. Now if Christ is "equal with God" we should expect the church to worship him—and so it does. Prayers are offered to him directly as well as to the Father in his name. The Doxology sings: "Praise Father, Son and Holy Ghost," and many other hymns and songs are actually prayers to Christ. ("Jesus Savior, Pilot Me;" "Rock of Ages;" "More Love To Thee, O Christ;" "Make Me a Captive, Lord;" Fairest Lord Jesus;"—and any reader can think of many more.)

The Mind of God

Second, Jesus himself spoke of his words as being not his own but those of the Father who sent him. This was a vivid way of saying that he knew what was in God's mind, he knew God's attitudes and intentions, how God felt and what he planned to do. Now it is true that there had been prophets who spoke by inspiration and who brought the Word of God to the people. But a famous living theologian has put the difference between the prophets and Jesus this way: The Word of God came THROUGH the prophets—but Jesus Christ WAS the Word. The prophets were at one remove from God, and in Christ there is not even "one remove" from the Highest. The Sermon on the Mount gives perhaps the most striking illustration of this. Often in that sermon you find the words, "Ye have heard that it was said" (and here Jesus quotes some passage from the Old Testament) "but I say unto you" (and here Jesus gives a teaching which may be radically different from the Old Testament). In short, Jesus setup his own teaching as actually above the accepted "Word of God." What greater claim—?

The Authority of Christ

The practical question is: How seriously do Christians take this doctrine of the Deity of Christ? Churches officially believe it; and yet church members act as if Jesus had never spoken, or as if his opinion were only one man's opinion, worth no more than the average. Christians might well remember Jesus' own question: "Why do you call me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" It is one thing to sing symns to Christ on Sundays, another and harder thing to follow his teachings on weekdays. The test of whether a person really believes in the deity of our Lord is not in what he says about it but in what he does about it. We might even risk this proposition: A person who shrinks back from saying "Jesus Is God" and yet believes that in any case Jesus is always RIGHT, comes nearer to truly accepting the deity of Christ. IRA REINHART

Rites were conducted Monday for Ira Reinhart, 77, a farmer residing a mile and three-quarters west of Butler.

Mr. Reinhart was a native of the Butler community and was a lifelong resident of DeKalb County. Death was due to arteriosclerosis following an illness of three weeks.

The Rev. Albert Swenson of Ohio, former pastor of the Newville EUB church, and the Rev. Carl Thompson, present pastor of the church, officiated at the services. Burial was in Riverview Cemetery at Newville.

Mr. Reinhart was born January 24, 1877, the son of the late Augustus Reinhart and Marguerite Deubener Reinhart. He had lived on his farm for the past 23 years.

Survivors include the widow, Estella Warstler Reinhart, and a brother, Almond Reinhart, of Butler. The couple had no children. They were married May 31, 1902, at Newville.

Tax Facts

The new punch-card Federal tax form for reporting 1954 income tax has been described by the district director of internal revenue as the simplest return developed by the Revenue Service during the forty-year history of the Federal income tax.

"This is one Federal tax return that can be filled in with the very minimum of trouble," Director Gary Campbell said. "Devised for the employee whose total wages reported on his withholding statement amounts to less than $5,000, and who does not have more than $100 of other income, the return requires no mathematical computations," he explained.

The new punch card return, officially designated Form 10-40A, is now available at all Internal Revenue offices, and can be also obtained at most banks, building associations and post offices. Besides the punch card, taxpayers who elect to use the simplified form are furnished an instruction sheet which carries facsimiles of both sides of the card. After the data has been assembled on the instruction sheet, the taxpayers copies it on the punch card, retaining the rough draft for his own records.

The front of the card bears the taxpayer's identification, the amount of income he has received, the amount withheld by his employer and dividend credits and sick pay allowances, if any. He also designates by check mark his marital status, and signs the card, which is his return. If it is a joint return, the signatures of both the husband and wife are required. On the back of the card the taxpayer shows his exemptions, including himself, his wife, children and other dependents, the extent of support, etc.

When the card return is completed, it should be mailed, with the taxpayer's withholding statement (Form W-2), to the District Director of Internal Revenue in the envelope which is provided for this purpose. From the information on the card, the Internal Revenue Service will figure the tax. If the taxpayer has overpaid, a refund check will be forwarded to him. If additional taxes are owed, he will receive a bill.

Director Campbell says that many wage and salary earners who this year will receive the regular 1040 forms by mail are eligible to use the simplified punch-card return which may easily be obtained, thus saving themselves the worry of determining their correct taxes. Persons using the card forms, he pointed out, must take the standard ten per cent allowance for deductible items, such as interest payments, medical expenses, charitable contributions, etc. In most cases, Director Campbell says, the ten per cent standard deduction is generous, and the taxpayer will be benefitted by taking it, rather than enumerating any deductible items to which he might be entitled.

Service personnel at the Auburn office of the Internal Revenue Department in the post office will be glad to answer questions about 1955 income tax returns for the year 1954. Personnel will be available on Mondays and Fridays from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. during the month of January. The schedule for the succeeding months will be announced at a later date. April 15 instead of March 15 is the new deadline under provisions of the law passed by the last Congress.

Under the new regulations this year it is the primary objective of the Internal Revenue personnel to render assistance or give advice where it is actually needed to clarify or explain points not understood rather than a gratuitous service to all taxpayers in the preparation of their returns. Gary Campbell, the district director of Internal Revenue, has indicated that in the course of rendering assistance some individual returns would be prepared. However, because of personnel and time limitations it would be necessary to curtail the actual preparation of returns. In other words, he said, the program is directed primarily toward those taxpayers who require assistance in the form of advice as distinguished from an invitation to all taxpayers to come in and have their returns prepared by Service personnel.

In addition to gaining personal service by visiting one of the offices located in this district, Mr. Campbell stated that many taxpayers can save themselves and the Service considerable time and effort by availing themselves of telephone service. Previous experience has shown that many of the questions can readily be answered in a telephone conversation. Such a practice, of course, saves time and effort, both for the taxpayer and the Service personnel.

Assistance from the Auburn office can be had by calling 690 during the regular working hours on Mondays and Fridays.

Taxpayers whose property was wholly or partially destroyed by tornadoes or other storms during 1954 are entitled to deduct losses on their Federal income tax returns for 1954, according to information released by Gary Campbell, district director of internal revenue at Indianapolis.

Director Campbell reminded these taxpayers that unless these deductions are taken on the return for 1954, the taxpayer will lose the benefit of them.

The deduction applies to storm losses sustained on non-business property, such as a residence, as well as on business property.

In the case of non-business property, the amount of the loss is not the cost of replacement or restoration, but is the diference between the value of the property immediately before the storm and its value immediately afterwards not to exceed the cost or other basis of the property destroyed. Such losses must be reduced by the amount of insurance or other compensation received on account of the damage. Losses on acocunt of destruction of non-business property are deductible only if the taxpayer itemizes his deductionns. They cannot be deducted if the taxpayer uses the optional standard deduction.

Different rules apply in the case of destruction by storm of business property. In such cases where there is a partial destruction, the loss is the proportion of the adjusted basis of the entire property which the value of the destroyed part bears to the value of the entire property. Such a loss must also be reduced by any insurance or other compensation received by reason of the damage.

ALIENS MUST MAKE ADDRESS REPORT

Every alien who is in the United States on January 1 must report his residence address to the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization during the month of January, 1955. Reports for aliens under fourteen years of age must be made by parents or legal guardians. Any alien who is temporarily absent from the United States during the reporting period must report his address within ten days after his return to the United States.

This requirement was first provided for by the Internal Security Act of 1950 and has been incorporated in the Immigration and Nationality Act which became effective on December 24, 1952. It requires that the address report be made every year in January, and further provides that any alien or his parent or legal guardian in the United States who willfully or inexcusably fails to report is liable to be taken into custory and deported. Furthermore, imprisonment or fine may be levied before deportation.

The Annual Address Report Card (Form I-53), on which the address must be submitted, may be obtained at any United States Post Office or any Immigration and Naturalization Service Office. The card must be completely filled out, giving full name, residence address, Alien Registration number, date and place of birth, and the date and port of entry into the United States. When completed and signed, the card must be handed to a clerk in any Post Office or Immigration and Naturalization Service office. It is not to be placed in the mail.

MORE DIESELS FOR B&O SERVICE

Orders for 86 diesel-electric units have just been placed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, it was announced this week by President Howard E. Simpson.

The new units will consist of twenty-nine 900 h.p. yard switchers, twenty-eight 1750 h. p. four-motor road switchers, four 2400 h.p. road passenger units, two 1750 h.p. six motor road switchers, eleven 1000 h. p. yard switchers and twelve 1600 h.p. four-motor road switchers.

Delivery of these units will begin in April and will be completed in June of next year.

President Simpson pointed out that this will give the B&-O a total of 948 diesel units in its system motive power fleet, and with completion of this new order, 82 percent of freight service of the B&O will be diesel-powered, while 86 percent of passenger train miles and 80 percent of yard switching will be handled with diesel equipment.

Mr. Simpson also announced that material has been ordered for the manufacture of 100 flat cars at DuBois, Pa., freight car shop of the railroad. These flats will be 53 ft. 6 in. long and of a 70-ton capacity. Delivery of the material will begin in February and the manufacturing job should be completed during the following month.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter were Sunday evening callers on Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull.

NEW-FARM CORN ALLOTMENTS AVAILABLE

Any producer who intends to plant corn in 1955 on a farm where no corn was planted during the years 1952, 1953 or 1954 should apply for a "new farm" corn acreage allotment if he wants any price support or an ACP payment in 1955, Ray W. Miller, chairman of the County Agricultrual Stabilization and Conservation Committe, has announced.

Marketing Quotas do not apply to corn, the chairman explained. However, under the acreage allotment program, the production of corn in 1955 on a farm which has no corn acreage allotment would make all the crops from the farm ineligible for price support in 1955. Likewise the producer on such a farm would be ineligible for any payment under the 1955 Agricultural Conservation Program.

Application forms for "new farm" corn acreage allotments are available at the DeKalb County ASC Office. January 15, 1955, is the last day such applications may be filed.

FARM SCHOOL DATES GIVEN

School days begin again for farmers and homemakers in DeKalb County in January. During the winter months extension specialists from Purdue University will visit the county with information on new developments in many fields of agriculture and home economics.

County agent Ernest J. Lesiuk has announced the schedule for this series of extension schools as follows:

January 25—District Farm Policy School, Kendallville.

January 26—Laying Flock Management.

January 26—Poultry Diseases.

February 11—The Value and Need of Brucellosis Control.

February 24—Farm Planning 1 and 2.

March 3—Farm Planning 3.

March 10—Horse Sense in the Hog Lot.

March 15—Home Gardens.

March 23—Farm Planning 5.

Extension schools are sponsored each year by the county extension office, county committee and Purdue. Specialist report on some of the most recent information available from the agricultural experimental stations. Atending these schools, according to the county agent, is one of the best ways for farmers to get the latest information on improving their farm business.

Last year 340 persons attended the schools in the county. A total of 47,403 went to the 548 schools throughout Indiana.

Comets Edged In County Tourney On Lucky Bucket, 47-46

A last second desperation shot by Don Blair of Butler proved the margin of victory for the Butler Windmills last Saturday evening. They defeated the Riverdale Comets by a 47-46 score in the final of the DeKalb County tourney.

In a low-scoring thriller that was close all the way from start to finish, the local lads saw their opportunity to pull an upset in the county tourney whisked away by the sound of the ball through the net as the long shot scored.

The first period ended with Butler in front, 15-8. Riverdale then began playing their deliberate style and it gained them a 35-all tie at the half.

The lead switched back and forth before Riverdale took a 46-45 lead with little over a minute to go. The locals lost possession on a back-court violation. With six seconds to go Butler called time out. The clock, however, didn't stop until it reached the two-second mark. Then on the pass-in after the time out, Blair evidently was given a few seconds to make up for "lost time" as he dribbled twice before letting loose with his lucky shot.

The first game, a consolation match between the losers of Friday night's encounters, was a prelim to the final thriller as Waterloo also won on a long last-second shot over Ashley by a 58-56 score.

The last bucket, a shot by Raymond Squires, was the only score made by him in the game.

Carl Carpenter Attends Convention

Carl Carpenter of near St. Joe attended the Swine Improvement Association annual meeting at Purdue recently. He represented DeKalb County at the confab.

Held Wednesday, January 5, the meeting included regular business session, a lecture on "The Dollar and Cents of Producing Hogs" by Dr. Damon Catron of Iowa State College, "How Should We Sell Our Hogs" and "The Problem" by Dr. C. B. Cox of Purdue, F. E. Ketner, Columbus, O., and C. L. Farington, Indianapolis, and "Pork Producers Speak" a panel discussion.

Car Demolished At RR Crossing

After two efforts to start a stalled motor failed, Mrs. Elberta Jones of St. Joe abandoned her 1947 Pontiac sedan just before it was struck by a westbound Baltimore & Ohio express at a railroad crossing at the east end of St. Joe.

The accident occurred Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Jones and her daughter, Judy, had waited with other motorists for an eastbound train to pass before starting across the tracks. The flasher signals had stopped their warning for the east bound train. As Mrs. Jones came onto the tracks the motor stalled. She saw the other train approaching and ordered her daughter from the car. She then tried to start the car but was unable to do so. As the train bore down on her, she left the car just before it was struck and demolished by the speeding train.

Parts of the wreckage were strewn along the railroad right of way. What was left of the car after the train was brought to a stop a mile and one-half west of St. Joe was pried off and rolled down the embankment.

400 Attend Confab

The county extension office in Auburn reported this week that nearly 400 DeKalb County women attended the 1955 training school held in the assembly room of the court house for oficers of the 33 home demonstration clubs in DeKalb County on Monday, January 3.

Ada Farington, county president, presided at the morning session held for 200 special leaders. Ruth Little, chorus president, led in group singing.

Mrs. Isabella McClellan, home agent, thanked the clubs for the new desk chair, office folding chairs and desk lamp presented to her for use in her office.

Instructors included:

Mildred Grogg, literary leaders; Mae Hartman, garden; Ida Fuller, poultry; Cleo Pease, health and safety; Ada Farrington, roadside council; Angela Mason, outlook; Lazeal Boger, food preservation; Marge Shook, country fashion; and Mrs. McClellan, instruction of 66 project leaders.

Nearly 200 officers attended the afternoon session. The county officers served as instructors for the presidents, vice-presidents, secretaries and treasurers, song leaders, parliamentarians and club historians. A round table discussion closed the meeting.

Goals established for 1955 were: "To improve club meetings" and "to better train leaders and club officers."

PTA To Conduct Panel Discussion Tuesday Night

The next meeting of the Riverdale P. T. A. will be held Tuesday evening, January 18, at 8 p.m. at the St. Joe gym.

Mrs. Fred Kruse is chairman of the program committee, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Rediger and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wallace.

This month's meeting should prove to be very interesting and informative. It will be turned over to a panel discussion following the regular order of business. Mr. Ralph Sechler will be moderator of the discussion which will have Mr. Ben Simpson, principal of Riverdale High School, Mr. Howard Hill, princpal of Riverdale Elementary Grade School, and Mr. Roger Hess, County Superintendent of Schools, serving as panel experts. The parents' panel, offering questions for the experts to answer and discuss, will be composed of Mr. Richard Crow, Mr. Erwin Easley and Mrs. Marion Rediger.

After the panel has exhausted its supply of discussion material, those attending the meeting will have an opportunity to ask questions in a general question-and-answer period.

Bruce Baker Continues Training

Fleet Home Town News Center reports this week that Marine Pvt. Clayton B. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of St. Joe, is scheduled to finish four weeks of individual combat training this month at the Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton, Cal.

The course of instruction at this huge training base includes the latest infantry tactics, first aid, demolition, field, fortifications and advanced schooling on weapons.

The trainees learn that all Marines are basically infantrymen, whether they serve as cooks, typists, truck drivers or with aviation units.

The training is given to Marines scheduled for duty overseas, and to all graduates of recruit training before they are assigned to new duty stations.

Fox Hunt Nets-- Fox, Naturally

The hunters returned with a prize Saturday as the fox hunt staged by the local conservation club "paid off."

One fox was killed and the second injured badly enough that it will die.

A sidelight of the hunt is reported by Jerry Haver as follows:

"A very interesting surprise to local fans developed during the latter stages of the drive. Two hunters had emptied their guns at Mr. Fox and he was badly hurt, so they decided to run him down. Who won, the fox, but down went Mac's aspiration for a track team berth."

Another hunt will be held at a later date.

An Apology

A passing observation by the editor of this paper last week has resulted in quite a response. The observation referred to concerns the use of a more familiar name than "Riverdale" in such news articles as those about the basketball team and other school activities. The overwhelming majority of those responses were in opposition to the suggestion that the activities of the high school be pinpointed with respect to geographic location by referring to activities as those of "St. Joe High School." One letter in fact contains the signatures of some fourteen persons who object to the slighting of the team members who come from the Spencerville community. Another letter contains a remark to the effect that the editor will be "run out of business" if, in the future, the name "Riverdale" is not used. The letter also contains other pointed remarks which do little to unify what justifiable opposition there may be by using sneering remarks about the very thing they seek to defend.

The letter has no signature or signatures.

All of which has caused considerable disturbance in the thoughts of the editor to the point that we hereby apologize to all whom we offended by last week's editorial. We also apologize for any offense cause by the use of "St. Joe High School" in the various columns concerning the basketball team, the biographical sketch of one of the faculty members and the adult farm classes. We regret having unwittingly made statements that have been misrepresented and have caused resentment, antagonism, —friction of any kind between any persons who consider themselves a part of the Riverdale School Corporation. To cause this is a hindrance to the conduct of the school program. We have no ambitions for slowing the wheels of progress, regardless of what appearances may be.

We make the apology with an accompanying request. That request is this: all who have been offended by last week's remarks READ THEM AGAIN!!

We did—after receiving these remonstrances. And we cannot find one word which advocates changing the name of the school. Nor can we find one word which casts reflections upon any patron community of the Riverdale School Corporation for its failure to have students measuring up to the abilities of students from another patron community.

If you will read the letters received by the editor as they appear in other columns of this issue, you will note that specific objections are made to our desire to change the name of the school. We now quote from last week's editorial: "There's no argument about the school corporation name. Riverdale suits us as well as any monicker." Where in that sentence, or in any other sentence or sentences of the article, is there the suggestion that the name be changed?

Another thought that appears in the letters is that we do not recognize that there are others besides St. Joe boys on the basketball team. Did we say that St. Joe is the only place represented by the basketball team, or, for that matter, that St. Joe is the only community having students in the school? If we said that, we would expect to have objections from another community represented in the school corporation, or have objections on behalf of the other community by the present protesting group. We did not make any statement to that effect; a perusal of the article will back us up.

We admitted early this week to one of the offended parties that it would have been better had the article never appeared. We admit it publicly here. It never should have been published - because too many have eagerly siezed upon it to use as an example of an attempt to take singular credit for something which belongs to no one community. It has been misinterpreted and misrepresented. It has been used to fire up old antagonisms which have been present for years and years between the St. Joe and Spencerville communities. This was not the purpose, the intent nor the desire behind its publication. Nor will the editor of this paper ever knowingly publish editorial comments which will cause such ill-feeling. If readers are affected by our opinions in the future as readers have been affected in this instance, then we suggest that they undertake lighter reading. For as long as we feel we have something to write about, we are going to write about it.

That's our job.

Guest Editorial

The Army's belated report on the promotion and honorable discharge of Major Irving Peress is almost official confirmation of the suspicion of many that the Pentagon has more than its allotted share of those persons, known colloquially as "dopes."

Army Intelligence reported to the top brass that Peress was an unreliable risk, but the brass ignored Intelligence and then when Senator McCarthy publicly tagged Peress as a potential risk, the Army with a lack of wisdom that would cast reflections on a small child, rushed to get rid of Peress by giving him an honorable discharge.

It is another proof that the "military mind" is frequently in need of psychiatric treatment. If the little minds in whatever part of the Pentagon they inhabit had acted promptly and wisely when the Peress affair was first brought to their attention, there would have been no Zwicker-McCarthy controversy, no prolonged Army-McCarthy TV hearings and no special session of the U. S. Senate to condemn McCarthy. The first law of the military seems to be, "Never admit that you're wrong or have pulled a boot." But the first law of the military is stupidity itself. Every human being and every human organization makes mistakes and pulls boots and there isn't any quicker, wiser way of repairing damage in such cases than by admitting the errors.

Secretary of the Army Stevens and John Adams, the Army's counsel, are now about to be thrown to the wolves, which isn't a bad place to throw them, but they will only be scapegoats. The place where all the blame should be laid for the Army's mishandling of the Peress matter, especially in its delay in admitting that it was wrong, is the White House door. President Eisenhower, a professional soldier all his life, could have called the Pentagon and with one phone call got the whole rundown on the Peress affair; then he could have told the Army to put it all in the public record quickly. But big military brass is big military brass, even when it is President.

What the Army really should do now is to apologize to Senator McCarthy and the American people for its prolonged comedy of errors, which resulted in a Fifth Amendment Major getting honors and a loyal American Senator getting disgrace.

There are all kinds of people in a military establishment, good and bad, wise and stupid. But the bad and the stupid are equated to the good and the wise when a protective screen is thrown about all military mistakes. Without having had the benefits of any poll of military personnel, I am sure that there must be thousands of officers in the Army who secretly believe that the Army's handling of the Peress matter was stupid. But the way the military operates, people don't express opinions in the Army when they don't square with the opinions of the top brass.

Only a miserable coward places responsibility for his own mistakes on someone else, yet that is done frequently by the brass. The Army now pinpoints the blame for the Peress promotion and honorable discharge on a lieutenant general by the name of Walter L. Weibel. At this stage of the game the blame has to be put on men much higher than Weible who knew what he did and tried to cover it up.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted,

I read your article in the News about the name of our school corporation and what to call the basketball team. I am sure that if the boys continue to play ball as they have in the past that it won't be too long before the name Riverdale is recognized. As a matter of fact I talked to a fellow from Angola and told him I went to the new consolidated school and he told me that he had heard about the B. B. team.

Also I would like to remind you that if you would glance through the roster you would find the names of a few Spencerville boys on the squad.

H. E. Markle

Mr. Haberkorn:

As students of the Riverdale school corporation we, the undersigned, resent your proposing the name St. Joe for the basketball team. There are a few players from Spencerville on the squad that do just as much as any of them to help the team. From now on we would like see the name "Riverdale" instead of St. Joe when referring to the B.B. team in your paper.

Mr. Kenneth E. Smith, Glenn Brendel, Ed Ransom, Lynn Fisher, Donald Butler, Kenny Smith, Jim Evans, Jerry Trammel, Larry Speaks, Eldon Ward, Pascal Speaks, Ben Leighton, Denny Conley, Tom Powell.

Mr. Haberkorn:

I don't think it is very fair calling the basketball team St. Joe. You know there are a few players from Spencerville, don't you?

For your information those two players from Spencerville can play just as much as any of those "Big Heros from St. Joe." You may think we are joking, but you will find out if you keep writing the St. Joe stough in the "Big St. Joe Paper! Just keep on printing, we would hate to run you out of business, but make it sure it is Riverdale instead of St. Joe. Riverdale is bad enough but when it comes to St. Joe, Wo-oo-ooo-o!

St. Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Ted:

I read your item on the St. Joe Comets in last week's paper. I also read your editorial on the subject. I still disagree with you. I'm not from St. Joe. I'm from Spencerville. And so are a lot of others.

It is no fault of ours that St. Joe's building was chosen for the high school instead of Spencerville's. Put the shoe on the other foot. How many of St. Joe's alumni would like it if the high school were at Spencerville and were called that instead of Riverdale.

You must realize that some day the school will perhaps be located between the two communities, then St. Joe will mean nothing as far as geographical location is concerned.

You spoke of those who could not find the local scores in the papers because they are listed as Riverdale. If that person isn't interested enough in things back home to know that it is now Riverdale, not St. Joe or Spencerville, then he's not a very ardent fan in the first place.

The kids who are now in high school have suffered enough as far as school names is concerned. To try to change it now, would be unfair to them, as well as to many others.

I am sure there are many others who feel the same as I do and I hope they will take time to make their thoughts known.

Very truly yours,
Ruth Shilling

Ted Haberkorn
(The Editor of St. Joe's most unpopular newspaper)
Dear Sir: (Haberkorn)

We would appreciate it if you would refer to the high school as RIVERDALE HIGH SCHOOL from here on out. (There is no such place as St. Joe High School) —If the team keeps on at present rate it won't take long for people to recognize it anyhow. If they don't it won't matter what the name is.

You have to give away your paper now—what will happen if you keep writing about us as you are at present? (We know)

Yours (not sincerely)
(A few people from the South end of the Corporation)

Please publish as we would like to see something worth while in the paper(?).

Friday, Dec. 31

Hi Ted

I sure got a surprise today when I got a box of cookies and candy from the women of the church. It sure taste good, but it won't last long, because of the boys here.

We leave for Japan around the first of Feb. If we are lucky we'll stop over in Hawaii. We have 14 months duty in Japan, then home we come again.

We go to Pickle Meadows Nevada for cold weather training this Sunday. I know never heard of the place. It's a Marine train base in the mountains. There is snow up to 29 ft. deep and zero weather all the time.

You tell some of those high school girls to drop me a line. I'll answer all there letters. Make sure they send their picture with the letter.

Here is my new address:
Pvt. Clayton B. Baker 1496393
"Co" 408 3rd Repl. Bn.
STAG. REG. MCB
Camp Pendleton, California

In about a month I will have another address. I let you know so you can put it in the paper.

Your paper is really nice. I know about all the basketball games. And the little things around town.

Well I'll close now and get this in the mail.

Pending Legislative Bills Listed

Indiana lawmakers continued this week a 61-day session with the introduction of some 50 bills to be considered for adoption by the body of lawmakers. Included in the group of bills was a proposal to put the state on Eastern Standard time, another extending the gross income tax deadline by a month and still another for cutting in half the valid period for driver licenses.

Those three bills were among those introduced in the brief session Monday. The legislature then broke up into committees to consider the more than 100 total of bills introduced since the House and Senate started a 61-day biennial session last Thursday.

The EST bill was introduced by Sens. Robert L. Brokenburr (R-Indianapolis) and Von A. Eichhorn (D-Uniondale), as a follow-up to two bills calling for a referendum on the controversial time issue. A Senate Republican leader believed the referendum idea would be approved.

Sen. Eugene Bainbridge (D-Munster) offered the measure to extend the deadline for filing returns from January 31 to February 28, or February 29 in leap years.

A bipartisan bill offered by Sens. Von. A. Eichhorn (D-Uniondale) and Charles R. Kellum (R-Mooresville) would enable the state to use part of its general fund for school building construction as recommended by a sub-committee on education of the Legislative Advisory Commission.

Under terms of the measure each 30 pupils would constitute a classroom unit and each unit would be worth $500 in state funds, minus the receipts from a 10-cent local tax levy.

As the Legislature swung into the first full week of its session, Senate Caucus Chairman Roy Conrad (R-Monticello) predicted favor for a referendum on the time issue and said there was sentiment against Governor Craig's proposal of the death penalty for persons selling heroin to minors.

Others among 22 bills in the Senate and 21 in the House before the Legislature adjourned until Wednesday of this week would:

Exempt revenues of municipal operations from taxation.

Make driver licenses valid only for a year instead of two years at present and make them expire January 1 instead of the operator's birthday month.

Change the motor vehicle fund distribution ratio from 53-32-15 for state, counties and cities to 51-33-16.

Transfer $15,603,380 from general fund to highway fund for money borrowed during depression, half to be spent for construction and the rest divided according to the present ratio.

Require welfare departments to aid the aged regardless of whether children contribute to their support, and repeal the necessity of persons on welfare rolls deeding their property to the department.

The House Ways and Means Committee tackled the record 669 - million - dollar biennial budget wih an eye toward trimming it.

The committee, which met late Monday in a brief organizing session, said it would go through the bulky budget section by section in a thorough review of all the spending proposals.

Observers believed the budget would be cut somewhat by the committee, and possibly further by legislators in both houses when it is reported out of committee. Foes of the administration's budget, both Democrats and Republicans, have threatened to chop it by as much as 40 million dollars.

Bills calling for a referendum on the question of permanent Eastern or Central Standard time for the state were introduced both in the House, by Rep. Jean Lagrange (D-LaPorte) and the Senate, by Sen. Richard Newhouse (R-Morristown).

The proposed referendum would be merely an expression of sentiment since no penalties are provided for violating the will of the majority.

The re-introduction of a home rule amendment was sponsored by Sens. Russell Bontrager (R-Elkhart) and Von Eichhorn (D-Uniondale). It would enable cities to adopt the city manager form of government in lieu of a mayor. It was passed by the last legislature and now must be adopted a second time without change and be approved by a state referendum in 1956 to become part of the state constitution.

A measure which would require philanthropic organizations such as the Red Cross to file annual financial reports with the Indiana secretary of state was introduced by Sen. Wesley Malone (R-Clinton).

Malone claimed it would stop alleged "unethical operations" by charity groups by making them list salaries of officers, the amounts of collections and the disbursements of funds.

Sens. Charles R. Kellum (R-Mooresville) and Robert O'Bannon (D-Corydon) offered a bill to establish a school of veterinary medicine at Purdue University and appropriate five million dollars for its construction and $125,000 for its first year of operation in 1956.

The distribution of state gasoline tax funds to cities, towns and counties would be made on a monthly instead of quarterly basis under a bill proposed by Rep. John Feighner (R-Marion).

A joint resolution, introduced in the Senate by Sen. Lucius Somers (R-Hoagland) would ask congress to repeal its federal gasoline tax.

Other measures included:

Prohibit issuance of liquor permits to places within 200 feet of funeral homes.

Create a Wilbur Wright Birthplace Commission and appropriate $100,00 for the Henry County memorial.

Extend to five days the waiting period for marriage after issuance of a license.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met Monday evening, January 3, at the home of Katy Crow.

The meeting was opened by the president, Harriett Baker. Evelyn Walters gave devotions and all sang "Home Sweet Home." Reports were given by the project leaders. The club voted to sponsor a new club. Committees were appointed for the year. Twenty-four members answered roll call with "A Country I Would Like To Visit."

Due to moving out of the community, Florence Miller resigned from the club. The meeting was closed with the club prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Katy Crow and Ida DeLong.

The next meeting will be held February 7 at the home of Ruth Coburn.

INDIANA DAY FEB. 17 AT FLORIDA STATE FAIR

Florida has designated February 1 as Indiana Day during their big state fair, which will be in progress at Tampa. A large delegation of Indiana farm people will be guests of honor on that occasion, when they will also witness the traditional Ybor City Garparilla Parade, a dramatic version of pirate days.

Of special interest to the farm group will be the growing number of cattle ranches in this southern state, the alligator farms and citrus groves.

The delegation will make the stop-over in Tampa as a part of their itinerary on a circle tour of the big peninsular state. Conducted by the Hoosier Travel Service, the group will stop in St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, Miami Beach and other points of interest. The tour will leave Indiana February 12, but because of the great demand for accomodations during the resort season, reservations are limited.

LU. EXTENSION SPRING CLASSES BEGIN FEB. 7

Enrollment and registration dates for the spring semester of the Fort Wayne Center of Indiana University have been announced by Dr. Ralph E. Broyles, director. Registration will begin Monday, January 31, and continue through Saturday February 5.

Classes are to begin Monday, February 7. Dr. Broyles emphasized the importance of early and prompt enrollment for a number of the classes will be limited to maximum enrollment. Orientation tests required of all those who have not previously aken the tests will be given on February 2 at 1:30 p.m.

It was also emphasized that veterans who wish to take advantage of the education benefits of the G. I. Bills should make the necessary applications at once at the Veteran's Administration office, in order that they may have the benefits to which they are entitled when the classes start. The faculty advisor at the I. U. Center will be glad to confer with interested veterans on how to proceed.

The Indiana University Center will offer college credit courses in practcially every department of learning during the coming semester, including pre-medicine, pre - dentistry, pre-optometry, pre-law, business, home economics, teacher training, liberal arts and many others.

High school graduates may complete two full years of college at the I. U. Center. Students may enroll on a full or part-time basis in day and evening classes. A number of graduate courses in education are also offered.

The courses in the field of adult aducation include the History and Philosophy of Religion, Problems in Social Psychology, Home Furnishings, Fashions in Foods, French for Pleasure and Profit, German for Pleasure and Profit, Russian Conversation, Fine Film Club, Industrial Purchasing and Market Control, Small Business Management, Lectures on Shakespeare, Review of English Fundamentals, Student Chorus, Transportation and Traffic Management, Business Communications, Professional Courses in Insurance and Civil Defense.

A faculty counselor will be available throughout registration week to prospective students who wish guidance in planning their program for the coming semester.

A bulletin giving complete schedule and information on all courses may be obtained at the I. U. Center office, 1120 S. Barr Street in Fort Wayne.

NEW TRAINING PROGRAM FOR AVIATION STUDENTS AT PURDUE

Purdue University officials have announced that students may enroll now for a new two-year Aviation Technician training program scheduled to start on the campus at Lafayette with the opening of the second semester on February 3. This action was taken in response to the demand from returning veterans and mid-year high school graduates who do not wish to delay until September to begin their college work.

The course, which is approved by the Civil Aeronautics Administration, will train aircraft and engine mechanics specializing on equipment of airline type. Students work on "live" aircraft of the multi-engine class in the shops of the Purdue Aeronautical Corporation as well as in the Purdue aeronautical engineering laboratories. Graduates are prepared and qualiifed for CAA certificates as airframe and engine mechanics (A and E).

Prof. VonRoy Daugherty, head of the Division of Technical Institutes, points out that the four major trunk carrier airlines alone hire approximately 700 mechanics with A and E certificates each year to maintain their staffs. From the ranks of these CAA certified A and E mechanics the airlines fill many supervisory and specialized positions such as airport maintenance supervisors, airport control operators, flight engineers, power plant technicians and instrument specialists.

The current shortage of engineers and the growth of aviation has created a growing demand for technicians throughout the industry, not only for maintenance but in all aspects of experimental and assembly work. University officials report that the demand for such technicians exceeds the present supply.

The curriculum for the first semester includes aircraft engines, airplane welding and materials, aircraft engine accessories, with basic correlated courses in mathematics, science and communications. Later courses include aircraft fabrication, technical drawing, electricity, heat, mechanics, airframe and power plant, maintenance practices and CAA regulations.

The number of students that can be acepted is limited by the size of the Purdue transport fleet and training facilities. High school graduation and high mechanical aptitude and interest are required for admission. Students desiring admission, either in February or September, should apply immediately to the Director of Admissions at Purdue.

?GOOD BUYS?

ON TV's

What really makes a good buy? First, of course, is a picture that suits you. Second is the cost of maintenance, not the cost of the set. Last year we sold more than 100 TV's. Total service and repair cost $639.00, of which the owners paid $237.00, or an average of about $2.25 per set. Of course, some have paid much more than the $2.25 mentioned, but most of our TV customers have not paid any maintenance cost at all. Moreover, when selling TV sets in and near St. Joe, we don't need to charge a big mileage fee for service. Further, we now know our makes and models better and we only sell those which experience has taught us will stand up and take it.

The above are only facts so please give them serious thought and then see us about that TV purchase.

POWER OF THE SPIRIT

Lesson for January 23, 1954

Most Christians have wished, at some time or other, that Jesus of Nazareth were still on this earth, living at a post office address, perhaps with a telephone, certainly available for interviews, for lecture and preaching engagements. There are so many questions we want to ask him, so many debates in and outside the church that he could settle with a word. This feeling may well have been strong in the minds of Jesus' personal and closest friends as the shadows were closing around him at the close of his life. Yet Jesus, although aware of this feeling, tried to make the disciples feel that it was best all around that he should NOT continue living as he had done for three years among them.

Who Is the Spirit?

Entirely aside from the importance of the Atonement, it was best that Jesus should, as he put it, "go away." Existing as all human beings do in a body, subject to all the laws of nature, he could be in only one place at one time. But, once away from this earth, physically, he could be present spiritually in ways not limited by space and time. Sometimes he said the Father would "send" the Spirit, sometimes he said he himself would send the Spirit. (Compare John 14:26 with 16:7) By the Spirt men would be linked with Christ and the heavenly Father. As Paul was to write later, out of years of Christian experience, "through him (Christ) we have access in one Spirit to the Father." (Eph. 2: 18). So this divine Spirit, wholly God though not the whole of God, is sometimes called the Spirit of Christ and sometimes the Spirit of God. Paul even says once that the Lord "is" the Spirit (II Cor. 3:17). Many theologians of the present day express it this way: The Holy Spirit is God at work in the lives of men. The Holy Spirit is sent from God, but also the Holy Spirit is God. Theology has devised a great many complicated ways of explaining this—and the truth may be even more complex than theologians think. But the simple and important truth is that wherever the Spirit lives in a human heart, there God lives,—no faint reflection or distant emissary of God but God himself.

The Spirit In Us

Now there is a question that will naturally come up in the minds of thoughtful people. Is not God everywhere? How can he come or go? How can he ever be absent from any place or any person if he is infinite? The Bible speaks of the Holy Spirit "coming," "descending," being "sent," also of the Spirit's being "taken" or "departing." If the Holy Spirit is God at work in the hearts of man, how can the Holy Spirit go and come? The full answer to such questions only God himself knows. But we can get a glimpse of the truth from what is said in the Bible. (Of course a full study of these deep matters is not for a short column like this.) God is indeed everywhere by his power and his providence. In him we live and move and are, as Paul said. We stick to that. But God has so made man that we can open or close the door even to God; God does not force himself on any man. As friend, as one transforms life, who brings comfort and purity and power, he comes only where welcomed. It is possible to grieve the Spirit, yes, to drive God out.

The Spirit For Us

But it is also possible, a glorious fact, that where the Holy Spirit lives in a human life, that life is transformed into the very image of the divine Life. The Holy Spirit is the Life-changer. In us—and also for us, One of the most remarkable, one of the most uplifting truths we know about the Spirit is that when we pray, though our prayers are limited by our ignorance and tainted with our own self-interest, the Holy Spirit prays with us, prays for us. Over the dull monotone of our stumbling prayers can be heard in heaven the melodic overtones of the Spirit's pure desires for us. Our noblest aspiration still is short of God's aspiration for us. This does not mean we can afford to be careless about prayer. It does mean that as we reach up to God we find that he has first been reaching down to us. It is because of the Spirit in us that we can pray at all.

INDIANA DAIRY HERDS NEED MORE ROUGHAGES

A larger supply of good quality roughages for cows is one of the most important needs today on many Indiana farms, according to G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairyman. Figures released by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics show that the average consumption of hay equivalent ((one ton of hay is equal to three tons of silage) per cow in Indiana last winter was only 2.6 tons. This is less than the amount fed in any of the states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio or Illinois and is also below the national average.

The growing, harvesting and feeding of more high quality roughages is important because it helps to stimulate a high level of production and at the same time reduces the daily grain allowance needed to maintain a profitable production.

Williams, using data secured from the DeKalb County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, points out results of feeding tests in 37 DeKalb County dairy herds for a year ending October 1. These 37 herds were grouped according to production into three groups. The 12 herds that made the best records were well fed with roughages. Six of the 12 herds, in this high producing group, received more than 5,000 pounds of hay equivalent per cow. Four herds received between 4,000 and 5,000 pounds of hay equivalent per cow. Two herds received less than 4,000 pounds per cow.

Of the next group of 12 highest producing dairy herds, four herds were fed more than 5,000 pounds per cow, five herds consumed between 4,000 and 5,000 pounds per cow and three herds received less than 4,000 pounds per cow. Each cow in the 13 remaining dairy herds, at the bottom of the group in production, were fed hay equivalent as follows: two herds 5,000 pounds, five herds between 4,000 and 5,000 pounds and six herds less than 4,000 pounds.

It is interesting to note, Williams says, that no silage was fed to 11 of the 37 herds. Of the 14 dairymen who failed to supply their herds with some succulent roughages, only three produced a sufficient amount of hay to reach the 5,000 pounds per cow. A study of the grain feeding practices shows that each of the heavy roughage fed herds in the upper group produced more than four pounds of milk for each pound of grain fed. The same was true of three of the four herds in the middle group, while each of the two highest herds in the lowest group failed to reach this goal. The herd that received the largest winter allotment of roughage produced 6.4 pounds of milk for each pound of grain fed. It was surpassed by only one other herd (which was also one of the lucky eleven) by four tents of a pound of milk for each pound of grain.

Roughages of good quality fed in 91 other counties in Indiana will likewise give good results in the form of milk production, says Williams. What has been accomplished in DeKalb County may be achieved elsewhere.

EXAMINE FABRICS BEFORE BUYING

If you want to get your money's worth when buying fabrics, you should examine the fabric, the weave, dye or color, special finishes and the width of fabric. According to Mrs. Lottie Sumner, extension clothing specialist, Purdue University, a correct label is your best source of information. However, further knowledge on your part will help you in making decisions.

Smooth fabrics usually are made of smooth yarns from long combed fibers and these are more expensive to manufacture. Short fibers are made into fuzzy yarns (usually called "spun") and may rough up after laundering to give a rougher texture fabric. Yarns sometimes identify the fabric. such as shantung, made from thick and thin yarns, or tweed from nubby yarns. If you unravel a yarn, you may decide whether it was yarn-dyed or piece-dyed -- if piece dyed the color will be uneven. Usually yarn dyed fabrics are more expensive than piece dyed.

A greater amount of twist in the yarn tends to increase the wearing quality. True crepe is made from highly twisted yarns, while satin is made from yarns with practically no twist and, therefore, it may rough up easily in wearing. However, you will have to depend on the label for information concerning blends of fibers. Labels are extremely important.

As important as the type of yarn used (thick, thin, smooth, or highly twisted) is the closeness of weave. You can see the weave by holding the fabric up to the light. Twills are most durable because they have the closest and firmest weaves. The most open is the plain or basket weave.

Fabrics, such as satin or sateen, which have floating threads, give the least satisfactory wear where there is friction. This type of fabric would be unsuitable for work clothes. The napped fabric, such as flannels, may be loosely woven and then napped to fill in to look more firm. These may not wear well because they may shed fibers. Or, sometimes, the fibers mat or ball up in wear and shrink in cleaning.

This and other information is contained in bulletins available through the local home demonstration agent.

'55 STATE FAIR RACING PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Twenty-four trotting and pacing events with total purses set at approximately $200,000 have been scheduled for the 1955 Indiana State Fair.

The racing program was put on a more secure basis this week for spectators and race stables with the purchase of four major harness racing stakes by the State Fair Board.

The stakes and futurities were bought from Robert I. Terry of Indianapolis, whose family originated the Fox Stake and the Horseman Stake in 1907. They are the outstanding pacing and trotting events, respectively, for 2-year-old harness horses.

Two Horseman Futurities purchased from the Terry family were begun in the mid 19-20's and were designed to build a stronger 3-year-old trotting and pacing program. The State Fair Board paid $78,000 for the right to control the four races and hold them at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

According to L. Orville Miller, Elkhart, director of the State Fair speed department, the race program will begin on Saturday, September 3, and will continue through the following week, Monday through Friday, September 5-9.

The 1955 Indiana State Fair begins one day earlier this year. The gates will swing open to welcome visitors on Wednesday, August, 31 and will continue open through Friday, September 9.

LEATHER GLOVES CAN BE WASHED

Leather gloves, such as pigskin, doeskin, chamois, calfskin and kid, may be successfully washed under certain conditions.

Mrs. Isabella F. McClellan, home demonstration agent of DeKalb County, says that the only way you can be sure you have a pair of washable gloves is to look for the stamp on the inside of the cuff.

If you previously have had the gloves dry cleaned, remember, you cannot wash them successfully. They may stiffen and shrink.

For gloves that are labeled washable and have not been dry cleaned, follow these suggestions to keep the gloves clean and soft. To wash, use lukewarm, soft water and milk suds. Slip the gloves on and wash them as you would your hands. A soft brush will be helpful to remove spots. Remove the gloves and turn them wrong side out and wash. Turn right side out and rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water. Do not rinse under the faucet.

To dry, straighten the gloves out on a terry towel. Gently roll the towel up starting with the fingers to ease the water through the cuffs. Mrs. McClellan cautions you never to wring leather gloves. Blow into each glove to puff it into shape. Place on a dry towel away from heat.

To shape, put them on your hands before the gloves are completely dry and work gently to smooth and shape them. Should they be dry before you get time to shape them, moisten your hand, slip on the glove and smooth out the wrinkles. Remove it carefully and finish drying. Follow the same procedure with the other glove.

SOYBEAN SEED SAMPLES SHOW LOW GERMINATION

Soybeans are "acting up" again this year according to tests made by the seed certification service at Purdue University. Out of over 500 soybean seed samples already germinated, 30 percent have fallen below the 80 percent minimum requirement for good seed. Ten percent of the 500 samples are germinating less than 70 percent. In many cases, low germination can be traced to samples that are above 14 percent moisture, according to Charles Coons, certification manager. This is a warning to Indiana farmers, he asserts, to check the moisture content of their bins. Weed content of soybean fields was higher than usual in 1954. Following the wet weather of early November, moisture of beans in the field was often higher than earlier in the fall. In fact, during the late combining season moisture ranged to 18 percent or higher.

Ordinarily the cool weather that prevails in late November and subsequently, permits safe storage of soybeans carrying more than 14 percent moisture until spring. The Indian Summer weather that developed in late November, however, has doubtlessly contributed to the heating of wet beans in the late fall and resulted in a drop in germination. This is usually tied up with high moisture content of beans during warm spring weather.

Samples, taken from bins in December, have shown as high as 20 percent moisture and such beans not only fail to grow but are rotten. Late harvested soybeans are showing many rotten seed in the germinators. Out of these observations comes the warning by Purdue agronomists to all farmers to know the moisture content of their stored soybeans. Deep and representative probing is important and farmers should remember that the driest spots at this time of year are around the walls, and the wettest spots are in the surface center of the bins. Soybeans carrying too much moisture grade lower on the market, and may even go out of condition for milling purposes.

Al Carter of the State Seed Laboratory at Purdue urges farmers not to delay in getting in seed samples for germination through the State Laboratory. Later in the season the rush of germination work delays the time when germinations can be made. While the supply of seed of superior soybean varieties to plant the Hoosier crop appears to be adequate and the usual amount of certified seed will be available yet it is important that testing both moisture and germination be more extensively practiced this year than ever.

HINTS ON HEALTH— PHYSICAL DEFECTS

Any kind of physical defect may be a handicap to a child's normal development and unless carefully handled might result in a peculiar emotional pattern.

In childhood, common physical defects are harelip, cleft palate, facial birthmark, saddle nose, hunchback, webbed fingers, crossed eyes, disfiguring scars, crooked teeth and contractures resulting from burns. Some of these defects are present at birth, others are acquired.

A child with a deformity is exposed to the natural curiosity of other children in whose eyes he appears different and odd. Children are apt to be inconsiderate of the boy or girl who wants to play with them, if the would-be playmate is not up to par because of a noticeable physical deformity. Sometimes he is shunned, dubbed with a nickname that refers to his shortcoming, left to withdraw unto himself, to become seclusive and shy.

A spirited child who must live with an outstanding deformity seeks to compensate. He may bolster up his injured ego through an over-abundance of self-expression, to a point where he becomes a nuisance. He may through his own perception and encouraged by others compensate by developing such skill as he is capable of regardless of his misfortune.

A satisfying method of self-expression that keeps the deformed child occupied happily and receives recognition from others will help personality development along normal lines.

Some children with major physical abnormalities attain a chosen objective in which they excel far beyond the average. Wherever possible efforts should be made to correct or ameliorate these defects.

Comets Beat Hicksville 49-45

The Riverdale Comets took a 49-45 victory from Hicksville Friday night at the Waterloo gym.

The Comets took an 11-5 lead in the first quarter in a game that lacked sparkle on the part of both teams. Hicksville climbed up to trail by just one point at the end of the first half, 23-22.

As the third quarter opened the Aces dropped in six straight points to take a 28-23 lead. The local five then rallied and led 34-32 before opening up a gap of ten points momentarily in the final quarter. Hicksville closed the gap, however, before the final buzzer.

The prelim was won by the Riverdale seconds, 32-23.

On Friday night of this week the Comets face Ashley at Waterloo. On Saturday night they face a tough one playing at Fremont.

Mr. Kain was born February 1, 1886, the son of the late Jesse S. and Mary J. Kain. On June 27, 1913, he and Flora Shoemaker were married at Dayton, Ohio. His wife died in October of 1928.

Other survivors include three other sisters, Mrs. Gladys Treesh of Auburn, Mrs. Stella J. Young of St. Petersburg, with whom he resided and Mrs. Grace Robertson of Hicksville; two brothers, Russell W. and Dwight R. Kain, both of Fort Wayne, and several nieces and nephews.

The three directors whose terms are expiring at this time are William Staman of St. Joe, William Potter of Butler and Cleve Grube of Butler.

County Units Get $949,794

Schools and civil governments of DeKalb County received a total of $949,794 in five types of state aid distributions during the 1953-54 fiscal year, according to a tabulation contained in a new publication of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce. The state distributions amounted to $36.50 per capita in the county, as compared to a statewide average of $32.70 per capita, the chamber said.

Of the total funds sent to the county, schools received the largest amount, $470,185. Other distributions were: for highways and streets, $291,978; public welfare, $172,024; excise tax (alcoholic beverage fees) to civil units, $9,981; intangibles tax to civil units, $5,626.

The total of all state distributions for the same purposes was $128,650,057, divided as follows: Schools, $64,340,956; highways and streets, $35,049,790; public welfare, $26,125,792; excise tax, $2,238,727; and intangibles tax, $894,792.

The grand total of state aid for the year was $135,041,324, including distributions for such purposes as aid to tuberculosis hospitals, vocational education, school lunch programs and special school classes, for which county figures were not available, the chamber said. Funds sent to local units were equal to 42 per cent of total state expenditures during 1953-54, exclusive of unemployment compensation.

Pointing out that proposed expenditures by the state may well be leading toward new taxes in the near future, the chamber publication said: "An increase in 'state aid' should not be considered either by citizens or local public officials as coming to them in the form of 'free money" and does not mean 'less taxes,' as has been suggested by some of its advocates."

The chamber said three major questions confront the current Legislature with respect to local governmental financing:

1. Is the property tax to be tabbed as no longer adequate as the sole major source of tax funds for local governments?

2. If so, is the answer substantially larger amounts of state aid to local governments, and increases in state taxes? Or,

3. Should the state pass legislation enabling local governments to levy one or more new types of taxes locally to meet their needs where necessary?

THE EVERLASTING GOD

by Bonnie Witt

Just when was God born?
Phillip asked one day
God has always been here
I hastened to say.
You mean He never wasn't
This thought seemed quite new
God was here before time
Or the world—or you.
He thought for a moment
And then he said
He must be awful old
Must be nearly dead!
Before I could answer
He asked with a sigh
What will we do
When God does die?
Phillip, dear, don't worry
That will never be
Our God will live
Forever and eternally.

HOUSE PLANTS ARE REVIVING

Homemakers today are reviving an old custom of growing house plants. House plants are not only decorative, but they also help to create a more pleasant environment around the home. They return a lot of pleasure and relaxation for only a small amount of work.

The successful culture of plants requires certain conditions which are even more difficult to maintain indoors. Green plants require adequate sunlight, optimum temperatures, fresh air, proper watering and the right soil preparation, including fertilization. According to E. R. Honeywell of the Purdue University horticultural department, almost any container for house plants is satisfactory.

In a bulletin he has prepared Honeywell also gives suggestions for potting plants, shifting from one pot to a larger one, pruning and shaping plants and propagation of new plants.

Selection of plants that will grow under normal home conditions will avoid failure and disappointment. These plants must be able to withstand extreme changes in temperature and a wide variation in humidity and drafts. A brief discussion of suitable plants is also contained in the publication.

This and other information is contained in Purdue University Bulletin 206, "House Plants," which is available through your home demonstration agent.

(Wondering why the above was set in bold type? No particular reason—except the Ed forgot to flip the switch.)

PLAN MEALS TO USE MORE EGGS

"An egg a day" or "an extra egg a day" is a good rule to follow, because they add variety to the menu, they are good for you and--when priced low as they are now--good for your pocketbook. Miss Miriam G. Eads, extension food and nutrition specialist, Purdue University, gives some suggestions about eggs that you may have forgotten.

Greater variety in menu planning is possible if you keep in mind that an egg is a source of protein: one egg is equivalent to about one ounce of meat. Eggs have the same food value when used in custards or puddings as when cooked in the shell, poached, scrambled or prepared in other ways. Miss Eads is working in cooperation with the Indiana Heart Foundation, and she recommends that eggs be included in a weight control diet.

Since eggs are universally popular, they are a versatile food which may be served at any meal during the day. Let your imagination go on a rampage. Have you tried Ham and Egg Casserole? Here is a recipe from the home economist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

4 eggs, beaten
3-4 cup milk
1 cup grated cheese
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups cooked diced ham (or other cooked meat or fish)

Combine ingredients and pour into greased individual baking dishes (or one larger casserole dish). Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F for 30 minutes or until set. Makes four servings.

LADINO AND ALFALFA CAN RELIEVE SHORTAGE OF CLOVER SEED

American farmers must decide within the next few weeks how best to meet the problem of short supplies of red and alsike clover seed. According to K. E. Beeson, Purdue University extension agronomist, ladino and alfalfa may substitute for red and alsike clover.

Seed supply for the two legumes (red and alsike clover) is the smallest in years, amounting to only 80 percent of the 1943-1952 ten-year average.

Reduction in seeding rates offers one solution to the problem especially if coupled with good seeding methods along with proper liming and fertilizing. Purdue agronomists point out that reducing the amount of red clover in seeding mixtures has been used in other years of shortage to stretch seed supplies. "Brand" seeding of legumes in oats reduces seed requirements, too.

As for the best varieties of alfalfa for Indiana, Ranger and Buffalo are on top for long time stands, Atlantic is highest yielding in rotations. There appears to be an adequate supply of certified seed for 1955 planting. There is more than twice as much certified ladino seed on hand this year as used in any previous year.

Agronomists say that while ladino is most widely used as a pasture legume, experiments show it is efficient in fixing nitrogen and can be used in many cases as a green manure crop. In Iowa, for example, during two years of favorable moisture, corn yields following ladino turned under were higher than yields following other legumes in the test. Yields after ladino were higher than yields from corn receiving 51 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Consult your county agent for specific recommendations on suitable legume mixtures that can be planted this spring for hay, pasture or green manure.

HINTS ON HEALTH— WHAT SORT OF PERSON

An infant is born.

What sort of person will he be in later life?

Certain hereditary traits will influence his growth and development in later life. Some of these hereditary influences are favorable and other unfavorable. Heredity is a major determinate as to size, stature, weight, skin color, eye color, hair color, hair form, whether straight, wavy or curly, shape and proportions of head and shape of facial features.

There is also an hereditary susceptibility to certain diseases. Races are distinguished from each other by their traits of color, form and feature, which makes individuals of the race look enough alike to be considered typical.

Generally speaking, a good constitution or a poor constitution is inherited. Physiologic inheritance is the term used to describe the inherited ways in which the body does its work. A person may inherit especially good powers of recuperating from fatigue or a particularly well - functioning digestive system familiarly known as an iron stomach.

Longevity, the tendency to live long, is an inherited constitutional trait. Barring accidents or disease, persons whose ancestors on both sides have lived long will themselves attain long life. The medical dictionary puts it in a few words: heredity is the organic resemblance based on descent - the inheritance of qualities or of disease from ancestry.

Letters to the Editor

Spencerville, Ind.
Jan. 15, 1955

Letter to
Editor of St. Joe News
St. Joe, Ind.

I would like to compliment the Editor of the News on his stirring up of a dormant "Hornets Nest" in a recent article printed in the St. Joe News.

Also the printing of the letters of protest in the following publication. I also accept the Editors apology (if necessary) to the public.

I am sure it did not stir up any of the old "Feud" in the participating communities. It rather will have the result of cementing a closer community spirit among the several Townships as witness the turnout on a bad weather night at Waterloo to witness the Basketball Game against Hicksville where the three Townships and perhaps half of Jackson Tp. filled completely one-half of the Waterloo gym. I don't think there will ever be anymore doubt where "Riverdale" is.

Thanks.

St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Bob and I want you to know that we feel extremely fortunate to have access to such a home-town newspaper as the St. Joe News, even though I learned, much to my surprise, that it is - and I quote from a "Letter to the Editor" appearing in the January 13th issue - "St. Joe's most unpopular newspaper.

It was very disheartening to learn of this breach between the two towns, and just when it was my understanding that the consolidation was going so well! What a wonderful school "Riverdale" could be if both St. Joe and Spencerville would, for the first time, actually recognize the new school and stop clinging to the past.

I certainly hope the day will soon dawn when everyone concerned will drop their petty grievances and use their time and energy to make "Riverdale" a school to be praised - not, by such ludicrous behaviour, to evoke ridicule - by outsiders.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Robert (Lawson) Baker

UTILIZE SPACE IN KITCHEN CABINETS

It is possible for homeowners to get additional space for kitchen items by utilizing efficiently all the space that is in their cabinets, says Miss Ruth Hutcheson, Purdue University extension home management specilist.

The bottom shelf of the wall cabinet and the top shelf of the base cabinet are the two places in the kitchen which are the easiest to reach. For convenience, the dishes and utensils used most often should be placed on these "easy reach" shelves. Actually only about half of this space is generally used. Full use of this space would eliminate stacking unlike items, such as small plates on top of large plates or reaching behind one row of glasses for another size of glasses. Such a situation can be corrected by placing half shelves above those now in use.

Half shelves may be made of 3-8 inch plywood supported by a one inch thick board screwed to the plywood under each end of the shelf. These shelves should be only four or six inches deep. They provide for saucers, cups, small bowls or other pieces often used.

Plates and other large items may be placed on the full depth shelves underneath. This saves time and energy in unstacking those smaller pieces to get the larger ones and reduces the scratching of china and danger of breaking stacked pieces.

Space may be made available for other small pieces by attaching inexpensive racks to the inside of the doors. A vertical file set or built into a high shelf allows easy storage of items which can be stored on edge, such as small platters, pie plates and shallow baking dishes. A larger vertical file may be located on a lower shelf of the base cabinet and provide "easy reach" storage for trays, cookie sheets, muffin pans and the like.

SAVE MORE PIGS WITH INFRARED HEAT LAMPS

January and February not only bring cold weather, but they also bring the farrowing of early spring pigs and the problem of keeping the little pigs from chilling. Each year approximately three million pigs in the United States are lost because of chilling. Up-to-date farmers can't afford to neglect chilling losses when it is such a simple and inexpensive operation to prevent them by using infrared heat lamps.

Experimental research conducted at the Purdue Electric Farm has shown that farrowing pens should have supplementary heat when the pen gets below 45 degrees F. A 250-watt infrared lamp supported 36 inhces above the floor and turned on just before the sow is expected to farrow, will do the job. Since pigs chill easiest immediately after birth, heat will usually only be required for the first three days.

Within 24 hours after birth, the infrared lamps may be moved to a protected corner. This aids in keeping the pigs from being crushed by the sow.

These suggestions and many others are more fully explained in Purdue University Extension Leaflet 318, "Save More Pigs With Infrared Heat Lamps," which is available through the county agent or by writing to agricultural publications office at Purdue University.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday-School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Scripture: Genesis 1:26-31; 6:5-6; Matthew 6:9-10; Mark 7:21-23; Luke 6:35-36; Romans 3:23; Hebrews 2:6-18.

Devotional Reading: I John 1:5-10.

OUR NATURE AND NEED

Lesson for January 30, 1955

When the Christian church talks about "Man" we mean all men. Following the Bible —and science, too for that matter—we believe that the human race is one race, not two or several. A child who is old enough to get out of his front yard knows that human beings come in different varieties, and a grown person who has been around the world at eye-level with the people who live on the ground, knows much better than the child does what a bewildering lot of varied types the human race is. Nevertheless, we Christians believe that each one of us has something in common with all men and women, living and dead. The caveman whose fingerprints 30,000 years old still are read, Caesar and Hitler, Saint Paul and the loafers in the grocery store, the Queen of England and a black cannibal in the rain-forest, these are all part of one human race. In spite of all the differences, can anything be said of all of us which is true of all of us?

God's Design For Man

The story of creation, however, you may interpret it, includes certain truths about man which are of the greatest importance. One is that man is here on this earth not by accident but by the intention and will of God. Man does not casually emerge into a world and a universe to which he is badly suited. He is rather placed by God in a world which has been made ready for him as a place to live and love and achieve. Another truth is that man is expected to become master of this earth, not to be mastered by it. And a third most important truth of all: Man is created in the image of God. Theologians, one regrets to say, have quarreled a great deal over the meaning of this. Leaving all quarrels on one side, the least we can say the "image of God" means is that in some way man reflects the nature of God. Man has a capacity for knowledge, for aspiration, for love, for fellowship with God, such as no other created thing possesses. This may or may not mean that the first human beings on this earth were in any way perfect. It may or may not mean that the image of God has been totally defaced at the present time so that there is not a trace of Godlikeness life. But it surely means no less than that by God's intention for man-kind there is something Godlike in each man.

Man Against Himself

A second truth about man —all men—which is enormously, vitally important is that all men are sinners. That is to say, not only does no man fulfill all the good possibilities God has in mind for him, but men in their very nature are corrupt, twisted, they want what God does not want, they want what they themselves would not want if they knew what they were doing. A sinner is bent on doing the very things that will destroy him. As we view the world today we can see this is true on a vast scale. As a modern poet has expressed it, man is "the sightless rider on a blind horse galloping as hard as he can go to the edge of the bottomless pit. Against all the optimisms which suppose that if you leave men alone they will come out all right, the Christian church affirms that if you leave men alone they will come out wrong. We have brains enough, maybe, cleverness and genius enough, take us by and large, to get out of our troubles. But we don't rave patience, unselfishness, wisdom, love or selfsacrifice enough. Individually and as a race we are in a mess, and the name of it is Sin, and the end of it is Destruction.

Why We Need God

Men want many things. But what we most need is God. We need God to show us what he has in mind for us. We need him to show us what we ought to be. We need him to show us what is wrong with us, and where, to show us where we missed he road and how to come back to it. We are in this constant struggle between our best and our worst. We are our own worst enemies and if no one comes to our rescue, our worse selves will destroy our best selves. We need to be changed; and only God can change us. We need power.

Styling that's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars!

The styling spotlight blazes down on a low-cost car this year—for the Motoramic Chevrolet is stealing the show from the high-priced cars with its subtle sweep of line, the brilliant sophistication of its European-type grille, the bold rake of its deep-curved windshield.

And there's even more excitement in the way it drives—the velvety comfort of Glide-Ride front suspension and outrigger rear springs, the handling ease of Ball-Race steering, the flashing performance of the new 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire V8" engine or the two new "Blue-Flame" 6's. All this—plus the extra-cost options of Powerglide or Overdrive and a full range of power assists. Try a 1955 Chevrolet—now—and you'll know why it is stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars.

The evangelistic meeting at the church of Christ came to great close Sunday night, January 16. Fine interest and a great Christian Spirit was at a high level throughout the entire two weeks. Nightly crowds averaged from a low attendance of 59 to a high of 181. Preaching on the theme of "Today's Need of a World Saviour" was on such a high spiritual plane that the Lord was able to add 19 precious souls to His church by baptism (Immersion--Rom. 6:4, 5).

Next Sunday evening, January 23, the Men and Women will take charge of the evening service. Will every Bible Class please respond in attendance as well as they did last Sunday night when the Loyal Gleaners Bible Class sponsored the service. Attendance at that service was 69. We should make it a hundred at least.

The Loyal Gleaners Class will meet on Friday night at the parsonage in St. Joe for their monthly meeting. All the old and new members of the class are urged to be present.

On Sunday night, January 30, the Fifth Sunday Rally of the St. Joe, Coburn Corners churches will meet with the Newville church to continue the fine fellowship that was started last summer in the "Under the Stars" services held in Alton Park. Bro. Lee Doty, Dean of Great Lakes Bible College, will be the speaker. The girls trio will provide the special music. 214 people attended the last meeting which was held in St. Joe on October 31, 1954. We should exceed that attendance at this meeting.

School Study Commission Reports

Local school units which face a tough tax problem in the financing of new school houses should be able to obtain standardized plans for "reasonably priced school construction" from the state, the Indiana Study Commission on Intergovernmental Relations declared this week as a part of its 160-page report.

"A very wide range of construction costs is found for recently built elementary schools with roughly comparable facilities," ranging from less than $15,000 per classroom to more than $50,000 per classroom, with an average construction cost of $30,000, the Commission, created by Governor George Craig, and headed by Earl B. Pulse, of Columbus, found in its studies.

"It appeared that in many cases these differences in costs were without any specific reasons other than individual variances in desires and available money," the Commission declared.

The education section of the Commission's report pointed out that the Superintendent of Public Instruction estimates that in the next five years there will be a 29 per cent increase in enrollment in the first six grades.

"There is a present need for 3,000 more classrooms, and that need will increase by $5,000 in the next five years, making a total of 8,000," the Commission reported.

"The Superintendent's office states the monetary need to be approximately $234 million. This is based on the average construction cost of approximately $30,000 per classroom. It is this figure to which the Committee wishes to direct attention."

As a result of these findings, the Commission recommended that "the State make available standardized plans for reasonably priced school construction. These plans should be available to all school units, and schools constructed with any form of state assistance should either conform to these plans or the school unit's own plan should provide a building at comparable costs.

"The Commission need not be concerned with those areas wherein local units have, or are willing to raise locally, sufficient funds for needed school construction; nor need it be concerned with cost of such construction.

"But it hopes in the recommendation to present at least a partial solution where a local school unit has insufficient funds for school construction or where it appeals to the State for assistance.

"There are at the present time no provisions for State grant-in-aid for school construction, although the State may now make construction loans to Local units under certain circumstances. It is possible that the Legislature will be asked to provide some type of grant-in-aid for school construction, and it may be asked to relax the present loan requirements.

"A school built in the lowest range of unit cost -- whether of conventional or prefabricated construction -- will not necessarily be as attractive as a more expensive building, but it will provide safe and adequate elementary class rooms," the Commission reported.

DON'T GAMBLE WITH BRUCELLOSIS

A farmer can't afford to gamble with brucellosis. The odds are too great. Against the costs of a control program of blood testing, vaccinating and slaughtering, a farmer risks the health of every member of his family.

Brucellosis is primarily a disease of domestic animals which is transmitted to man. It is rarely, if ever, transmitted from one person to another. A person usually becomes infected by drinking contaminated milk or by handling infected animals.

Many cities are now requiring that all milk being used as fluid milk or milk products be produced from herds free of brucellosis. In cattle, the control of brucellosis depends on continuous blood testing with the slaughter of any reactors. Indiana has three recommended plans that a herd owner may follow to eradicate brucellosis. Briefly they are as follows:

A. Blood test all the cattle six months old or older, and dispose of the reactors, with or without the use of official calfhood vaccination.

B. Blood test with official vaccination and retain the reactors for not more than three years from the date the animals react to the brucellosis test.

C. Provide for calfhood vaccination without testing.

This and other information is contained in Purdue University Extension Bulletin 400, "Don't Gamble With Brucellosis," which is available thru the county agent or the Agricultural Publications Office of Purdue at Lafayette.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, Merry Christmas and Happy New Year all over again. We should have had this weather some time ago to get us into the spirit of things.

But—that's the way it goes.

When I stopped in the barbershop a couple of weeks ago, Les was giving Dairyman Kline a trimming when that little joke on the Meeks's (in this column a few weeks ago) popped into the conversation. Les said the Mrs. was upset and kinda mad at me for putting it in the paper. I thought she was mad because the story said she had a feller calling on her while hubby was workin' until Les said, "Yeah, she was mad at first. She wanted to know who the kid was that followed him over there!"

Golly, here I thought you readers would know when I was taking jokes and sticking somebody's name in just for a laugh. You can tell when the stories are true—can'tcha??

Here's one that really happened and I guess Norman Morr has been waiting for months to see it in print.

This happened last summer when Russell Walter called from Edgerton and said that he had distributed his truckload of milk and still needed more to complete his rounds. Norman took off like a big bird and went to Edgerton. He had another supply of milk and looked and looked for Russell's truck but couldn't find it anywhere in the vicinity.

He called back to the dairy and asked what happened to Russell.

"Where are you?"

"In Edgerton," was the reply.

"Edgerton, what?"

"Edgerton, Ohio."

"Oh. Russell's in Edgerton, Indiana."

In case "Some Riverdale High School People" (obviously from St. Joe) are wondering why their letter wasn't published last week, it's because there were some pret-t-y rash statements made which would have created more fuss and bother. And besides, I'd want to be sure of them before saying them.

Lew Walter also sent a letter which I appreciated. His thoughts were of a general nature running from the value of the Sunday School lesson in this paper to what he heard when he was in a barbershop to the recent reminder of the good old days when he worked here and we stirred up another fuss.

Didja ever notice when these zero-temperature cold spells come along how pleased the look on the faces of Olen Waltz, Roy Reidenbach and Maury Hollabaugh?

Cold, Snow Closes School

Hoosiers in this section of the state are finally getting a good taste of what the old-timers refer to as a good old fashioned winter.

After a somewhat disappointing Christmas and New Year season (as far as snow on the ground is concerned) the white flakes began falling early this week and by Wednesday night had placed a nice blanket over the countryside.

With the late-arriving snow came temperatures that drove the thermometer down close to the zero mark Wednesday morning with the promise from the weatherman that the cold weather would be here for a few days at least.

With the snow drifting on county roads, the local school was forced to close Thursday and give students an unexpected vacation.

Though there has been quite a bit of snow in other portions of the state this winter, this corner of the state had been spared the wintery blasts that usually are encountered in Hoosierland.

With the colder weather of the past week or so, many of those of this area who enjoy ice skating have been taking advantage of frozen "Staman Lake." There have been people from other communities, also, who have availed themselves of the ice skating opportunity.

At any rate, though the winters begin as if they will be of the "lamb" variety, a spell of good cold weather is usually thrown in to remind us that — we hate to say it — spring is still a long way off.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation to everyone who was so thoughtful in sending us cards and flowers during our recent sorrow.

Comets Down Ashley, Fremont

The Riverdale Comets ran their number of wins in the 1954-55 campaign to ten over the past week end. They took a 51-45 contest from Ashley at the Waterloo gym on Friday evening and then won a low-scoring close thriller from the Steuben County champs from Fremont by a 43-40 score on Saturday night.

In Friday night's game the Ashley team used a zone defense during the first half to force the Comets to rely on some long shots—which dropped in. Riverdale led at the end of the first half 17-14 and scored only nine points in the second quarter to lead 26-20 at the half as Ashley scored but six.

Ashley switched to a man-to-man defense in the second half and Riverdale went ahead by nine at the three quarter mark, 39-30. At one time in the final quarter the local five gained a 13-point lead. Ashley pared that down to the 51-45 margin at the finish.

The preliminary went to the Ashley second team by a 42-31 score.

Saturday night's game at Fremont was as close as comfort would allow with the lead by either team never exceeding four points.

Riverdale led during most of the first quarter before the Eagles grabbed the lead at the quarter, 14-13. The lead went back and forth in the second period with the locals taking the half time lead, 25-21.

Fremont bounced back to outscore the Comets nine to four in the third stanza to get the three-quarter lead, 30-29.

With little over two minutes to go in the final quarter, the Comets gained the lead on a three-point play by Wilbur Lothamer. Fremont lost possession and the Comets stalled until one minute to go. Lothamer again drove for the bucket and was fouled. He made one of two foul shots to gain a two-point lead. When Fremont lost possession again and again, Lothamer drove in for lay-ups, was fouled and made a free throw each time. Ashley added two free throws in the last few seconds and Emenhiser scored on a free throw after the gun to make the three-point spread.

Do We Need A Marshal??

In the occupation of publishing a newspaper, it is not infrequent that the editor meets with various complaints from time to time concerning public matters which he may or may not be expected to air in future editions of the paper. There have been in recent weeks incidents which have caused some consideration for a request to the Town Board that a Town Marshal be appointed. It is not our purpose to particularly further that cause here, but rather to state a few of the facts which can be argued pro and con.

The incidents of which we speak are the small bits of vandalism that have occurred in this vicinity. The elevator was broken into, the Spencerville gym was broken into, a window at the local hardware was broken, a window of a residence was brokn, a trailer was pushed down a hill and upset. In addition to these, there is reported the theft of personal belongings at the local gym during a recent basketball game, belongings taken from a player's clothing in the locker room as he participated in the game. Not to be classed as vandalism, but still to be considered as undesirable, are the frequent exhibitions of reckless and speedy driving on the streets of the town. All of these things might or might not be curtailed by the hiring of a Town Marshal. You are to decide.

Some who passively oppose the idea of a local law enforcement officer point to the past when such a person was given a hard time through pre-arranged disturbances at either end of the town to keep him coming and going. These are laughed at now, just as some of the present shenanigans will be laughed at in the future. But there is a first time for everything and someone MIGHT get hurt. There is a difference between practical jokes and just plain destruction for destruction sake. Sometimes it is difficult, however, to determine where the line must be drawn between these "jokes" and disrespectful destruction of property.

If anyone is to take the blame for the present situation, it is "we, the people." Since most of the trouble has been of the non-profitable variety, we assume that it is the younger generation causing the disturbances, perhaps just to "blow off steam" in such a manner. If this is so, then parents are to shoulder the bulk of the blame for not being as diligent as they might have been in the teaching of right and wrong. Most of us KNOW right from wrong - it is the PRACTICE of our knowledge, or the lack of it, that causes the trouble.

It will do no good to blame someone else for the problems we face. Finding the solution is the important thing. If outward discussion will not bring an improvement in the behaviour of ALL people, whether in the affairs of our town or any other, then it is necessary to resort to law enforcement.

That brings up the problem of finding a person suited for the job - and finding the finances to do the job.

Ours is an open mind on the subject. We much prefer being able to boast of not requiring law enforcement in our town. But...

The Town Board meets on the first Monday of each month. It would profit the community if interesed townspeople attend the next meeting to voice their views.

Ben Had Trouble, Too!

There have been so many weeks in the year dedicated to this or that cause or this or that profession that it has become a task to keep up with the times as far as knowing what week we happen to be observing. It took a nudge in the form of a front-page editorial in the Ashley-Hudson Times in the issue of January 20 to remind us that last week was "our" week. A footnote by publisher E. M. Borsodi pointed out that National Printing Week is observed during the week of Benjamin Franklin's birthday. (Janaury 17). Also presented were the views of Mr. Franklin on a subject close to the hearts of all editors.

It's tardy, perhaps, in view of recent happenings hereabouts. But we believe this quotation is quite appropriate at any time.

"AN APOLOGY FOR PRINTERS

by Benjamin Franklin, June 3-10, 1731

"Being frequently censur'd and condem'd by different Persons for printing Things which they say ought not to be printed, I have sometimes thought it might be necessary to make a standing Apology for myself, and to publish it once a Year, to be read upon all Occasions of that Nature. Much Business has hitherto hindered the Execution of this Design; but having very lately given extraordinary Offence by printing an Advertisement with a certain N. B. at the End of it, I find an Apology more particularly requisite at this Juncture, tho's it happens when I have not yet Leisure to write such a thing in its proper Form, and can only in a loose manner throw those Considerations together which should have been the substance of it.

"I request all who are angry with me on any Account of printing things they don't like, calmly consider these following Particulars.

"That the Opinions of Men are almost as various as their Faces, an Oservation general anough to become a common Proverb. So many Men so many Minds.

"That the Business of Printing has chiefly to do with Mens Opinions; most things that are printed tending to promote some, oppose others.

"That hence arises the peculiar Unhappiness of that Business, which other Callings are in now way liable to; they who follow Printing being scarce able to do anything in their way of getting a Living, which shall probably not give Offence to some, and perhaps to Many; whereas the Smith, the Shoemaker, the Carpenter, or the Man of many another Trade, may work indifferently for People of all Persuasions, without offending any of them: and the Merchant may buy and sell with Jews, Turks, Hereticks and Infidels of all sorts, and get Money by every one of them, without giving Offence to the most Orthodox, of any sort; or suffering the least Censure or Ill-will on the Account from any Man watever . . . .

"That it is unreasonable to imagine Printers approve of every thing they print, and to censure them on any particular thing accordingly; since in the way of their Business they print such a great variety of things opposite and contradictory. It is likewise as unreasonable what some assert, That Printers ought not to print any Thing but what they approve; since if all of that Business should make such a Resolution, and abide by it, an End would thereby be put to Free Writing, and the World would afterwards have nothing to read but what happen'd to be the Opinions of Printers.

"That if all Printers were determin'd not to print any thing till they were sure it would offend no body, there would be very ltle printed. . .

"I come now to the particular Case of the N. B. above mentioned, about which there has been more Clamour against me, than ever before on any other Account. —In the Hurry of other Business an Advertisement was brought to me to be printed; it signified that such a Ship lying at such a Wharff, would sail for the Barbadoes in which a Time, and that Freighters and Passengers might agree with the Captain at such a Place; so far what's common: But at the Bottom this odd Thing was added, N. B. No Sea-Hens nor Black Gowns will be admitted on any Terms. I printed it, and received my Money; and the Advertisement was stuck up around Town as usual. I had not so much Curiosity at that Time as to enquire the Meaning of it, nor did I in the least imagine it would give so much Offence. Several good Men are very angry with me on this Occasion; they are pleas'd to say I have too much Sense to do such things ignorantly; that if they were Printers they would not have done such a thing on any Consideration; that it could proceed from nothing but my abundant Malice against Religion and the Clergy; They therefore declare they will not take any more of my Papers, nor have any farther Dealings with me; but will hinder me of all the Custom they can. All this is very hard!

"I believe it had been better if I had refused to print the said Advertisement. However, 'tis done and cannot be revoked. I have only the following few Particulars to offer, some of them in my Behalf, by way of Mitigation, and some not so much to the purpose; but I desire none of them may be read when the reader is not in a very good Humour.

"That I really did it without the least Malice, and imagin'd the N. B. was placed there only to make the Advertisement star'd at, and more generally read.

"That I never saw the word Sea-Hens before in my Life; nor have I yet ask'd the meaning of it; and tho's I had certainly known that Black Gowns in the Place signified the Clergy of the Church of England, yet I have that confidence in the generous good Temper of such of them as I know, to be well satisfied such a trifling mention of their Habit gives them no Disturbance.

"That most of the Clergy in this and the neighboring Provinces, are my Customers, and some of them my very good friends; and I must be malicious indeed, or very stupid, to print this Thing for a small Profit, if I had thought it would give them just Cause for Offence . . .

"That I got Five Shillings by it.

"That none who are angry with me would have given me so much to let it alone . . .

"And lastly, that I have printed above a Thousand Advertisements which made not the least mention of Sea-Hens or Black Gowns; and this being the first Offence, I have the more Reason to expect Forgiveness.

"I consider the Variety of Humours among Men and despair of pleasing every Body; yet I shall not therefore leave off Printing. I shall continue my Business: I shall not burn my Press and melt my Letters."

Communism and materialistic capitalism are both sisters under the skin. Mind you, I say, materialisic capitalism, the kind that subordinates all human and divine values to the making of a profit. It doesn't exist in this country as a system, but it still exists as an attitude of mind in many places.

It does not oppose Communism, because Communism negates God and the human soul. It opposes Communism because it conceives Communism as only a rough competitor in the sum total of godless philosophies. It is not against Communism because it is atheistic and therefore anti-freedom. It opposes Communism only because Communism may in turn steal from it what it has stolen from someone else. I have never been impressed by the anti-Communist arguments of materialistic capitalists that materialistic capitalism can provide more bathtubs per hundred population than Communism. An atheist in a bathtub is no more joy to his Creator than one that needs a bath.

There was a time in this country when purely materialistic capitalism may have had a temporary chance of catching on, but it ran smack up against the inherently religious conscience of the great mass of Americans who had a birthright that they were not inclined to sell: namely, faith in God as the creator of Man and as the source of all essential rights.

In my opinion, the election and re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt was a great political catastrophe in the history of this country and the world, but he was the beneficiary of a disturbed feeling on the part of the American people that materialistic capitalism was forgetting that the end of any economical and political system must always be: First God, then Man. The so-called New Deal was a fallacious political and economic philosophy, but it had an ephemeral appeal to the American people, much as an odd health cult may appeal to a sick person who has been to all the reputable physicians without receiving either help or sympathy.

Evils tend to create evils, and excesses tend to breed excesses. Evils and excesses on the part of employers tended in many cases to create evils and excesses on the part of workers. Today in our frequent capital-labor disputes, we have little of the violent bloodshed that was common in such disputes just several decades past. We are a long way from any sort of perfection, but we do show signs of not only a growing maturity but a growing recognition of the fact that Man is not a mere statistical unit but a part of the divine tree.

If and when Communism is going to be stopped over the world, it is not going to be stopped by other atheistic, materialistic men calling themselves anti-Communists out of self-interest, but by those who are against atheism and materialism wherever they find it—whether under their noses or thousands of miles away. And I am quite sure that many persons now calling themselves anti-Communists, out of self-interest, would willingly make a deal with the Communists when the chips are down, if self-interest again seems to dictate such a deal.

The materialistic capitalist is a Communist turned inside out. He is no dependable ally in the fight against godless Communism. When the pressure is on, he will become a collaborator.

—"Good Evening," Clifford B. Ward

Millions of the world's people have accepted the proposition: "You can get something for nothing." Logic, science, theology and even the simplest human intuitions and biological reflexes reject the proposition as false. Yet in the span of 35 years the promise of something for nothing has brought about the enslavement of nearly half the people on earth. And it has made serious inroads upon the moral and intellectual strength of every nation outside the Iron Curtain, including our own.

When we get down to brass tacks the promise of something for nothing is both the core and the substance of Socialism—all hues and forms and degrees of Socialism. It led a majority of British citizens to choose a Soicalist government in 1945, and it kept Russia's millions docile and expectant while Lenin and his little band of cutthroat revolutionaries took over and established the Soviet dictatorship in 1917. It is a tool which political demagogues have used throughout history to become tyrants and gain control of people.

A good example of the lure of "something for nothing" and its results are given us in the so-called British "experiment." Prior to 1945 the British Socialists who controlled the Labor Party called themselves humanitarians, not Socialists. They didn't speak of Socialism; they spoke of a "Welfare State." Taking from the successful people through various governmental manipulations, and giving to the less successful—that was the core of the social philosophy and operational program of the Labor-Socialist politicians who labeled themselves variously as reformers, liberals, progressives, humanitarians.

One of the most idealistic and hopeful of the Labor Party leaders when the proposition of "something for nothing" was sold to a majority of England's voters in 1945 was Iyor Thomas, Labor Party member of Parliament. After the Labor-Socialist government took over he began to see the true aspects of Socialism in practice. Deeply alarmed, he wrote a book, "The Socialist Tragedy," (McMillan Company, New York). It is one of the truly important books of our times.

On the Oklahoma farm where I learned some basic truths, as a boy, my dad used to say, "Always look a gift horse in the mouth," thus reversing the old saw. He meant that a close examination of "something for nothing" always is in order. By looking a horse "in the mouth" you determine his age—and old horses eat more than they are worth; they become "nothing for something." In the more elegant language of statescraft, but quite clearly nevertheless, Ivor Thomas writes about the realities of Socialism's promise of "something for nothing."

"We now have seen enough of socialism in practice," he writes, "to know that the picture is an illusion" Then he warns: "The socialist age, if it comes about, will not bring an end of oppression of man by man, of class by class, and of nation by nation, but will substitute new oppressors for old, man for man, class for class, nation for nation. The socialist age, if it comes about, will not place greater economic resources in the hands of man, but will reduce the wealth of nations well below its present level, and perhaps take us back to the material poverty of the middle ages.

"The socialist age, if it comes about, will not be an age of superior morality, but will lead to a general lowering of ethical standards. The socialst age, if it comes about, will not free the energies of man from physical work, but will compel him to work harder for a lower standard of living; and instead of being liberated for the pursuit of the arts and sciences he will find his life planned, ordered, regulated and controlled to an extent which will kill any flowering of the spirit. What was thought to be a vision turns out to be a nightmare."

Mr. T. E. Haberkorn
Editor, The St. Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Even though I am no longer living in Spencerville, I am very much interested in the affairs going on. I am able to keep up quite well with the news through our copies of the St. Joe News.

The Spencerville-St. Joe consolidation interested me greatly as does the current controversy over a name for the school.

I was 100 percent for consolidation. There are many good examples of this move, Missiniwa being one. As a result of consolidation the school should be able to afford good teachers, offer a bigger and better curriculum, and having more pupils would just make it more interesting and fun.

I would suggest that all the feuding, childish acting adults grow up, bury the hatchet and be thankful that the school is progressing.

Of course we are all proud of our own home towns, but let's go along with the times. Accept what is being done, and let the pupils themselves decide where they want to go to school; is the policy we should follow. Someday they will proudly boast of their school as we do as past graduates of St. Joe and Spencerville.

If the school is to be named Riverdale, it will be no time until it is known for all the great things "Riverdale" has done. They have a wonderful start.

Sincerely,
R. M. Hafner, D.V.M.

Letter to the Editor of the St. Joe News:

Have been reading with interest the recent letters on the "Riverdale" question. Would like to compliment Mr. George Beams on his letter last week. Yes, we have a great community H.S.B.B. team as evidenced by the turnouts at the games, and around here we know where "Riverdale" is located, but outside of ourselves and our competitors, not many know just how good we are. In the past St. Joe and Spencerville H.S. ball games were reported to Ft. Wayne Radio stations as soon as completed but now with Waterloo and Ft. Wayne TV and Radio stations accessible, those not in attendance must wait until the next morning to get the results. Why?

The Riverdale - Hicksville game was the only one not reported in the 6-county area on Radio and TV at the night scores given. Doesn't our school and team deserve a little publicity by our school officials?

Think it over.

Present State Budget Means New Or Higher Taxes

Adoption of the $669,700,000 state budget for the next two years as submitted to the current Indiana Legislature "will require the State Legislature in 1957 either to adopt a major new tax or to adjust upward substantially the rates of existing taxes," according to Jack E. Reich, executive vice-president of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce.

"There must be no misunderstanding about this situation," Mr. Reich said in the foreword to a new State Chamber research publication on state finances now being distributed to legislators and state chamber members.

Meanwhile, the House ways and means committee, headed by Rep. Laurence D. Baker (R), Kendallville, was attempting to whittle down the record-high budget before transmitting it to the floor of the House. The Senate finance committee under the chairmanship of Senator Charles M. Maddox (R), Otterbein, also was interviewing state agency heads on proposed expenditures, preparatory to receiving the budget bills after they have been acted upon by the House.

"Recommended appropriations for expenditures during the 1955-57 biennium from the state general fund," Mr. Reich said, "would exceed revenues to the fund by $58,222,000, and the unencumbered balance in the fund would be reduced from $81,666,000 on July 1, 1954 to $18,430,000 on June 30, 1957."

Commenting on the proposal that more than $21,000,000 remaining in the World War II bonus fund be transferred to the general fund to help make up the deficit, Mr. Reich said there is "no positive assurance" that the General Assembly will follow this suggestion and "even if followed it will serve only as a palliative and will not materially change the seriousness of the fiscal problem with which the state will be confronted in event the proposed expenditure budget is adopted and revenues correspond closely to the genarily realistic estimates that have been made."

Recognition must be given, he said, to the fact that the State Budget Committee already has pared some $115,000,000 from requests filed with it by various state agencies, and that "Indiana is a growing state and growth obviously entails some increase in governmental expense." But referring to the many "laudable objectives" in the proposed budget, he said that "questions certainly can be raised regarding the advisability of attempting to accomplish all of them in their entirety in one biennial period."

"We are told," he said, "that if Indiana is to keep its proportionate place in the employment picture, there must be created in our state an average of 26,000 new jobs annually during the next 20 years. Thus, it becomes vitally important that we retain in Indiana a state and local tax structure that will not place Indiana industry at a competitive disadvantage with industry in other states, thereby resulting in a loss of job opportunities."

The State Chamber analysis showed that during the most recent fiscal year which ended last June 30, excluding unemployment compensation taxes and benefits, total state government receipts amounted to $327,900,000 and expenditures to $322,000,000.

93% Oppose EST Farm Poll Shows

Ninety-three percent of Indiana's rural citizens prefer year-round Central Standard Time, according to a survey recently completed by The Indiana Farmers Guide. Only 4.3 percent of the 2,267 ballots received in the mail poll conducted by the semi-monthly state farm magazine favored a change to Eastern Standard Time.

In a report to members of the Indiana General Assembly, Editor Fred I. Jones disclosed that 93.9 percent of farm residents and 85.4 percent of town dwellers replying in the poll wanted to remain on CST all year. Because of the nature of the magazine's circulation, 89.7 percent of the ballots came from farm families.

Besides the votes for CST or EST, 2.1 percent of the ballots cast were for CST time in winter and fast time in summer. Six-tenths of one percent favored the same time all year with no preference between Central and Eastern time.

Voters were asked to indicate how many members of their families felt the same way about the time situation. Replies represented a total of 8,399 adults, based upon this question, or an average of 3.7 per family.

More than 250 individual letters accompanied the ballots, stating strong reasons for time preference. Interference with farm work schedules, the effect on school children, a suggestion that city work hours be changed rather than clocks, criticism of apparent law violation and no need for any change were major reasons given for opposition to permanent EST or fast time.

Ninety-one of Indiana's 92 counties were represented in the poll, all of them furnishing votes for CST. Only Ohio County was not represented. Votes for EST came from 50 counties, mostly north and east, and readers from 25 counties in the same areas wanted winter CST and summer fast time. No preference but same time votes came from 13 scattered counties.

Complete poll results will appear in the February 1 issue of The Farmers Guide.

Prof. Lee Doty, Dean of the Great Lakes Bible College, is our speaker and the Girls Trio of the College will provide special music. An offering for the college will be received. The next rally will be at Coburn Corners church on May 29.

Our thanks go to the men and women for providing the program for the services last Sunday night. At least 60 people were present to lend inspiration to the service. The Young People will sponsor the service on February 6 at 7:30 p.m. The Junior Department will present the program for February 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Driver's Tax Tips

As a car owner you're allowed various deductions if you figure your federal income tax on a "long form" return, the Chicago Motor Club has reminded motorists.

Items deductible by all motorists, whether or not they use their autos for business purposes, include:

State auto license fee.
State gasoline tax.
Personal property tax.
Driver's license fee.
City vehicle tax.

Interest on auto loans, if separately stated or determinable; or finance or carrying charges up to 6 per cent of the average unpaid monthly balance for the tax year, on installment purchase contracts.

Casualty losses, such as collision damage not due to willful negligence, fire damage, and theft -- to the extent not reimbursed by insurance.

In Illinois the state gasoline tax is 5 cents a gallon. Thus, if you travel 150 miles each week and get 15 miles to the gallon, you may deduct the 50 cents tax you pay on every 10 gallons of gasoline. In Indiana, the tax is 4 cents a gallon. Incidentally, the driver's license fee in Indiana is $1,25.

If you use your car in business, you also may include a proportionate share of the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, garage rent, depreciation and other necessary operation and upkeep items. However, the Club added, if you drive for an employer, you may deduct these expenses only if you are not otherwise compensated for them.

The cost of driving to and from your job is not deductible. But using your auto to look after income-producing property entitles you to deduct a proportionate part of the various operational expenses from such income.

THE GRACE OF GOD

Lesson for February 6, 1955

The "grace of God," as the New Testament uses the word, means at least two things. The most common meaning is the undeserved favor of God. It is almost the same meaning as the love of God, except that the word "grace" carries in itself the idea of something not earned, not deserved, but given out of sheer generosity. The other meaning (found for instance in Titus 2:11) includes still the idea of unearned favor, but it goes beyond this. The grace of God is not only an attitude of God toward men, it is a power bestowed by God, on men. One modern writer has truly said that the Grace of God is almost another word for the Holy Spirit, for what the Spirit does in man, this the Grace of God does also.

Saved By Grace

We cannot pretend to understand the grace of God. It is not too high for us to experience, but it is too high for us to understand, because God can never be crammed into any human brain. But it is extremely important to try to understand what the New Testament writers mean when they speak of God's grace, for here we are at the very heart of things, here religion stops being something we talk about and becomes something that takes hold of us. If it is true that every man is a sinner, if it is true that we are all headed in the wrong direction if we are left to ourselves, if it is true as Paul said that "the good that I would, I do not, and the evil that I would not, that I do," if it is true that only God can help us untangle ourselves, then how are we going to persuade God to do this? How can we get God on our side? What do we do to win him over? Man's desperate answers to this question have given rise to all the religions but one. Men have made painful sacrifices, torn themselves with knives, offered innumerable animals on many altars, dedicated great fortunes, devised and obeyed a multitude of difficult laws, all to win or earn God's favor. IT CANNOT BE DONE. The grace of God is not for sale. The one religion which is an exception to all the others is the religion of the New Testament. Saint Paul puts the whole truth into one single simple sentence: IT IS BY GRACE YOU HAVE BEEN SAVED.

God Makes the First Move

God comes down to us; we do not climb to him. God comes to find us; we could never find him otherwise. The "grace of God" means that without our earning it, without our deserving it, God already loves us. Any man who thinks he deserves the love of God is a most colossal monument of conceit. Paul, it must be remembered, was not speaking as a professor examining the grace of God from the outside. He was speaking as a man who had experienced that grace and could talk about it from the inside. So did John in his letter (I John 4:10). It has sometimes been supposed that God had no grace in his heart at all, for this miserable race of stupid and selfish people; but that Jesus somehow made God sorry for mankind and by his sacrifice induced God to change his mind and save us. Nothing could be more opposite to New Testament truth. All that Christ did for us, including his own self-sacrifice on the cross, was not a cause of God's grace but a result. Christ did not come and so cause God to love us; God loved us and so sent his Son "to be the propitiation for our sins." In the war between man and God it is God who makes the first move toward peace.

You Cannot Take God's Grace And Leave It Too

A good TV program may bring education to all men; but not all men will take it. So though Paul says God's grace brings salvation to all men, some men are plainly not saved. Some men learn the humility that it takes to accept God's free gifts. Other men as it were take the free grace of God but promptly leave it again. The grace of God never operates in a vacuum. God never, so to speak, scatters it around not caring what people do with it or about it. The grace of God is not something for a warm emotional moment, something to look back on all one's life. It is not like a ray of sunlight recalled in an arctic winter. The grace of God is not an abstract something, a mere doctrine in theology.

ST. JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The St. Joe Valley Club met at the home of Mrs. Edna Amstutz January 21, 1955.

The meeting was called to order by the retiring president, Mrs. Mable Tustison.

The club creed was repeated and the club song was sung, after which all prayed the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Mrs. Tustison then presented Mrs. C. O. Krise, former state and county president and a friend of long standing to most of the club members, as the installing officer.

Mrs. Krise used the rose ceremony installing as president for 1955 Mrs. Edna Kaufman, vice president Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick, secretary Mrs. Violette Kline, treasurer Mrs. Laura Washler. Mrs. Tustison presented gifts to Mrs. Krise in appreciation of her services as installing officer and to her vice-president, Mrs. Doris Yeiser, for her help in attending county meetings and presiding at club when Mrs. Tustison was unable to attend.

Mrs. Kaufman then took charge and started her work as president by asking the fullest cooperation of all club members. Routine business of the club was disposed of and Mrs. Kaufmann appointed a goal committee who are: Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick, Mrs. Clara Foltz and Mrs. Violette Kline.

History of the song of the month was read by the chorister, Elizabeth Shull, and all joined in singing the song.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, roll call was answered by twenty-five members, the response being "A country I would like to visit." Four children were present and three guests, Mrs. Krise, Mrs. Goldie Ringle of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Audrey Walters, the latter being enrolled as a member.

The lesson on "Color in Action" was very ably given by Mrs. Elizabeth Shull and Mrs. Doris Yeiser.

Mrs. Mable Tustison conducted a song fest during the social hour of which she had charge. "Pep" songs and rounds were sung by divided groups.

Mrs. Amstutz assisted by her committee, Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley and Mrs. Katie Storer, served refreshments of coffee, salad and assorted topped crackers.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Louise Church.

Tentative goals set up for 1955 will be:

1. Encourage the art of home making.

2. Stress regular attendance at club - if members profit by attending, they lose by not attending.

3. Cultivate cheer and friendliness - friends are more important than money - a smile is easier made than a frown.

4. Look for things in our club that merit praise, then give it.

5. Help all civic projects for the betterment of our community, specifically 4-H club work and school activities.

It has been called to the club's attention that there are ladies in Concord Township who wish to become members of a Home Demonstration Club. They can consider this an invitation to join the St. Joe Valley Club. An open membership has always been maintained. Members' homes have always been found adequate and pleasant meeting places. The membership is made up of all age groups and this has been found to be stimulating and beneficial. The experience of the older members is helpful to the younger, the eternal optimism and buoyance of youth are likewise an inspiration to the older members, giving them a youthful v' wpoint and outlook.

The club is not interested in sponsoring another club, as has been suggested. If you need a home demonstration club, it needs you, and you are welcome to the St. Joe Valley Club. Contact the membership committee or any club member.

The project and finance committee, with the president, of the Riverdale P.T.A. got the "ball rolling" Tuesday evening when they met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sible to formulate plans and appoint committees for the approaching annual carnival and ham supper.

The big event will be held this year on Saturday, February 19, in the Spencerville gym.

The project of the organization for this year is assistance to the band in acquiring band uniforms. The proceeds from the carnival and supper will be turned over to the band for that purpose.

The evening will begin with the serving of a ham supper. Mrs. Raymond Pratt is chairman of that portion of the activity. There will also be the various booths and concessions as in past years. Included will be such attractions as the Hat Shop, Bean Bag Toss, Fish Ponds, Auction, Homemade Ice Cream Stand, Bingo, Ring-A-Duck, Kangaroo Court and others.

Ticket sales will be in the hands of the students with a contest in progress. The boy and girl in the upper grades who sell the most tickets to the supper will each receive a wrist watch.

Parents will be solicited for donations of pies or cakes for the supper and other articles for the auction.

Leo Schendel Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Leo August Schendel, 62, died enroute to the Sanders Hospital at 12:45 a.m. Saturday morning. He suffered a sudden heart attack at approximately 11 p.m. Friday at his home. Though ailing for several months, he had continued his duties as station agent in St. Joe for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Born at Mt. Hope, Wisconsin, April 10, 1892, Mr. Schendel was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. August Schendel.

He had resided in St. Joe for the past twelve years.

Mr. Schendel had been suffering from a heart condition for some time, but did not discontinue his activity as station agent nor as a member of the church and organizations in St. Joe. He was a member of the St. Joe-Spencerville Lions Club, the local American Legion Post and the St. Joe Church of Christ.

Friday forenoon he had suffered some pain and discomfort, but returned to his work following the noon hour. After work he made a trip to Fort Wayne for a lesson on the violin ,a practice he diligently followed since beginning the study of music some three years ago. He again experienced temporary discomfort before making the trip home. He apparently felt well that evening before suffering the fatal attack.

Mrs. Melba Chapman was summoned for assistance during the wait for the ambulance. Despite the aid of stimulants, his heart was unable to stand the strain and Mr. Schendel died on the way to the hospital.

Services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at the St. Joe Church of Christ at 2 p. m. Donald Foust officiated and burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Laura Schendel; four sons, Leroy Schendel in the army at Tokyo, Melvin Schendel of Garrett, Harry Schendel with the army in Germany and Elwood Savage of St. Joe; a daughter, Mrs. Loretta Musser of St. Joe; five grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Elsie Smith of St. Joe and Mrs. Eva Belau of Omaha, Nebraska.

Two Require First Aid At Fire

Two firemen of the St. Joe Volunteer Fire Department required first aid Saturday when they inhaled smoke and fumes while fighting a fire at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Funk in St. Joe. The two were Joe Walter and Joe Robinson. Oxygen was required to counteract the effects of the smoke from the blaze.

The alarm was turned in at approximately 11:50 a.m. when flames were found by Harvey Hull in an upstairs room. He had been called to give assistance in finding the cause of heavy smoke in the house by Mrs. Funk.

An indication of trouble was given that morning when plaster fell from the ceiling of a downstairs room. However, it was impossible at that time to find any cause of the occurrence and it wasn't until the appearance of smoke in the house and the further investigation that the fire was discovered. It appeared that the fire had started some time before discovery but could not break out into open flames because of several coverings of siding on the outside of the house plus the presence of insulation throughout the side walls, having a stifling effect on the fire.

The fire department had difficulty fighting the fire since they were hampered in finding the exact location. Heavy smoke furthered the difficulties and the above two firemen were victims of inhaling the smoke to the extent that the Auburn Fire Department was called to send oxygen equipment. The state police escorted the equipment to St. Joe to speed delivery.

The first hindrance to the local department came when the hydrant near the house was found to be frozen and it was necessary to run lines from a further distant hydrant. In the meantime, a bucket brigade was set up from the Hull residence carrying water to the burning house.

Damage to the property was mostly due to water and smoke. At one time there was reported some two inches of water on the upstairs floors and five inches on the lower floors.

Saturday's fire marked the first fire loss in the town of St. Joe for approximately five years. The last fire damage occurred at the home of Glen Kinsey.

Comets Split With Avilla, Churubusco

Avilla High School took advantage of some first half mistakes by the Riverdale Comets to hand them a 57-52 setback at the Waterloo gym last Friday evening.

The Panthers gained a first quarter lead of 17-9. Thereafter the locals tightened and pulled up to a one-point deficit at half time, 28-27.

In the third period, the Comets kept pace with the opposition and trailed at the quarter, this time by 41-39. Then Avilla outscored Riverdale in the final period and at one time held a nine-point lead. The Comets pressed and crept up to within three points in the final seconds. Emenhiser came down the floor for a shot but was called for charging. The two free throws were made to bring the final score to 57-52.

The prelim went also to Avilla, 35-32.

St. Joe Scouts To Have Scavenger Hunt Monday

The St. Joe Boy Scout Troop will enjoy a scavenger hunt at their next regular meeting next Monday night. Scoutmaster Bud Shockley has announced that the troop members should come dressed for the weather as their hunt will take in the out-of-doors.

Following the scavenger hunt, the boys will enjoy refreshments of chili, cake and cocoa at the Legion home.

Twenty boys were present at last Monday's meeting.

Spencerville Scouts Collect $75.55 For March Of Dimes

The solicitation of the Spencerville Boy Scout Troop Sunday night in Spencerville for the March of Dimes netted the fund a total of $75.55, Mrs. Charlotte Hudson, co-chairman of the Spencerville collection, announced Tuesday. Mrs. Lois Fisher also served as co-chairman.

Collections from the cannisters in the business houses amounted to $23.26. The Livewire Class of the Spencerville Methodist Sunday School contributed $5.00 and the Spencerville O.E.S also gave $5.00 to make the total collection for that community $108.81.

A contest was conducted for the Scout drive with the winners, who collected the most money, getting a flashlight. They were Donnie Butler and Larry Speaks.

A Life of Accomplishment

It is a sad but true fact that life's treasures are often lost before they are found.

The death of Leo Schendel proves an example.

Those who knew him in these years of his residence in St. Joe did not find an assuming person who pushed his way into the work which he enjoyed. He was not a boisterous man, yet had his own recognizable sense of humor, slow and perhaps dry, showing a personality that took life as it came. He did not force himself upon you, yet came into your life with the same slow, easy gait which characterized his walk. He did not seek greatness, yet found greatness in the hearts of many through his humility, gained, we suppose, through his devotion to his church and his God.

His membership in the Lions Club was an indication of his service to his fellow men. As secretary of that organization he bore the greatest responsibility for the club's functioning. He was not inclined to be a leader of the club. Rather, he performed as servant to those who became its leaders. As a member of the American Legion he again exhibited his service to his fellow men and his devotion to his country.

His presence was not confined, however, to the thoughts of the adults of the community. For we know of the times in the past when our offspring cavorted with his grandchildren around, and sometimes in, the station where he performed his daily tasks. Our boys have always had three "grandpas" in their lives, the third being . . . Grandpa Schendel. In his relationship with them, his actions were an example of patience.

It is said that he felt ill Friday morning but insisted on taking a trip for a lesson in pursuit of his hobby, the violin. Though not an accomplished musician, he anjoyed his music very much. We recall one occasion last summer when he indulged in a bit of flattery by asking our advice on some of the technical problems he faced in the art of music. Whether he gained from the conversation, we do not know. Perhaps the fruits were given us, for we saw in the words he spoke about music and his pursuit of music how much enjoyment he received from it.

He was admonished not to exert himself for that lesson last Friday, but insisted on keeping his appointment. He shouldn't have done it, we may think. But, knowing his nature, we are inclined to believe that his life meant more to him, measured in hours of achievement, than it would have meant otherwise, measured perhaps in years of comparative disability.

The words we have heard spoken since his death evidence the place he had gained in the hearts of his fellow men. We did not realize before how important to us had become this quiet, patient, friendly, unassuming and humble man.

Now we know.

Confusing - Not Amusing

There is something confusing about the consistency of our acts as a nation.

We have in the past few weeks been concerned, as a nation, about the imprisonment of several American servicemen who have been held by a force which represents the ogre about which we are so concerned—Communism.

Despite the injury to our national prestige which their imprisonment represents, reflected in the concern of the American people, we are advised by the administration to be calm, to hold back our indignation lest we cause ourselves to be cast into a conflict which we do not seek. In place of our natural impulse as a nation to assume the protection of our citizens, we are to rely upon the efforts of the United Nations, which itself, in effect, recognizes the citizenship of the individual only in relation to the physical location of that individual. The agreements which we have entered into in the U. N. cancel our rights as citizens of this nation if they conflict with provisions of treaties with other nations. This is the cause for the presentation of the Bricker Amendment last year in Congress. This amendement sought to protect the Constitution of the United States. It sought to prevent our existence under law by treaty. It was defeated.

Our present inaction in the case of the imprisoned American servicemen serves but to indicate that our administration is losing its belief in the Constitution. It appears to believe that the Constitution is a hindrance to our relations with other nations, relations of a peaceful nature.

In another instance we have the same administration giving assurance of assistance in the evacuation of Chinese Nationalists from Formosa, this assistance to those who oppose the same ogre mentioned before—Communism.

Now, here is what puzzles us. How does the administration differentiate between the danger involved in protecting our soldiers and the danger involved in protecting foreign soldiers—both of whom oppose the same ogre—Communism?

CULTIVATE THE MINOR ECSTACIES

Only a few people, and those few but infrequently, know great ecstacy, that state of being outside oneself and outside time, caught up in an overwhelming emotion. But there are minor ecstacies for all of us, however monotonous our days or cramped our lives. Something seen, something heard, something felt, flashes upon one with a bright freshness—and the heart, tired or sad or merely indifferent, stirs and lifts in answer.

I well remember the first minor ecstacy that I recognized and consciously put away in my mind, as a child hoards the birthday pearl to make a necklace. I was 15, and it was August at the seashore. One evening the western sky was filled with flame and molten gold, and gold and flame shone in all the moving facets of the water. The eastern sky was pearly; into it the moon rose, spilling pale silver over the gray-blue sea.

Even as I caught my breath at the lovely drama of the contrast, an airplane, a great silver bird more rare and wonderful then than now, came suddenly out of the heart of the sunset, sailed above the long, lonely beach, and flew deep into the moonlight. My young heart bounded against my ribs like a bird in a cage, and memory has held that scene for me in colors as bright and soft as those in which I first saw it. Ever since, that memory has been for me a yardstick; if what I see or hear makes me feel at all as that made me feel, then it is a minor ecstacy.

There have been countless others down the years: the fragrance of sun-warmed honeysuckle on stone walls; the flute passages in Beethoven's Fourth Symphony; the cold curve of the river in winter where it turns between purple wooded banks; shared laughter over nothing more than fundamental understanding; the whistle of a cardinal in the dark of a still February morning; the smell of wet wood and seaweed at a ferry wharf.

Once, when for long months sorrow had clamped tight my heart, it was a minor ecstacy that showed me that life might again hold joy for me. I woke in the morning to the sound, I thought, of rain on the porch roof, but when I opened my eyes I saw that it was not raindrops making that soft and playful patter but locust blossoms falling from the tree above. For a fleeting second my cramped and stiff heart knew again the happiness that is of the universe and not of itself and its possessions, and like Sara Teasdale, when in similar circumstances she heard the wood thrush through the dusk, "I caught life back against my breast, and kissed it, scars and all."

It is well to recognize and cherish such moments when they come; it is an added joy consciously to collect them, for a hoard of minor ecstacies brings more keen and lasting pleasure than all the autographs and little china jugs in the world. It costs but a notebook and the time it takes to jot down the few words that bring them vividly back to us when time has overlaid them in our minds with the dust of daily life.

Writing them down saves them for us. It reminds us in the blank periods that come to all that we have had these moments in the past and will have them again. "Things prized are enjoyed," wrote Thomas Traherne many years ago. Writing them down, treasuring them, not only makes our enjoyment keener, it makes us more aware of them, less likely to let them pass unnoticed through the sloth of indifference. It serves to polish up the lens through which we see the world about us.

Now when bleak winds from a hidden future go howling past our naked ears, when the familiar treasures that have kept our safe lives snug seem to be dimming and receding, a collection of minor ecstacies can be a source of joy, secret, inviolable, inexhaustible.

Fragments of beauty and truth lie in every path. They need only the seeing eye and the receptive spirit to become the stuff of authentic minor ecstacies which can light the gray stretches of our lives like faint but unmistakable stars.

Independent Netters Have 10-3 Record

A group of young men of the community have again been sponsoring themselves in independent basketball activity this winter and have run up an impressive ten-won three-lost record.

Howard McMaken has been filling the managing, coaching and booking jobs for the team until his induction into military service last week. Also going to military service with McMaken were Francis Dulle and Don Walters who were members of the team.

With McMaken now lost to the team, Kenny Walters has taken over the booking job.

The team roster includes the names of Howard McMaken, Don Walters, Kenny Walters, Sammy Morr, Gene Diedrich, Wayne Surfus, Gene Culbertson (now in service), Jim Kinsey, Buck Ritenour, Bob Dragoo, Price Brookfield, Hal Elzea, Francis Dulle, Mel Corbin, Bob Richmond and Jack Hughes.

The St. Joe team opened the season by dropping a 76-49 decision to Bob Hoover's Spencerville five. Four straight victories followed before the Spencerville team again downed St. Joe 64-58. The only other loss was at the hands of Hicksville, 77-58, a loss later avenged by a 69-45 score.

The games and scores are as follows:

Spencerville 76, St. Joe 49.
St. Joe 85, Garrett 68.
St. Joe 78, Garrett 49.
St. Joe 73, Butler 68.
St. Joe 113, Hamilton 46.

St. Joe 73, Hamilton 29.

St. Joe 69, Hicksville 45.
St. Joe 60, Ashley 58.
St. Joe 59, Leo 58.
St. Joe 67, Angola 46.

Scoring in the games was as follows (the totals don't always jibe with the individual scoring figures, in which case we assume the scorer got so excited she forgot to mark one up here and there for the boys).

Devotional Reading: Romans 8:1-11.

THE CLOSEST BOND
Lesson for February 13, 1955

"What do you mean by conversion?" said a business man to a preacher. "You are always talking about it. I know what conversion means in my business—I had to convert a plant from war time to peace time production. But what's conversion in religion?

If the minister were smart, he would take up the business man's own illustration. Conversion in the personal life is just what it is in a factory, a change of the personal life, a re-tooling, turning out something different from what used to be turned out. Before conversion a man may be, so to speak, in a state of war with himself, with his fellow men and even with God. After conversion he has peace of conscience, he lives at peace within and without.

Born Again

The word "conversion" is used in different Christian circles to mean somewhat different things, or to be more exact, the word as some use it covers a long period of time, while with others it refers to one instant only. That is, "Conversion" as Christians use the word can mean a long, indeed life-long process of change, or it can mean the very start of that long process. Now one of the favorite Bible expressions to describe the beginning of the new life is "turn." It is as simple as that. Anybody who ever drove a car or sailed a boat, rode a mule or even walked, knows what turning is. Children know it. You are headed in one direction and then you head in another. That's what conversion is. You are headed down the devil's road and then you turn off on to God's road—and they do not end at the same destination! But of course there is something that happens on the inside that makes the traveler want to turn; and this happening-on-the-inside is what we call the New Birth. God brings the seed of the new life but we have to take over from there. The New Birth is God's part, conversion—turning—is our part, of the new life in Christ.

Sign of Life

No farmer can create seeds, no scientific agronomist can put life into seed that is dead. But the farmer has to put the seed into the ground, he has to keep the weeds out, he has to do whatever that particular crop needs to nurse it along till harvest time. How does he know that the seed is alive? Only one way to tell, the farmer would say. Does it come up? Does it grow? So in the Christian life, no one can look directly into a human heart and say, "Here is new life." But a truly converted live Christian can be known by the signs of life. The jailer at Philippi described in Acts asked, "What must I do to be saved?" and was told, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." No one could see him believing. No camera has yet been invented that will photograph the action of the human spirit or the Divine Spirit. But between midnight and morning there in the jail house that jailer gave good evidence that he had really believed, and that the Holy Spirit had really begun to change the direction of his life. Before midnight, he had been a hard cruel man. Now we see him trying to undo the harm he has done. He unselfishly shares what he has, he is baptized as a sign of his new life, he is a happy man.

Everything New

One of the points most often brought up by critics of Christianity from the outside is that Christians seem not to be different from any one else, or not different enough to matter. There is a good deal of truth behind this. All churches have their share—some congregations seem to have more than their share—of members who have never been converted. Their lives are in the old worn-out pattern of the world, there is nothing new and vital and different about them. Let us come down to brass tacks. What is there that ought to be and will be NEW in a Christian's life? Certainly the center of his life will be different. What Paul calls the "old man" asks invariably about anything he does, "What's in it for me? How will this help me to get ahead of other people?" But the "new man in Christ" learns to ask, "Is this what Christ would do?" The learning sometimes comes hard, but it brings the deepest happiness known to man.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted,

I received three issues of the St. Joe News today, and enjoyed the news. Enclosed is $2 to paid my subscription up for 1 yr.

It is a beautiful day here in the mountains which are covered with snow. The children are all having lots of fun making snow balls and snow man.

Last week I taught kindergarden. I just had girls last week. but this week I will be teaching the girls in the morning and the boys in the afternoon. Last week I had as many as 17 children last week. I love my work here very much.

There is one correction on the poem I sent in. It wasn't written by me, but was sent in by me. The author is unknown.

My address is:

Miss Bonnie Witt
c-o Mountain Mission School
Grundy, Va.

Sincerely yours,
Miss Bonnie Witt

Evans-Curie

Miss Joan Y. Curie and Mr. Robert E. Evans were united in marriage Saturday, January 29, at 2:00 p.m. at the Coburn's Corners Church of Christ in the presence of their immediate families.

Wilmer Ballou, minister of the church, performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by Delaney Votaw, minister of the Hicksville Church of Christ.

Parents of the couple of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett of near St. Joe and Mr. and Mrs. Don Evans of near Hicksville.

The church decorations consisted of two beautiful floral pieces.

A fifteen minute musicale was given by the groom's sisters, Mrs. Ray Maxwell, pianist, and Mrs. Berlin Ginter, soloist. The opening instrumental number, "With This Ring I Thee Wed," was followed by two vocal solos. "I Love You Truly" and "Because." The pianist then played "The Lord's Prayer" preceding the wedding march. Immediately following the closing prayer, while the wedding party was still kneeling, Mrs. Ginter sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride wore a street-length dress of white faille, a small veil covered hat of white and pastel flowers and white shoes. These were accented by pink pearl ear rings and necklace, gifts of the groom. She carried a white Bible on which rested two gorgeous orchids with flower trimmed white satin ribbon streamers and came down the aisle on the arm of her step-father, Mr. Leonard Jarrett.

Miss Janet Jarrett, who was her sister's only attendant, wore a dress of light blue faille, trimmed with saphires and matching saphire ear rings and necklace. She carried a bouquet of rose colored carnations and ferns.

Best man was Mr. Farrell Evans of Bryan, Ohio, brother of the groom. Ushers were Mr. Harold Curie and Mr. Carlton Curie, brothers of the bride.

The mothers wore navy blue crepe dresses with matching accessories and white carnation corsages.

Mrs. Minnie Gee and Mrs. Cora Curie, grandmothers of the bride, also wore white carnation corsages.

Serving at the reception at the home of the bride's parents were Mrs. A. J. Likes and Mrs. Dave Meyers, sisters of the groom, and Mrs. Farrell Evans and Mrs. Harold Curie.

The newlyweds, following a week end trip to Etna Green, Indiana, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lower, will be at home on the Evans farm, Hicksville, Ohio, Route 1.

The bride is a graduate of Concord Township High School at St. Joe and has recently completed two and one-half years at the Cincinnati Bible Seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio, where she also worked part time at the Ohio National Life Insurance Co. Between her schooling, she was employed by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., Ft. Wayne, for two years.

The groom is a graduate of the Hicksville High School. Since his graduation he has farmed his father's farm, with the exception of two years spent in the armed forces in the United States and Korea.

Services Held For John H. Coburn

A retired painter, John H. Coburn, age 71, died suddenly at the Jay Hart residence, four miles east of Spencerville at 3:30 p.m. Thursday of last week. Mr. Coburn had been affected with heart trouble.

He was born at the Coburn homestead, a mile east of St. Joe and had resided there until 11 years ago when he moved to the Jay Hart home. He was the son of the late Charles and Jane Allen Coburn.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. Wilmer Ballou, minister of the Coburntown Church of Christ, officiated at the services and burial was in Alton Cemetery.

Survivors include three brothers, Lester Coburn of St. Joe, Clay Coburn of Jackson, Michigan, and Harlan Coburn of Walpole, Mass.; and a sister, Mrs. Belle Keesler of Auburn.

ROADSIDE COUNCIL

The DeKalb County Roadside Council met in Auburn Janaury 24 with a large attendance.

Community singing was led by Iris Thomas of Ashley with Phyllis Parker at the piano. Mrs. Thomas also sang a solo. Devotions were presented by the Rev. Engle of Waterloo.

Mr. Paul Ankney of Waterloo was in charge of the program. He discussed the "Aims and Purpose of the Roadside Council." Mr. Ray Dilgard of Auburn told of his recent trip to the Holy Land.

During the business session with Mrs. Earl Hodges, president, in charge a general discussion was held concerning the marking of DeKalb County highways. Mrs. Albert Yoder and Roy Sponhower, chairman and co-chairman of the safety committee, reported that all organizations heard from thus far have been in favor of the project. They urged all others to respond as soon as possible. Any one knowing of a road hazard in the county which is not now properly marked was asked to bring it to the attention of the council.

ARLO WYNKOOP PASSES AWAY AT GARRETT

Arlo W. Wynkoop, prominent Jackson Township farmer, died of a brain tumor at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Sacred Heart Hospital at Garrett. He was 47 years of age.

Mr. Wynkoop, a resident of the Hopewell community, was stricken suddenly after he had retired the night of December 15. He was rushed to the hospital and had been critically ill for the past seven weeks.

Services were conducted on Thursday of this week at the Gerig Funeral Home in Auburn. The Rev. Jack Elser of Huntington College, assisted by Rev. Wilmer Ballou, pastor of the Coburntown Church of Christ, officiated at services with burial in Woodlawn Cemetery near Auburn.

Mr. Wynkoop, a native of near Continental, Ohio, had lived in DeKalb County since he was four years old. He was born June 13, 1907, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Wynkoop who reside north of Butler.

He married Esther Ward in Garrett on October 13, 1938. The family lived on a farm northeast of Auburn before moving to the Hopewell community twelve years ago.

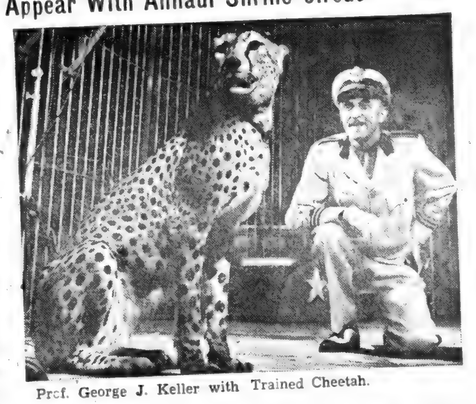
Survivors, besides the widow and the parents, are three children, Helen 15, Carl, 13, and Carol Ann, 4, all at home; and two sisters, Mrs. Gail Brand of near Auburn and Mrs. Marie Metcalf of Hamilton.

Mr. Wynkoop was a member of the Hopewell United Brethren Church.

Active in several DeKalb County organizations, he was a member of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau Co-op board, a member of the board of the DeKalb County Credit Union and a board member of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair Association.

He was also a member of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce and active in the DeKalb County Soil Conservation Service district.

Appear With Annaul Shrine Circus



Prof. George J. Keller with Trained Cheetah.

Rare in America, the animal pictured above is a cheetah or hunting leopard named Flash, one of a dozen jungle big cats of seven different varieties which George J. Keller, former college professor turned wild-animal trainer, presents in the eighth annual Mizpah Shrine-Polack Bros. Circus.

Appearing at the Allen County War Memorial Colliseum at Fort Wayne, the circus will give performances at 2:15 and 8:15 p.m. Friday, February 4; at 10:00 a.m. and 2:15 and 8:15 p.m. Saturday, February 5; and at 2:15 p.m. only Sunday, February 6.

The new 1955 edition of the circus is distinguished by many new foreign features and a greater variety of animal acts than ever before. In addition to Prof. Keller's Wild animals, the program includes performing sea lions, bears, goats, baby elephants, a troupe of 16 spitz dogs and fine horsemanship.

MANY EVENTS COMING FOR 4-H, DEMONSTRATION LEADERS AND MEMBERS

Many interesting events are being planned in February for the members of the DeKalb County Home Demonstration clubs and 4-H leaders.

Many local 4-H leaders are enrolling their club members this month and getting the clubs ready to go for National 4-H Club Week, March 6-12.

The annual recognition banquet for the 4-H leaders will be sponsored by the Auburn Retail Association. This banquet will be held Tuesday, February 15, at 6:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn. The county home demonstration council is serving this banquet.

Enrollment for the interest lessons, knitting, crocheting and needlepoint classes, will be held February 7 at 10:30 a.m. in the assembly room of the county court house. These classes are open to any club member who wants to learn to do any of the above handiwork.

The clothing workshop enrollment will be held February 11 at 7:30 at the Butler I&M Building and February 18 in the court house at 1:00 p.m. and again at 7:30 p.m.

The clothing workshop is open to any club member who wants to learn how to sew, learn more about her sewing machine or learn to make coats and suits. Classes will be set up in a series of six lessons.

The county wide Charm School, February 21 and 22, will be open to all club members and the public. This two day session will be held in the assembly room of the court house. Many very interesting demonstrators have been secured for this two day session. Two style shows will be given during the program along with discussions on the following subjects:

Charm, Beauty Does It, Care of Teeth, Beautiful Hands, Beauty in a Budget, On Your Two Feet, Heads Up For Beauty, Complexion Care, Hair Styling and many other subjects.

A complete program will be published later.

Two New Power Plants For AEC

Two major electric power plants, which will be the largest ever built by private industry when completed, are now officially in operation.

Officials of Ohio Valley Electric Corporation (OVEC), a group of 15 private electric utility companies, including Indiana & Michigan Electric Company, announced this week that its Clifty Creek Plant at Madison, Indiana, and Kyger Creek Plant at Cheshire, Ohio, are delivering kilowatts to the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's gigantic new uranium diffusion plant near Portmouth, Ohio.

A 200,000-kilowatt turbogenerating unit has been placed in service at each of the two plants, and their power is being delivered to the Portsmouth project via OVEC's new 330,000-volt transmission system. OVEC's total generating capability will be 2,200,000 kilowatts when nine additional units are added at the two plants by early 1956.

Philip Sporn, president of OVEC, in commenting on the beginning of operation of tnese two plants, said, "For size, scope and speed, this accomplishment has been without precedent. OVEC actually made the transition from drawing board to operation in a little more than two years --a comparatively brief interim for any major power project."

He continued, "We are very proud that this achievement has been brought about by private industry on time and with maximum economy. In all of our work during the past 27 eventful months, we have been consistently concerned to keep costs to an absolute minimum, and we believe that we have succeeded.

"In a sense, all of us who have had a part in sponsoring this project feel that, in OVEC, we have accepted a trusteeship on behalf of the federal government. We feel that it is our responsiblity to make certain that the government never bears unreasonable or inequitable expenses. And, in fact, it has been our constant goal to do a better job in every respect for the AEC than anyone else could do."

OVEC was organized October 1, 1952, by 15 electric companies, all in the Ohio Valley region, after the Atomic Energy Commission had called upon the private electric utility industry to provide the tremendous power requirements of the then-projected Portsmouth plant.

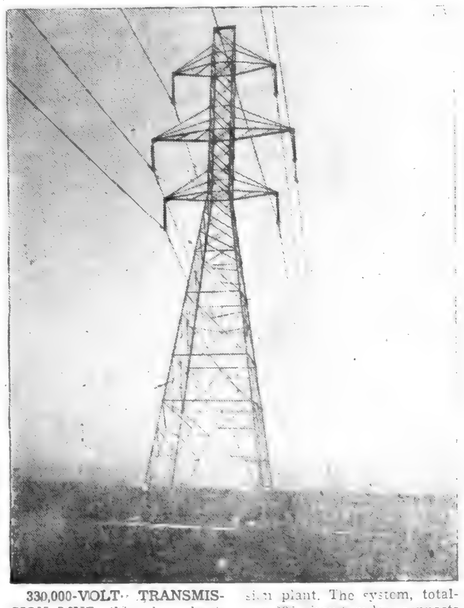
The 25-year contract was signed October 15, 1952. It called for OVEC to supply 1,800,000 kilowatts of electricity--or, in terms of energy, approximately 15 billion kilowatthours of eletcricity a year. In comparison, all of Mexico used only six billion kilowatthours in 1954.

Ground was broken at both Clifty Creek and Kyger Creek in December of 1952. Clifty Creek, located on the Ohio River near Madison, Indiana, 50 miles downstream from Cincinnati, will have six 200,000 kilowatt units, or a total generating capability of 1,200,000 kw--greater than any steam power plant operating today. It will represent an investment of about $175 million upon its completion.

Kyger Creek, located on the Ohio about midway between Parkersburg and Huntington, West Virginia, will have five units of the same size totaling 1,000,000 kilowatts. It will cost about $145 million upon completion.

The 11 units at the two plants will operate at a steam pressure of 2,000 pounds per square inch and at a steam temperature of 1,050 degrees Fahrenheit The units will burn approximately 7 1-2 million tons of coal a year.

The tremendous bulk of the power generated by the two plants will be fed to the AEC plant via double-circuit 330,000-volt transmission lines--highest voltage lines in the nation. At the AEC plant, the electric energy will be utilized in the large-scale separation of the isotope U-235 from natural uranium, in which U-235 appears only to the extent of 7-10ths of 1 percent.



330,000-VOLT TRANSMISSION LINE—this view shows a small section of the Ohio Valley Electric Corporation's new 330,000-volt transmission system, which delivers electricity to the Atomic Energy Commission's new $1.25-billion Portsmouth (Ohio) diffusion plant. The system, totaling 385 circuit miles, connects OVEC's two new power plants at Madison, Indiana, and Cheshire, Ohio, with the Portsmouth project. This is the highest voltage line in the United States.

CLIFTY CREEK PLANT, at Madison, Indiana—This 1,200,000-kilowatt generating station will be the world's largest steam power plant when completed in 1956. It is one of two major plants being built by the Ohio Valley Electric Corporation to supply electric power to the Atomic Energy Commission's new $1.25-billion Portsmouth (Ohio) diffusion plant.

Here's The Road To Warm Weather

It's still almost summertime in Florida and California and to the midwest motorists having those states as their destination in the next few months, the Chicago Motor Club has the following route information and suggestions:

One of the major routes leaving the Illinois-Indiana area for California, and one motorists can hook up with, leaves Chicago on US54 to Kankakee.

Then southwest on US45, changing to ILL. 37 at Effingham. Join US60 at Cairo, meeting US67 at Popular Bluff, Mo. and following it through Arkansas' Ozarks to Dallas, Tex. US80 from Dallas follows the Rio Grande River north to Las Cruces, N.M.

Then, west to Lorosburg, N.M., pick up state route 14 to route 86 into Arizona. Pick up US80 again at Benson to Tucson. Then to Phoenix on Arizona 84 and 87. Take US70 to Los Angeles and southern California.

The Motor Club suggests one of three routes to northern Florida, depending on the motorist's ultimate destination and driving preferences.

One route at sea level makes good driving for the motorist with a house trailer, for example. Another winds thru Tennessee mountains, is shorter, but at this time of the year occasionally is fogbound.

From terminal points in northern Florida the motorist has many choices of routes south -- too numerous to name because his choice will depend on what he wants to see or on how much time he has available: a motorist making his first trip to Miami might prefer to drive directly there. Another might take US1, skirting the east coast and noted for scenery and attractions.

Indiana motorists find Evansville their departure point, with an alternative of two fine routes at Nashville, Tenn.

One route, skirting the mountains, runs south on Alt. 41, Alt. 31, US431, ties into U-S231 and turns onto US280 at Sylacuga, Ala.

At Cusseta, Ga., south of Columbus, Alt. 55 runs to Dawson, US82 to Albany, then US19 goes south to Alt. 27 and US27 to Ocala, Fla.

From Ocala, various routes take the motorist to either coast, or through the center of the state.

The third major route runs southeast from Nashville and through Chattanooga at the lower end of the Appalachians.

Route numbers are US41 to Perry, Ga., US341 to Hazlehurst, Ga., US23 to Waycross. There are alternative routes from here, but it is a connection for the coastal route. At Perry, Ga., US41 can be used to US27 to go through the central part of Florida.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Joe Robinson says thanks to all those who helped out at the KP's benefit dance two weeks ago. Your efforts were appreciated.

Marian Waltz was a surprised gal this week when the telephone rang and a voice said, "Do you have a fire at your place?"

What went before was this. She inadvertently dialed the fire number, 2815, when she intended to dial the Borthwicks at 2581. She said someone answered and she queried, "Borthwicks'?" When there was no coherent reply, she hung up and dialed correctly getting the desired party. The above question then came to her from Fire Chief Roy Bowser as he informed the embarrassed lady that she had created quite a sensation with the boys in the fire department.

Marian says she wants to apologize for the mistake and Chief Bowser says he hopes others will follow Marian's example of owning up to a mistake when they get their digits confused when dialing. It's somewhat exasperating to have no one on the other end of the line when the fire siren goes off—the department isn't sure if it's a false alarm or not. Some one may be losing house and home, for all they know, when the call comes in but no one answers.

If anyone lost a flashlight, I know where it is. It's at the elevator—found one morning a week or so ago in the outside coal pile.

Somebody musta been making their own night pick-up and delivery.

Howard McMaken's missus dropped a few lines this week and fears that she has been "put on" by yours truly. Remember those independent basketball team scores, that some of them weren't complete as far as names and scoring were concerned? Well, Phyllis was the scorekeeper we "put on" in a foot note to the article and she's not too pleased.

I must confess—I was pretty sure she was the scorekeeper and I done what I did on purpose. —But not to embarrrass her -- just for fun.

She says—"It's kinda hard to keep score and a baby at the same time."

I wouldn't want to hurt or embarrass anyone who takes an interst in someone else's activities as Phyllis does with those of hubby Howard. Last summer when he was working with the independent softball team she was with him (at church league games, too) and while he was around (now he is in service) this fall and winter she was there again for the basketball games he booked as manager of the independent basketball team. Nosir, I wouldn't hurt them for nothin'. There are those who will take a job when asked, and there are those like Howard who went looking for it. —And Phyllis went with him.

You can't hardly find them kind no more.

Mrs. Church To Speak At P.T.A. Meeting Tuesday

The Riverdale P.T.A. will hold its next meeting Tuesday evening, February 15, at the Spencerville Community Building. The meeting will start at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Leonard Jarrett, chairman of the program committee, has announced that several musical numbers by grade and high school students, some of them having won placings in the district music contest, will be given during the evening.

In addition a film will be shown entitled, "Modern Medicine Looks At the Heart." This film is furnished and highly recommended by the National Heart Foundation. To make the subject of special value as a P.T.A. presentation, Mrs. Louise Church will offer additional information on the Heart Foundation and the present Heart Fund Drive. Mrs. Church, a resident of this community, is a registered nurse.

The information to be given at this meeting is offered as vital to the interest of teachers and parents.

Explorer Scouts Sponsor Bake Sale Saturday

The Explorer Scout Unit of the St. Joe Scout Troop will get their activities underway this Saturday morning when they will sponsor a bake sale to be held at the News Office in St. Joe. They plan to start selling at 9 a.m.

The Explorers are sponsoring this bake sale as a start in their efforts to raise funds for scout uniforms and various other articles of scouting equipment.

Students Vie For Prizes With Ticket Sales

If you haven't yet been contacted by those ticket sellers, you probably will be in the next few days.

"Those ticket sellers" are the ambitious students of the Riverdale schools who are selling tickets to the Riverdale P.T.A.'s annual Carnival and Supper to be presented Saturday evening, February 19, 1955, at the Spencerville Community Building.

The P.T.A. has turned the bulk of the ticket distribution over to the students and is sponsoring a contest in conjunction with the sale of supper tickets. The boy and girl of the upper grades who sell the largest amount of tickets will each receive a wrist watch as a reward for their efforts. Ticket sales began last week end and many students have been calling upon residents of the community for their support of the annual event.

This year's carnival and supper is under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn with the assistance of the president of the P.T.A. and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sible. Several committees have been organized for the presentation and the following committees have been appointed:

Supper Committee — Mrs. Raymond Pratt, chairman; Mrs. Paul Graham; Mrs. Walter Reinhart.

Table Committee — Aaron Holman, chairman; Harold Goldsmith; Lester Anthony; Wilbur Lothamer.

Ticket Committee — Ben Simpson, chairman; Howard Hill.

King and Queen Contest—Miss Machlik, chairman; Mrs. Robert Dragoo.

Auction-Virgil Smith, chairman.

Bingo Committee—Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Brattain; Mr. and Mrs. Herb Amstutz, Mrs. Ted Haberkorn.

Homemade Ice Cream Committee—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crow, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shrader; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morr; Mr. and Mrs. William LaRowe.

Guess Cake Committee — Mrs. Mickelson, chairman.

Kangaroo Court Committee-Derwood Ridgway, chairman; Joe Robinson; Paul Graham; Rihcard Strombeck.

Fish Pond Committee— Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Goings, chairman; Mrs. Brown; Mrs. Keating; Mrs. Plummer; Max Daub.

Hat Shop Committee—Marcia Sible, chairman; Mrs. Merl Guilford; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn; Mr. and Mrs. John Mason.

Ring-A-Duck Committee — Stanley Davis, chairman; Harold Smith; Wayne Smith; Mrs. Clarence Goings.

Decorations Committee — Mrs. Maruice Hollabaugh, chairman; Mrs. Lynn Fisher; Mrs. Wayne Smith; Mrs. Dale Collins; Mrs. Gerald Miller; Mrs. Virgil Laux.

Advertising Committee — Ted Haberkorn, chairman; Bill Sible; Miss Blackburn.

The project for the P.T.A. this year is assistance to the school band in acquiring band uniforms for its members. The proceeds from this year's carnival and supper will be turned over to the band to be used in purchasing the uniforms.

As in the past the success of the carnival and supper depends upon the co-operation of school patrons and friends. This co-operation has been outstanding in the past and is reflected in the great success which the carnivals and suppers have enjoyed in past years. Parents will be solicited next week through the students for donations of two pies or a cake for the supper and whatever else they may wish to offer for the auction sale.

Advertising for the project includes several posters prepared by the art department of the high school under the direction of Miss Blackburn.

Serving of the ham supper will begin at 5 p.m. Mrs. Pratt has anounced that the menu will include baked ham, escalloped potatoes, green beans, cole slaw, pickles, bread and butter, coffee or milk, cake or pie. Prices will be one dollar for adults and fifty cents for children.

4-H Meetings Begin Next Week

William Sadler, vocational agriculture instructor of the Riverdale High School, has announced that the first meeting of the 4-H club members will be held next week on Wednesday evening, February 16, at 8:00 p.m. The meeting will be held in the St. Joe gym.

The 4-H club members will be all joined in one club with the three townships of the school corporation uniting.

Everyone is invited for all projects, Mr. Sadler stated.

Teachers To Attend Institute

DeKalb County school teachers will attend the Northeastern Indiana nine-county Teachers Institute Saturday, February 12, at Fort Wayne.

Teachers from DeKalb County will direct the elementary sectional for grades 1 and 2. The institute will be held at North Side High School.

Co-chairmen of the DeKalb County teachers group for the sectional for grades 1 and 2 are Donna Shultz of Jerusalem school in Franklin Township and Blanche Nugen of the Ashley school. Other committee members are Gladys Impton of Riverdale, Hazel Scattergood of Fairfield Center school, Lura Eddy of Tamarack school in Troy Township and Evadna Covell of the Richland Township school at Corunna.

Topic for the sectional will be "Language Arts in the Primary Area" with Dr. Laura M. Schroeder as principal speaker.

Elementary sectionals will also be held for grades 3 and 4, grades 5 and 6 and grades 7 and 8. There also will be sectionals on social studies, for elementary and secondary prinicpals, vocational agriculture, business education, English section, boys' physical education, music, art, audio-visual education, home economics, industrial arts, science and mathematics and girls' physical education.

Fred Frederick, principal of the Ashley school, will serve on the elementary and secondary principals sections.

Teachers from Adams, Allen, Huntington, Jay, Noble, Steuben, Whitley and Wells counties, as well as DeKalb, will participate in the institute.

Republicans Plan Lincoln Day Dinner February 24

The annual Lincoln Day Dinner of the DeKalb County Republicans will be held this year on Thursday, February 24, acording to an announcement by Gene Browand, county G.O.P. chairman.

The banquet will be served in the basement of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce building.

Principal speaker will be Curtis Rardin, state auditor.

Ticket sales will be in charge of Ralph Bruce at Auburn.

Local Scouts Progress

The observance of Scout Week from February 6 through February 12 has a greater significance for St. Joe and Spencerville this year due to the successful re-organization of the present scout troops in both communities.

In the past few years there has been the organization of scout troops, but due to one difficulty or another the program was not able to continue. The greatest difficulty, encountered in the past few years due to the war-time atmosphere of the nation causing the recruiting of the young men of the country for military service, has been the acquisition of men to assume the responsibility of the very important position of scoutmaster. The combined efforts of the local Lions Club and the American Legion Post have resulted the past few months in the successful re-organization of a troop in the St. Joe community and also in the Spencerville community with excellent appointments to the scout leader positions. Another hindrance of the past has been the difficulty encountered in attempting to have a combined troop engulfing both of the communities. The idea of having boys from both places in one troop was basically good but it became increasingly difficult to have meetings in one community and retain the interest of the boys in the other community, principally because of the transportation problem. Now with the strong effort in progress and the interest shown at both places, the scout program appears to be standing "on both feet."

There is not appreciation enough that can be shown the men who have taken the job of scoutmaster. Rev. Wayne Baxter of Spencerville and "Bud" Shockley of St. Joe have assumed a great responsibility and to them is owed the cooperation of the comunity in forwarding the progress of the local scout troops.

Guest Editorials

General Hershey, who seems to have a personal resentment against the civilian attitude of mind, is of course among those who think this country should have a huge standing Army. He, like the Pentagon, wants a million young men in our standing Army and proposes to conscript 670,000 of them between now and 1959, in spite of the expressed belief of the President that we can do without so many soldiers standing around because of our excellent Navy, Air Force and atomic weapons. General Hershey, like all military leaders of a certain type in the Pentagon, needs more soldiers in order that the country may have more need for them.

There is no American of any sense who is opposed to the most complete defense of this country; in defending it, however, we must not proceed further down the road to complete militarization, which is contrary to our own traditions and which is rapidly becoming objectionable even to the European countries which have always had it. Most Americans do not object to drafting needed manpower in times of emergency, but military emergency should not become an American way of life. General Hershey and all the other military brass should get one idea fixed in their minds: No one owes his Nation any part of his life as a soldier except when the life of his Nation is at stake and there is no acceptable proof now that our country's life is at stake.

Millions of people came to the United States from foreign shores to escape the penalties of the idea that every person born into the world owed a year or two of his life to government. We must not allow that idea to become fixed in our American scheme of things. The Government of the U. S. is not a master of the people. It is a servant of the people and militarization reverses the concept.

As any military leader will doubtless agree, there is nothing more ruinous to the morale of fighting men than to drag them into military service without an obvious job for them to do. Americans have a high morale in a combat unit. They have a low morale when they are sitting around some military installation, collectively twiddling their soldier thumbs.

Voluntary enlistments in our armed forces by those who wish to make the military a way of life ought to be encouraged and the fact is that many who wished to make the military a way of life have been discouraged from doing so by the people who want conscripts, not volunteers. The morale of many professionals in our armed services, principally among the officers, has been completely riddled by the attempts made to deprive them of the perquisites of their rank. Almost by design someone has made it less and less attractive for officers to stay in the Army, Navy and Marines, despite the fact that our government has invested many thousands of dollars in the training of each of them. If any good-sized industry had the morale problem among its executives that our armed forces have, there would be all sorts of high-powered efforts made to correct it.

The idea that every young American owes it to his government to serve actively in the armed forces for two or three years and then be subject to reserve requirements for 10 years is statism at its worst.

—"Good Evening," Clifford B. Ward

Since 1940 America has loaned or given away to foreign countries the stupendous total of 112 billion dollars. Most of the loans must be written off and considered gifts as there is no likelihood of their ever being repaid

This is strikingly illustrated by the 11 billion dollars loaned to Communist Russia under the phrase, "lend-lease." Before the Lend-Lease program had run its course America had given away (lend-leased) over 40 billion dollars.

At first, the bulk of the billions given away went to European countries, more than 10 bilions each being given to France and Britain since the war, and some three billions each to Germany and Italy.

Two questions which have been asked me dozens of times in recent months are these: Did we give away more billions than we needed to in order to accomplish our objectives? And, should the give-away program be continued year after year as is the case at present?

At the present time our "foreign aid" program calls for assistance to other countries at the rate of 4.7 billion dollars a year and this rate of around five billion per year appears to have become a normal feature of our government's foreign policy.

Our postwar foreign aid program since 1945 has gone through four distinct stages: Relief, Recovery, Rearmament and Reorganization.

The first stage lasted essentially from 1945 to 1947 and consisted of our pumping billions of dollars worth of food, clothing and fuels into various European countries to keep the millions of hungry, destitute Europeans and Asiatics from starving and freezing.

This first stage witnessed the rise and decline of UNRRA, the huge international relief organization whose operations cost Uncle Sam some 2.7 billion dollars. Millions of dollars of UNRRA funds were sent to Communist countries and were used in such a way as to tighten the griup of Communist governments on satellite countries in eastern and southeastern Europe.

The second stage of our foreign aid program was the so-called Marshall Plan program. Under this scheme some 15 billion dollars in economic aid were to be extended to various European and Asiatic nations to enable them to recover economically. At least this was what the American people were told, and America was led to believe that western Europe had not yet recovered economically and, if they did not get these billions, Europe might easily fall to the Communists.

Actually, with one or two important exceptions such as Western Germany and Italy, western Europe HAD recovered economically BEFORE the Marshall Plan program got under way. By 1948 most European countries were back to pre-war levels of industrial production and several nations were around 10 per cent ahead of pre-war.

But America went ahead with its 15 billion dollars give-away program just the same and leading Europeans, instead of showing gratitude, cynically observed that we were giving Europe five billion dollars per year in order to keep up the demand for our exports so we wouldn't suffer a depression.

The third stage of foreign aid followed logically after the first two. After our seven year (1945-1952) relief and recovery give-away programs, we began the period of rearming our European and other Allies. Presumably, they were all too poor to arm themselves and so had to let Uncle Sam help.

American assistance in rearming its Allies has cost a pretty penny since 1950. Military aid to France, alone, between 1950 and 1954 totalled over four billion dollars, according to a recent issue of "Human Events." And this does not include 785 million dollars made available by the U.S. taxpayers to help the French in Indo-china.

Next Sunday night at the evening worship hour the Elementary Department will have charge of the program. SPORTS SHOW OPENS NEXT TUESDAY

Christmas will come a little early for tri-state sportsmen and women this year (or later, depending on the way you look at it), when the second annual Fort Wayne Sports, Vacation and Boat Show opens next Tuesday, February 15, for a six-day run at Memorial Coliseum.

The show will be blessed with so many types of recreational equipment and facilities that even the most blase sports enthusiast is sure to be thrilled.

Take the boat show for instance. There'll be boats of all sizes and types, everything from a six foot praam to big cabin cuisers. Now you can get boats in colors, even pastel shades, looking like something you could park at the country club. Motors are getting quieter, too, and you'll hear much of such terms as "Aquamute" and "Whispering Power." Moreover, manufacturers are finding more and more ways to reduce the cost of boats and all types of marine equipment.

While the boats are holding forth in the exhibition hall, the main arena of the Sports Show will be pammed packed with other types of sports equipment, such as fishing tackle, rods, reels and lines and lures, camping equipment, sportswear, lake cottages and so forth. And some of the great vacationing spots of the country will be represented, each touting the respective merits of its lakes and streams.

And, of course, for sheer entertainment there's a wonderful six-act stage and tank show during each session, featuring experts in casting, shooting, archery, wild animal training, boomerangs and whips, log rolling, wood cutting, retrieving and a thrilling ski slide and somersault from the roof of the Coliseum to climax the show.

Appeal Made For Scout Program

National Scout Week is being observed at this time, during the week of February 6 through February 12. In conjunction with this observance, officials of the scout organization are making their annual appeal for scouting funds. This appeal is being conducted this week in the Northern District of Indiana of which DeKalb County is a unit. W. W. Walker of Kendallville is chairman of the North District, Harry Landy of Auburn is vice chairman for DeKalb County and Don Butler of Auburn is financial chairman of DeKalb County.

The Anthony Wayne Council of Fort Wayne, serving nine northeastern Indiana counties with over 6,000 Boy Scouts, has set its 1955 budget for a goal of $42,138.00, which is an increase of 15 per cent over 1954. DeKalb County's share of that amount is $2,434.00. During the past year the North District (DeKalb-Steuben-Noble counties) has had a 23 per cent increase in boy memberships, now providing scouting in these three counties for a record breaking 1058 Boy Scouts; however, the money asked for 1955 is only a 15 per cent increase over 1954.

Increasing participation and interest in scouting throughout DeKalb County is a firm indication of the need for additional funds. Dale Collins, commander of the local American Legion Post sponsoring the St. Joe troop, and W. L. Hurni, president of the local Lions Club sponsoring the Spencerville troop, have revealed that a break-down of the budget by communities shows St. Joe and Spencerville each with a quota of $100.00. The goal in Auburn is $1,000.00, in Garrett $750.00, Ashley $125.00, Butler $300.00 and Waterloo $250.00.

St. Joe and Spencerville are newcomers this year having recently organized troops in both communities.

There will be no house to house canvas during the appeal, Mr. Collins announced. "Any individual or organized group desiring to contribute by mail may send checks payable to - The Anthony Wayne Council, Boy Scouts of America - to either Mr. Hurni or myself. Or the checks can be turned over to us in person."

The current appeal is not for funds to be used directly by the local scout troops. The troop does receive benefits, however, as do all other scout organizations through the distribution of the funds in the following channels: 12 cents of each dollar collected goes to make scouting grow by increased scout troop and cub pack units; 5 cents to maintain a supply service; 14 cents for leadership training and education; 15 cents for camping and outdoor program; 16 cents for field services; 2 cents for national program service; 16 cents for program activities; 11 cents for office administration and 9 cents for records and registration.

The Anthony Wayne Council in 1954, now serving 6,000 scouts, had the lowest cost per boy in Indiana and the third largest enrollment in Indiana.

Charm School Opens Feb. 21

Some outstanding speaker demonstrators are scheduled to take part in the county-wide Charm School February 21 and 22 at the assembly room of the court house in Auburn. The school is sponsored by the DeKalb County Home Demonstration Council.

Ruth Little of Troy Township, county vice president, is general chairman for the school. She is inviting the public to attend the two-day school along with the members of the 36 home demonstration clubs in the county.

The president of the Allen County Home Demonstration Council, Mrs. Jerry Souder, has been selected as the speaker to open the school. She will speak on "Being Your Own Real Charming Self."

Mrs. June O'Brien, county health nurse from Steuben County, will speak on "The Foundation of Health of Beauty."

Dr. Richard Lieb, Auburn dentist, will speak during the school on "Your Mouth and You." Warners Beauty College in Fort Wayne will be represented by Vesta Muhn who will address the group on "Beauty As It Concerns You."

Patriica Hunt, director of the Northern Indiana Conservatory, South Bend, will give a participating lecture on "Charm."

The Revlon Company will send Miss Hariette Billings, nationally known representative from the Fifth Avenue salon of the Revlon Company, to discuss such subjects as personal makeup, facials, care of hands and nails, and deodorants. She will also demonstrate how to coordinate favorite cosume colors with flattering cosmetic shades.

Mrs. Vilma Blaker, the Lazier consultant, will discuss and demonstrate personal color types as related to makeup, and from Ravens-Croft School of Beauty at Fort Wayne, Mrs. Viola Stutner will show hair styling, tinting, posture and many other general beauty problems.

Two style shows will be presented during the school. Monday night Schaab's Department Store is sponsoring a style show which will show many new fashions for spring, new fabrics and new colors.

At 11 a.m. Tuesday the Beauty Booth in Auburn will sponsor a style show for "casual wear."

LAKE MAPS TO BE AVAILABLE SOON

Reproduction of maps of major Indiana lakes will soon be available to sportsmen and other interested persons, according to Harley G. Hook, Director of the Indiana Department of Conservation.

The Division of Fish and Game, through the use of Dingell-Johnson funds, has undertaken, with the United States Geological Survey, and the Water Resources Division, the task of preparing contour maps of Indiana lakes.

These maps, designed especially for use of cottage owners and fishermen, show depth contours, maximum depths, acreage and volume of the various lakes. Boat piers. roads, wooded areas, lake gauging stations and other features are also shown.

Field data was collected, through the use of a sonic sounder, by the Surface Water Branch of the USGS, which, together with the Dingell-Johnson Branch of the Fish and Game Division, was also responsible for the actual preparation of the maps.

The maps are available in two sizes. 17"x22" maps may be purchased for fifty cents and will be of particular interest to cottage owners and others living on the lakes. 8½" x11" maps sell for twenty-five cents and will be useful in the location of fishing sites.

Maps of Beaver Dam Lake, Loon Lake, and Yellow Creek Lake are now available, and the map of Myers Lake is nearing completion. Others will be added as soon as necessary data can be collected.

Copies of the maps may be ordered from the Division of Fish and Game, Indiana Department of Conservation, 311 West Washington Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

30-1-54

Hi Ted,

How are things back in St. Joe these days. I hope the weather is not to undesirable there, and that your family has not been very sick this winter.

Things over here are so much different from things at home, for one they drive on the left side of the road. Some of their autos only have three wheels and are they funny looking. There are so little, they are all two story's, but are about 20 ft. square. The people are very short to, most of them don't hardly reach five feet tall, and population is so grate that they only have about one acre of ground to farm. A man with 10 or more acres is a rancher.

Right now there is quite a bite of snow over here, last week it snow every night but one and then it rained.

We were out in the field last week. All I did was try to skii. I am afraid I will never be able to master them two sticks Ha Ha.

Would you please send me a copy of your paper again it helps a fellow keep up on some of the happenings back home. My sister tells me a lot, but not enough to satisfy me.

Well I am about to run out of words, so I will quite for now but will write again. And thanks Ted.

Yours truly
Pvt. Melvin Herschberger

We've been sending the paper to you, Melvin, since we received your address a few weeks ago. The issues should show up fairly regular. For those who do not have Melvin's address, here it is:

PVT. Melvin Herschberger US55503238, Btry. "C", 99th F. A. Bn., APO 201, c-o PM, San Francisco, California.

Say, Melvin, that country doesn't sound so strange. We've got cars right here in St. Joe that only use three wheels (occasionally) and drive on the left side of the road! —Ed.

Phone Company Observing Birthday

General Telephone Company of Indiana, Inc., Indiana's second largest telephone utility, celebrates its 25th anniversary this year.

The company, with main offices at 661 Main Street in Lalayette, was formed February 5, 1930, with the consolidation of 11 companies.

General of Indiana is the largest of the independent (non-Bell) telephone companies in the state. There are about 275 independent telephone firms in Indiana and more than 5,000 in the U.S.

Independent telephone people invented many of the items we take for granted these days: automatic dial system, handset telephones, and selective ringing on party lines. The first dial system was worked out by a mortician in Kansas City, Mo., and the first commercial dial exchange was an independent one installed in 1892 at LaPorte, now one of General's exchanges.

In 1932, two years after it was formed, General Telephone began statewide operations with 27 exchanges serving 41,032 telephones.

After depression inertia, wartime standstill and postwar acceleration, General's telephone total zoomed upward. In 1946 General served 64,000 phones. Latest figures show the utility's lines going to 130,000 telephones.

General of Indiana has spent $25,000,000 on equipment and other aditions since 1946.

The General family is divided into five districts in the northern two-thirds of the state. The districts are made up of 69 exchanges in 223 communities with Bristol, near the Michigan border, the most recent purchase. Its 500 telephones, bought last November, are of the old hand-crank (magneto) type. Only four per cent of the company's telephones were of the hand-crank type at the start of 1955.

"General of Indiana is having a tough time keeping up with the tremendous demand for telephones in its territory," says President H. E. Hussey, "but we have a five-year program laid out which should solve our pressing problems."

Telephony is a fascinating business with an inter-company cooperation seldom found in other industry. Bell handles nearly all long distance calls originating on General telephones, but there is a dividing of long distance revenue by the two utilities.

Despite its phenomenal growth since World War II, General Telephone is not making money hand over fist, according to its officials. The fact is, they affirm, the more telephones that are connected, the more it costs the company for installation and maintenance. Each new phone has to be conected to all the rest. It's about the only business where increased volume does not reduce unit cost.

Then, too, the Public Service Comission, watchdog for the public, keeps an eye on all utilities to hold profits down to the bare minimum.

The name of General is not too well-known yet, but that's understandable. It was adopted only three years ago when all member companies of the General Telephone Corporation put "General" in their titles. The Indiana company's previous name was Indiana Associated Telephone Company.

The corporation consists of 16 companies in 21 states and serves more than 1,700,000 telephones from coast to coast. The California company is the largest of the 16.

All telephone companies exist for public service. They cannot choose their customers and cannot discriminate in service between rich and poor. If someone wants a telephone, the company which serves that area must install one for him as soon as its facilities permit.

It is at this point that some of the waiting customers start to howl. General of Indiana gets its share of these legitimate but occasionally vituperative complaints.

"Why do I have to wait that long for a phone?" is the usual roar. "A friend of mine in Podunk got one in six days!"

Telephone officials reply that Podunk may have fewer equipment problems. If a community is growing rapidly, the demand for telephone service far outstrips the supply of cable and manpower to take care of all requests at once.

General of Indiana puts all applicants on a priority list. Military personnel, doctors, nurses, etc., get telephones first, then the rest of the applications are handled according to need for service (health, profession, etc.).

Classes of priority were determined by the government in World War II and retained by General of Indiana as the fairest way to serve those who need telephones more than others.

"We realize," Hussey says, "that we are not perfect in our service but we are working as fast as we possibly can to remedy existing difficulties and give as many people telephones as we can and as quickly as we can. We don't like service and installation delays any more than the waiting customer does, but we have a budget within which we must operate if we are to manage our business efficiently.

"The future of General Telephone of Indiana is bright and we are grateful to the telephone users in our exchange areas who have made it bright for us as we celebrate our silver anniversary."

BARROW SHOW ENTRIES CLOSE MONDAY

Entries for the Sixth Annual Hoosier Spring Barrow Show close Monday, February 14. Exhibitors who wish to enter the single barrow, get-of-sire, pens of three or truck load classes are urged to obtain entry blanks from their county agent or school vocational agriculture teacher.

The live or on foot portion of the show is scheduled March 1 at the Swine Barn of the Indiana State Fair Grounds. Sponsors of the show expect a record entry list.

All hogs entered in the show will be slaughtered by the packer sponsor. The carcass show is to be held Saturday, March 5, in the coolers of Kingan's Indianapolis plant. Both shows are open to the public.

Spoonsors of the show include Purdue University, Kingan Inc., and the Indiana Swine Breeders Association.

TEMPO INCREASES—Following Congressional action in approving the President's Formosa defense resolution, there is an air of tension and watchful waiting here. The consensus, however, is that the passage of the resolution to strengthen the President's hand in the Far East will lessen rather than increase the chances of a shooting war.

I voted with the House members when we passed the resolution 409 to 3 and it swept through the Senate also with only three dissenting votes.

DRAFT EXTENSION — With our policy now defined in the Pacific, the House is expected to approve a four-year extension of the Selective Service Act. This measure cleared the House Armed Services Committee by a unanimous vote, 32 to 0. It should pass the House easily and I plan to vote for it.

Two modifying amendments were included in the bill reported out of the Armed Services Committee. One would relieve young men under 18, who volunteer in the National Guard, from a draft call after they reach 26, if they remain in the Guard up to that time. The present law requires them to remain in the Guard until they are 35. The other amendment would relieve from the draft men who have served at least six months on active duty, except in the event of an all-out war.

OTHER MAJOR DEVELOPMENTS—Besides the adoption of the Formosa defense resolution and consideration of the all-important draft bill, the Congress is facing up to a heavy legislative program.

Among the major legislative proposals being handled by the various Committees at the present time are: salary increases for postal and other federal employees, along with changes in postal rates; the President's request for legislation to provide 35,000 new public housing units in each of the next two years; legislation to extend for two years the Small Business Administration; voluntary health plans with state and federal subsidies; the $62.4 billion budget which is more than a billion dollars below the last fiscal year; extension of Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, plus other important proposals which will be clarified for the public as Congress settles down to business during this historic session. These are all controversial issues and, of course, will have serious consideration and study before they are acted upon.

RECENT VISITORS—It is always a pleasure to have 4th District visitors drop into my office when they are in Washington on business with the government or sight-seeing. The office is located on the 5th floor of the New House Office Building, Room 1511. Recent visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Florsheim, Edward L. St. Clair and S. T. Martin, Win Rood, Mary Rastetter, Edward L. Combs, all of Ft. Wayne and Janet A. Hoey of New Haven.

Minister From Japan Speaks Sunday

The Women of the Church of St. Mark's Lutheran Church of St. Joe will hold a special meeting Sunday afternoon, February 13, at 2 p.m. The theme of the meeting will be "Foreign Missions - Japan," and as a special feature the guest speaker will be a Japanese pastor of the United Lutheran Church in Japan.

Rev. Yosaki Magaki of Tokyo is the guest speaker. He is currently studying at Hamma Divinity School in Springfield, Ohio, where he is taking special graduate work before going back to his native country. He is pastor of a city church in Tokyo, where his family is living. Pastor Magaki has made many new friends during his stay at Hamma, and he has spoken at many meetings, receiving great ocmpliments. His mastery of English is astounding for the length of time he has been in this country. His message for the Sunday afternoon program promises to be an inspiring one.

The ULC Churches of Spencerville, Butler and Auburn have been invited to this special meeting which is one of the many highlights of the 1955 program of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Mrs. Carlos Church, president of the Women of the Church of St. Mark's, will conduct the service and the Rev. Philip Barnhart, pastor of the church, will introduce the guest speaker, with whom he formed a close friendship while studying at Hamma Divinity School.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday-School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Scripture: Matthew 3:13-17; 26:26-28; 28:19-20; Acts 2:38-41; 10:34-48; I Corinthians 11:23-29.

Devotional Reading: Romans 6:1-11.

IN REMEBRANCE

Lesson for February 20, 1955

The words printed on this page are not like the things they refer to, they are not the same size, color or shape. Yet every one who can read these black marks on white paper is reminded at once of what they stand for. A flag is not the same color or size as the country; yet every child in school knows what the flag means. So it is with these two simple observances of the Christian church, baptism and the Lord's Supper. Some churches call these "ordinances"; most call them "sacraments." Quarrels over the right way to perform these, quarrels about their precise meaning, make up one of the darkest chapters of church history. Yet in every church these two symbols remain. Christians everywhere share the experience of baptism. If you, reading these lines, are a Christian, then no doubt some time or other you have been baptized. Baptism is the Ceremony of Initiation, the Lord's Supper is the Ceremony of Remembrance.

—Of His Death

Leaving the quarrels aside, what is it the church universal believes about the Lord's Supper? The least that can be said of it is that it is "in remembrance" of Christ. (For that matter, so is baptism; but there is scarcely room here to speak of both of these.) We remember the death of Christ, first of all. "Ye do show the Lord's death . . ." How often Christians have heard those solemn words! For the bread is not neatly sliced, it is broken. The wine is not bottled up, it is poured out. Broken bread and poured-out wine take the worshipper back to a certain night in an upper room in Palestine, when around the table 11 anxious men heard for the first time those immortal words, "This is my body, broken for you . . . This do in remembrance of me." They take us back to the afternoon of the first Good Friday, when upon the stones of the place called Golgotha dripped the lifeblood of one who was pouring out his life "a ransom for many."

—Of His Coming

If the Lord's Supper is in memory of the past, it is also a reminder of the future. "Till He Come"—the words are heard at communion everywhere in the Christian world. What do they mean? The least they can mean is that Christians look forward as well as back. The world will not go on and on and on forever and ever just the same. The hope of Christians that "the kingdoms of the world will become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ" will not always be only a hope. Christ has died for men; that is the memory the church keeps alive. Christ will reign over men from a throne of love; that is the hope the church will not give up. Christians have differed and will keep on differing as to just how this hope is going to be fulfilled. But the church believes with all her heart—Christ will win! He is not doomed to lose forever. And every communion gives testimony to this hope—"till he come."

—Of His Living Progress

The churches of the world, more's the pity, are so far from agreeing about what the communion of our Lord's Supper means, that even in a great gathering like that of the World Council of Churches, not every one feels free to take communion with all the others. Nevertheless, with all the differences, in every form of the Lord's Supper, in every church there is the conviction that Christ is more than a memory, more than a hope. He is real; he is here. Clear at the heart of the Christian conviction about the meaning of the Lord's Supper is the feeling that in this simple rite He is really present. Across all the centuries he comes to be with those who love him. Past, present, future, all unite in the burning moment. The open heart receives the unseen Guest, and peace comes as never the world gives peace, to hush the fears and heal the sorrows of the soul. Theologians may go on debating as to how it is, how it can be true. But the simple Christian does not need to study many books for some explanation of what in his heart he has learned is true. If some one asks who was at communion this morning, the first thing the remembering heart can say is not, I was there, or my neighbor was there; but HE WAS THERE. And he has come home with me!

James Bowser Stationed In Germany

Army Home Town News Center at Kansas City, Mo., this week released an item revealing that PFC James Bowser, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gale T. Bowser of Spencerville, recently joined the Society of the 1st Infantry Division while serving with Headquarters Battery of the division's 5th Field Artillery Battalion in Wurzburg, Germany.

The Society of "Fighting First," founded in 1919, is dedicated to the preservation of the traditions and comradeships formed by the men who served with the division.

Bowser, a personnel clerk, entered the Army in October of 1953 and arrived overseas last November. He is a 1953 graduate of Indiana University.

Heart Fund Drive In Progress

To obtain additional funds for the fight against heart and blood vessel diseases, the Indiana Heart Foundation and its affiliates opened the 1955 Heart Fund campaign for $345,000 on February 1. The statewide drive will end February 28.

Since heart disease kills more people each year than all other causes combined, it is the major health problem. Scientific research is the greatest single weapon for fighting heart disease and provides the hope of finally conquering it as other diseases have been conquered. New techniques of diagnosis, treatment and management, impossible a few years ago, are now routine, but there is much more to be done -- not only in research, but in professional education, public education and community service. This is only round one of the fight. And an early knockout isn't expected. But heart specialists tell that if progress in heart research is as rapid in the next ten years as it has been in the past decade, the unanswered questions about the causes of high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and rheumatic fever may come sooner than previously anticipated. To date, progress has been made in the following specific areas:

1. Three types of fatal or crippling congenital heart conditions can be corrected surgically;

2. Rheumatic fever is often preventable now. All recurrences of the disease are preventable;

3. Diseased or malformed heart valves can be made workable by surgery;

4. Subacute bacterial endocardities, formerly fatal, can be cured;

5. Recurrence of heart failure (dropsy) can be postponed --may be prevented by diet and medicine;

6. High blood pressure shows promise of yielding to surgery and new drugs;

7. Diseases of the arteries are being intensively studied. More funds are badly needed for additional research, however.

Indiana Heart Fund workers are proud of their record of progress in research, education and community service. The Indiana Heart Association is far ahead of many other state heart associations in fighting the problem because of the close cooperation from thousands of Hoosiers--physicians, scientists and laymen.

Local chairmen for the drive are Mrs. Merle Dean Furnish at Spencerville and Mrs. Russell Tustison for St. Joe and Newville. Special plastic heart canisters have been placed in the business houses of the community. The month of February is Heart Month with the day of extended solicitation set for Sunday, February 20.

Ham Supper Heads Carnival Program Sat'day

The big event of the Riverdale P.T.A. approaches. Saturday night, February 19, to be exact, will be the occasion for the organization to put forth its efforts in raising money for the purchase of band uniforms for the local school band.

With the challenge of raising something like two thousand dollars for uniforms, the band members, parents and all others interested in the activities and accomplishments of the school will have this opportunity to give their help and at the same time spend an enjoyable evening of entertainment.

To start things off, the ham supper will be served at five p.m. in the basement of the Spencerville Community Building. Upstairs there will be various concessions in operation, such as the hat shop, a booth with homemade ice cream as its major attraction, a ring-a-duck pond, fish pond, bingo, a guess cake, and other bits of entertainment. The high school classes will have their booths and will be seeking to name their king and queen candidates as winners through the number of persons who patronize their individual booths. In addition, the band will play a few selections during the course of the evening. The final special attraction will be the auction sale. Baked goods and any other articles suitable for auction, for instance handwork, have been solicited and there promises to be a large selection for those who have the "sale" bug biting them.

Participation in the various booths and concessions will be through tickets purchased from the ticket agent at the door. No money wil be handled at the various booths.

This year's carnival and supper is under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn with the assistance of the president of the P.T.A. and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sible. Several committees have been organized for the presentation and the following committees have been appointed:

Guest Editorial

Have you ever read this provision in the Constitution of the United States? Listen to it: "Any power which is not conferred upon the President by this Constituton, or which this Constitution denies to him, may, nevertheless, be freely exercised by the President IF the exercise of such power is authorized by the terms of any international agreement to which the United States is a party." By this provision the President of the United States is given power to do anything which any international agreement directs him to do, Constitutional restraints to the contrary notwithstanding.

Are you startled? You have never seen this provision in our Constitution? Of course you haven't seen it because it isn't there. The inclusion of such language by the Founding Fathers would have made ridiculous shambles of their whole historic, carefully contrived effort. Their purpose was strictly to limit the power of every officer, department and division of government, in the overall interest of your personal liberty. The Constitution does NOT give the President the power to do whatever an international agreement directs him to do—far from it. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the President HAS that power now. Furthermore, pursuant to the direction of international agreements, President Eisenhower and his immediate predecessors have acted upon the authority of international agreements to do what the Constitution forbids.

Last April, on the floor of the British House of Commons, Mr. Churchill disclosed that President Roosevelt had entered into a secret, but nevertheless binding agreement with Great Britain, whereby that country was given a continuing veto over the use of our atomic weapons in the execution of our international policies. Mr. Churchill insists that the agreement is still binding. In the Korean War, pursuant to international agreements, President Truman put American forces into battle at the disposal and direction of an international authority which included Soviet Russia, in spite of the fact that Congress had not then and has not yet exercised its exclusive Constitutional power to declare war in Korea.

At a press conference last March 16, Mr. John Foster Dulles stated that under the North Atlantic Alliance, as well as under the Rio Pact, President Eisenhower now has the right to put the country into war without consulting Congress.

Pursuant to the NATO Status of Forces Treaty, ratified during the first year of President Eisenhower's administration, (July 15, 1953), American military servicemen now stationed in foreign countries are stripped of their established American Constitutional and legal rights. By the terms of this vicious and unprecedented agreement, these soldiers are subjected to the laws of France, Turkey, Japan, or of any one of a score of countries in which American boys are now stationed around the world. Uncounted numbers of them are presently languishing in foreign jails, after conviction in unfamiliar foreign tribunals, of violating curious and often cruel laws of the faraway places that Uncle Sam drafted these American youngsters to defend. Under this Treaty, the soldier's only recourse is a difficult diplomatic appeal through the American State Deparment whose Foreign Service civilian employees, by the way, still enjoy all the Constitutional protections which have been taken away from our soldiers.

How did the President acquire this treaty power which the Constitution denies to him? Years ago Justice Charles Evans Hughes truly said that in the last analysis, "The Constitution is what the Judges say it is." Fifteen years ago, the Supreme Court Judges said in effect (U.S. vs. Curtis-Wright Corporation, 299 U.S. 304), that the treaty power is separate, apart and above the Constitution: that the treaty-power of the United States was inherited from the King of England and may be exercised to the same extent that it is exercised by other governments of the world. In this spirit the Supreme Court has never declared a treaty to be unconstitutional.

A college professor who is reliably reputed to be President Eisenhower's top advisor on Constitutional procedures, has written this: "The question whether the United States should enter an international organization . . . and of what pledges it should give . . . is one which the appropriate agencies of the National Government are free to decide . . . substantially UNFETTERED BY CONSITUTIONAL LIMITATIONS OF ANY KIND." (Edward S. Corwin, "The Constitution and World Organization," 1944, P. 30.)

The Supreme Court has decided that the doctrine of treaty supremacy over the Constitution applies equally to private agreements between the President and foreign nations. Such binding agreements may be entirely secret, like Churchill's agreement with President Roosevelt giving Britain a veto on the use of our atomic weapons. (United States vs. Pink 315 U.S. 203).

This brings us back to where we started. Thus, the Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, treaties, and-or secret international agreements, can and DO give the President the power to do things which the Constitution forbids him to do. Let us take a practical example. Even in a war emergency, no President may constitutionally establish price, rent, manpower and wage controls throughout the United States. In normal times these matters are within the area of powers reserved to the individual states under the 10th Article of the Bill of Rights. These subjects are brought within the war powers of Congress, however, when the nation is engaged in, or threatened with hostilities. In such a war eemrgency, Congress may confer upon the President power to control these things within Congressionally prescribed limitations.

But let us suppose that in time of peace, the President agrees with Canada that he will immediately impose such economic controls throughout the United States. Such an agreement automatically becomes binding upon every employer, employee, landlord, producer and merchant throughout this country, war or no war, the Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding. In the same way, by international agreement, the President could outlaw ownership of certain types of property,—atomic materials, for instance, and authorize an International Police Force to search for them in your home without a warrant. In like manner, the President, in concert with some foreign government or governments, could establish uniform game laws, labor laws, (including the closed or open Union Shop), crop controls, floridation of all drinking water, a common educational curriculum, speed and weight limits on the highways or ANYTHING ELSE that he and the Foreign Ministers thought good for you and the country.

If, as the Courts now declare, our Presidents have always had this extraordinary treaty power, why have we waited so long to get excited about it? The answer is the United Nations Charter.

At the time the Constitution was written, and for much more than a hundred years thereafter, treaties were simply contracts between nations concerning international matters, such as war, peace, boundary lines, oceanic fishing rights, navy ratios and so forth. In our generation however, treaties began to be used to arrange the relationships, not from government to government merely, but between a government and its own subjects.

Treaties, in other words, became the instruments by which one country reformed the economic, political or social conditions within another country. Treaties thus began to be used to modify the internal laws of a country, including the internal laws of the United States. This drive for internal reform through treaties is a prime principle of the United Nations Charter and the execution of that principle has been the chief, if not the exclusive, accomplishment of the United Nations organization since its inception.

For instance there is now a treaty, signed by many countries, including the United States, and pending ratification by the United States Senate, which is known as the Genocide Pact. This treaty coins an entirely new international crime called "genocide," that is "group-killing." But, according to this pending treaty, it is not necessary to kill a group of people in order to be guilty of genocide. You may be guilty if you cause serious mental or bodily harm to members, or a member of a national, racial or religious group—; or if you conspire with others to do so; or attempt to do so even if you fail. Persons charged with genocide may be tried by such International Penal Tribunal as may have been accepted by the nations who are parties to the agreement.

Now stop and think for a moment. Every injured party in every criminal proceeding in the United States is certainly a member of SOME national, racial or religious group. Thus, if we adopt the Genocide Pact, practically every criminal case now on the Court dockets in this country becomes automatically transferable to an International Tribunal. There, like our soldiers under the NATO Forces Treaty, the accused could be tried without a jury or any of the safe-guards with which our Federal and State Constitutions now protect every person accused of crime within the limits of the United States.

Stripped to its revealing bones, the Genocide Pact is disclosed as a scheme to liquidate our Bill of Rights, along with the inherent jurisdiction of our American Courts, in any case where racial or religious prejudice or Communist-inspired class hatred moves into an American legal proceeding. At the present time, the Genocide Pact is in the files of the Senate Judiciary Committee. By Senate ratification or executive action it may become the supreme law of the land before you know it.

Another side-show of the U. N. is the International Labor Organization which has ground out more than one hundred Socialist conventions which would radically change our labor, insurance, agricultral and other American laws the minute they are ratified by the United States Senate. Discussion of the revolutionary United Nations Covenant on Human Rights, paraphrased from the so-called Constitution of Soviet Russia, will have to be deferred until another time.

What does all this add up to? It adds up to a critical, urgent need for a positive corrective, Constitutional Amendment. Aided by the American Bar Association and encouraged by the repeated approving resolutions of the American Legion and more than 100 other patriotic organizations, Senator John Bricker of Ohio has been pushing for such a corrective amendment for years. The principle of his reform was defeated by the narrow margin of one vote short of the necessary two-thirds in the United States Senate last year. Only the shameless unprecedented pressure of the White Houe, brandishing the power and prestige of a then new and popular President prevented the Bricker Amendment from sweeping through both Houses of Congress and from there to certain and prompt ratification by the States of the Union.

Why should any President of the United States, by agreement with a foreign government, acquire power over you which the Constitution forbids the President to exercise by himself? In effect, this subjects you to the control of unconstitutional legislation passed by foreign governments. All provisions of the pending Bricker Amendment are vitally important but here is the section necessary to restore home rule to America:

Section 2—"A treaty or other international agreement shall become effective as internal law in the United States only thru legislation valid in the absence of international agreements."

In the critical interest of our national independence and your time honored Constitutional rights this language must be added to the Constitution right now. Don't permit any Internationalist to double-talk you out of it.

Meet The Faculty

This week's pair of biographical sketches bear a semblance of similarity. The two faculty members interviewed for this column for this issue are husband and wife, both claiming Muncie, Indiana, as their home town, both having attended the same high school and college and both now teaching at Riverdale High School.

We are speaking of the Dragoos, Donna and Bob, who now make their home in St. Joe. Both Donna and Bob attended Royerton High School, just out of Muncie, before attending Ball State Teacher's College. Bob graduated in 1941 from high school and Donna received her high school degree in 1944. A few years of Bob's lifetime were claimed for military service before he and the now Mrs. Donna (they married in 1947) graduated from Ball State in 1949.

Their first teaching duties took them to Ovid, Colorado, where they stayed for two years. In 1951 they moved to St. Joe. Donna taught second grade in the Concord Township schools. When the Concord-Spencer consolidation became official, she taught in the high school and instructs in the Riverdale consolidation in classes in typing, shorthand and girls' physical education. She also has charge of the growing school library.

Bob included coaching with his business courses previous to this year. He was assistant coach at Concord in 1951, became head coach in 1952 and 1953 and retired from those duties in 1954 to devote his time to academic subjects.

Bob now instructs courses in typing, bookkeeping and seventh grade math.

Three young boys are included in the Dragoo family, the twins, Gerald and Clifford, five years old, and Bruce, three years old.

STATE TO PARTICIPATE IN SUMMER SAFETY DRIVE

Indiana will join the 47 other states in conducting a "Slow Down and Live" Program during the summer vacation period commencing on Memorial Day and continuing through Labor Day, State Traffic Safety Director J. L. Ingo has announced.

On Tuesday, February 15, a regional planning meeting will be held in Indianapolis for State Safety Co-ordinators and invited guests including heads of State Police, Motor Vehicle, Highway and Education Departments; representatives of Sheriffs, Magistrates, Local Police Chiefs and key co-operating private agencies, including state outdoor, radio, TV and press groups and business, labor and civic groups. The meeting will be held in the ballroom of the Marott Hotel from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"Slow Down and Live" is an official program with the governors of all states pledging their active backing, Lingo explained. "Sponsorship is in the hand of the State Safety Co-ordinators with administrative facilities provided by private industry carrying on all work in the name of the co-ordinators. In Indiana, the program will be an integral part of the year-round Operation Live Longer Program sponsored by the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee.

"The full success of such a project depends upon local participation by Enforcement Officers and officals. Information and requests for assistance will be made available to every community well in advance of Memorial Day," he added.

Heart Soliciting Comes On Heart Sunday

Sunday, February 20, has been designated "Heart Sunday" during the month which is dedicated to the solicitation for funds to carry on a program to combat heart disease.

Chairmen for the drive locally are Mrs. Marian Furnish at Spencerville and Mrs. Mabel Tustison at St. Joe and Newville.

Plastic hearts for the collection of contributions have been placed in several business places in the community. But to cover a greater number of the citizenry, a direct campaign with the people will be held Sunday. Mrs. Tustison has announced that the St. Joe Boy Scout Troop has consented to assist in the Sunday campaign.

Information on the diseases of the heart was given Tuesday evening at the Riverdale P.T.A. meeting through the showing of a movie and further discussion by Mrs. Carlos Church. She announced that motion pictures, speakers and written information in pamphlet and booklet form are available through the Heart Fund. Any individuals or organizations desiring the use of this information are urged to contact Mrs. Church, Mrs. Furnish or Mrs. Tustison.

STORY WITH POWER

Lesson for February 27, 1955

Everybody knows the words "Minister of the Gospel," but not everybody stops to think what they mean. Literally, the title means Servant of the Good News." The minister is a man with a story to tell. There are many words to describe a minister, but in Protestant church the commonest, probably, is "Preacher." This is a Bible word to and it originally meant some one who announces something. The preacher is not a giver of advice, first of all, but a teller of news. The message of the church, if it is faithful to the ideal Christ intended, is first of all, whatever else it may be, first of all a story of what God has done for men.

Story of a Life

A crank-sided philosopher who did not much care for preachers once made the sarcastic remark that a preacher has a very simple job: all he does is to go to a man and say, "God has told me to tell you that you are a very wicked man. Ten dollars, please!" If that were all that preachers could say, it certainly would not be worth ten cents. Men need to be told that they are on the wrong road, certainly. But they know that, sometimes better than the preacher does. What the church is called on to preach—that is, to proclaim, to tell, to persuade men that it is true—is a story. First of all it is the story of a life, the life of Jesus Christ. The earliest Christian preaching of which we have any record told the story of Jesus. The four Gospels which we now have in writing got started as sermons. What we have before us in Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, is what the earliest Christian preachers—who, by the way, were all what we call "laymen"—told people in market-places, in private homes or in synagogues, wherever they could get a hearing—what they told about Jesus, who he was, what he did, what he said. Christian preaching that leaves out the story of Jesus is not really Christian. Preaching that concentrates on the death of Christ and says little about his life and teachings is not New Testament preaching. When the early church put the four Gospels—stories about Jesus—in the front of the New Testament, they knew what they were doing. What is in the front of the New Testament ought not to be out of sight in the church.

Story of a Death

More space is used up, in our written Gospels, telling the story of Jesus' last week, his trial and execution, than is used for any other week in his lifetime. Now that last week was to all appearances a tragedy, coming swiftly to a shameflu end. It is not a "nice" story. But the church told it, and still tells it. It was not at all necessary to dwell on it, one might think. All men die; why not Jesus too? But the church was not content to say simply that Jesus died on such and such a day. There was much more to be said, and much of what we have in the Epistles of the New Testament is just more "preaching" only this time not simply telling the story but explaining what it means. The four gospels all say that Jesus died. The epistles say, He died for our sins. The gospels tell us about a cross; the rest of the New Testament tells why that cross had to be. The cross marks the peak of the wickedness of the world. But it also marks the outpouring of the love of God. Nothing else that has ever happened, has expressed the love of God so eloquently as the Cross has done.

To Every Creature

A right church is never like a club. A club has nothing to say to people on the outside. Its members talk to one another, inside the club. But a church has something to say, a story to tell, a story to explain. It is the most important story in the world. You can believe other stories or not and it may make very little defference. But whether or not you believe the story the church has to tell makes all the difference in the world with you, the difference between life and death. So the church has set out to tell this story of God to every creature in the world. So long as there is still one soul who has not heard it, or does not believe it, the work of the church is not yet done.

CONGRESSIONAL MAIL-One of the best yardsticks for measuring the thinking and views of constituents is through the letters they write to me.

The letters usually reflect what is uppermost in the minds of the writers, and often deal with a subject not in the headlines.

With the historic action of the Congress in approving the Formosa resolution, I had anticipated receiving many letters on this issue, because of its importance. But up to now I have only received one letter directly and exclusively on that subject. It came from a farmer in Adams County, who was strongly in favor of the resolution. He supported both the President and the Congress in taking this step and said, "We like your vote on the President's message or resolution on Formosa. No one wants war, but we must take a stand one way or another. May God guide us in the right course."

VARIETY OF SUBJECTS—Considering that this is the opening of a new session, the mail has, in general, been light. Many of the letters have been concerned with Federal pay raises for postal employees, tariffs, universal military training (there is again great opposition to this proposal, against which I voted when it was before a previous Congress), social security and veterans' affairs.

SMALL WORLD DEPARTMENT—With the touchy situation facing this nation in the Far East, the fall of another French government, the removal of Russia's Malenkov as head of the Communist regime, it becomes increasingly evident that this is a small world and our lives are influenced by what goes on in the four corners of the globe. All of these disturbing developments are creating new policy and attitudes for our government to follow, as we, in the halls of Congress, attempt to help charter a plan for peace and security for our people.

There is caution and restraint in the government as greater illumination is thrown on the communist world conspiracy. By watchful waiting, reading between the lines, Washington is taking on new hope with the changes in the Kremlin. Any bad news for Russia can only be good news to the free world.

I firmly believe that under the Eisenhower leadership in the White House today--versed in military as well as executive affairs as he is--and with Congress fully aware of the Red evil abroad, we are daily strengthening our hands in dealing with the major issue before us--arresting the spread of communism.

We're planning for his future, too!

You may think Dad's a little early with the gifts he's chosen—but we don't. Planning five or ten years ahead is routine stuff for us. We, too, are lining up equipment and facilities so they're sure to be ready when they're needed. Fact is, it's even more important for us to work this way, for electricity can't be stored like ball bats and boxing gloves. It can't be made until a split second before it's used—but the power plants that make it and the lines that carry it take years to build.

This is for sure, too: whether Junior goes in for business, industry, professional work or farming, he'll use more electricity than his dad, for its use is increasing every year in every field. Junior's electrical future is bright, indeed, because we are planning and building for it . . . today.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Here we go again!

That's what I said to "D. B." (Ridgway) as we waited for the Butler-Orland game to start Wednesday at the Garrett gym. The thing that prompted the remark was the general air of excitement that prevailed as Indiana's high school tounrament prepared to get underway in this community's sectional program.

It was noisy, to be sure, and the din was peaked by the beginning of the familiar choruses that ran as follows:

"Good luck, Orland, good luck. Good luck, Orland, good luck. Orland, P. Lake says, 'Good luck'."

"Thanks, P. Lake, thanks. Thanks, P. Lake, thanks. P. Lake, Orland says, 'Thanks'."

"Good luck, Butler, good luck. Good luck, Butler, good luck. Butler, P. Lake says, 'Good luck'."

"Thanks, P. Lake, thanks. Thanks, P. Lake, thanks. P. Lake, Butler says, 'Thanks'."

—And so on until all the visiting schools had given their best wishes to the two participating teams and had received thanks for the wishes.

Riverdale had the largest group of visitors and the crowd took notice when our fellas and gals voiced their "good lucks."

It's really great the way everybody turns out for the P. T. A. carnival-suppers. At the shindig last Saturday night a total of something like 778 suppers were served by those hardworking ladies who toiled in the kitchen over a delicious ham supper. The line-up of hungry folks ran up into the gym this year as it did last. And upstairs the Masons, the Brattains and the Amstutz's kept the popular and lively bingo game going all evening with lots of folks trying their luck for prizes.

There was one calamity, though. The ring-a-duck concession operated by Wayne Smith and Harold Smith finally had to close up. The ducks were flying out of the water tank and the boys got a little wet -and tired of chasing ducks around the gym.

The profits from the affair should put the band pret-t-y close to their uniforms, but not quite there.

The Band Boosters are planning a sale in March to raise more funds.

Services Held For Cora Fetters

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Cora Fetters, 63, of near St. Joe who died Sunday evening.

A lifelong resident of DeKalb County, Mrs. Fetters died Sunday evening in the Souder Hospital at Auburn following a long illness. In failing health for several years, she submitted to major surgery for cancer at Fort Wayne last summer. She had been hospitalized four times since and was admitted to the Auburn hospital five weeks ago.

The deceased was born February 5, 1892, in Wilmington Township near Butler, the daughter of the late Frederick and Alice Keller. She was married to Mr. L. G. Fetters on October 5, 1911. For the past 40 years, the couple lived in the Concord community.

Surviving, besides the husband, are two sons, Wayne D. Fetters of Rt. 1, St. Joe and Walter L. Fetters, at home; four grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Anna Baker of Winter Park, Fla.; and three brothers, Roy Keller of Winter Park, Fla., David Keller and Elmer Keller, both of near Butler. Three sisters and a brother preceded her in death.

Services were conducted at the Dilgard and Cline Funeral Home in Auburn with Rev. Wayne Baxter officiating.

Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at St. Joe.

Comets End Season With 13-7 Record

Riverdale won a 56-55 victory over Wolcottville Friday evening at Waterloo and with it they gained a co-championship with Avilla in the State Corner Conference. Both had 5-1 won-lost records.

Friday's game had the appearance of an easy win at the outset for the locals as they took an 8-0 lead. They led at the quarter 14-7.

The Comets extended their lead to 31-20 at the half and maintained an eleven-point advantage at the three-quarter mark at 42-31.

Wolcottville then applied the pressure and pulled up to one point in the last few seconds. A Wolcottville shot went in at the horn but the officials ruled that the shot was taken after time ran out.

The prelim was won by Riverdale, 36-27.

Glenda Hawk Wins Home Ec Award

The Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow of the local school is Glenda Hawk, according to an announcement this week by Mrs. Louise McAninch, home ec instructor of Riverdale High School.

Glenda received the highest score in a written examination which tested the homemaking knowledge and attitudes of the senior girls in the graduating class. She will be entered in competition to name this state's candidate for the title of All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. She will also receive a golden award pin, cook books for herself and the school.

The national winner in this search conducted among 187,000 young women in 8,000 of the nation's public, private and parochial high schools will be named April 21 at an American table fete in Philadelphia.

General Mills is the sponsor of this program designed to assist schools in building in young women a deeper appreciation and understanding of the American home and the personal qualities necessary to successful homemaking.

A scholarship of $1,500 will be awarded each state winner, and she will receive a trip with her school advisor to Washington, D. C., colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Philadelphia. Her school will receive a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

The scholarship of the young woman named All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow will be increased to $5,000.

The 50-minute written examination designed and judged by Science Research Associates of Chicago, which was given to all participants in this national research, consisted of multiple choice and subjective questions which tested the students' attitude and knowledge in the major areas of homemaking.

Each girl who took the test received a 24-page homemaking guide which will assist her in pursuing the career of homemaking.

NEW LIFE IN CHRIST

Lesson for March 6, 1955

The human race is a strange mixture of friendship and quarrels. People can't get along without one another, or with one another either. People flock together in all sorts of clubs and organizations and yet many of these gatherings of people either spend their time fighting some other groups, or even fighting among themselves. The trouble is that most bonds uniting men are neither deep nor strong enough to stand the strains life places on them. Business partnerships break up at the breath of failure; political combinations are as fragile as old china; while as for international alliances, most people have now forgotten that ten years ago Russia was counted one of our best friends and Germany our worst enemy.

The True Center

There is one fellowship, and just one, which is world-wide, which has cemented persons and peoples of the most diverse kinds, which has endured past the dying of innumerable other bonds and unions. This closest of all the bonds known on earth is the fellowship of Christian love. If some romantic person rises to ask if the bond of love between man and his wife is not the strongest tie between human beings, it must be pointed out that the records of the divorce courts show that the marriage bond is much less likely to break down where husband and wife are both practicing Christians —that is to say, it is Christian fellowship that keeps marriage-fellowship from breakdown. Now what makes the fellowship of true Christian love so strong It isn't that Christians are so much more lovable than other persons. The secret is not in the Christians, it is in Christ. Why do iron filings gather so closely together around a magnet? Take the magnet away and they scatter easily. Take Christ out of the church and it soon falls apart in indifference and even bitter quarrels. "We love, because he first loved us," is the secret of right Christian fellowship.

Breaking Barriers

We have many barriers in modern life which divide us into tight groups, misunderstanding and often undermining one another. There are management and labor, urban and rural, adults and adolescents, white and Negro, high and low salary-bracket, and so on. The fact is that none of these barriers is anywhere nearly so strong as was the line, in early Christian times, between Jew and Gentile, or between master and slave. These were simply uncrossable barriers. Master and slave, Jew and Gentile, were not class distinctions, they were iron-clad castes. The most astounding thing about the Christian church, in its fresh early years—astounding even to leaders like Paul—was that these caste-lines had been erased in the Christian fellowship. Jew and Gentile remembered only that they both loved the same Christ who had died for all. Master and slave met as brothers when they became Christians. The sharpest human divisions faded in the light of the cross. So it is today. People who live in segregated church, whether the segregation-line is economic of Christian fellowships that cross these human lines by the divine force of Christian love.

Questions for Church Members

The final test of a church, whether it is a true church—whether a particular congregation has a right to call itself a part of Christ's true church—the final test is that of fellowship. It would be a good idea for church members to give themselves a stiff examination on this line. Do the members of this church treat one another in a more brotherly way than outsiders do? Are social, racial, economic class-lines drawn between this and other churches, even inside the church itself, or is this one place where all meet on one common ground? Do the members share with one another, and if so, what do they share? Is there for example a sharing in prayer? If one member has had a high experience, do others hear about it? If one needs the other's prayers, is he free to say so, and why? Would a stranger to this church get the impression that this is a group gathered for convenience only, or a genuine fellowship of love?

It's highway robbery!

For sheer fun out on the road, Chevrolet's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars!

Up to this year, maybe there were reasons for wanting one of the higher-priced cars. If you demanded something really special in the way of driving fun, you simply had to pay a premium to get it.

Not any more! The Motoramic Chevrolet has changed all that. Who could wish for more excitement than the new 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire V8" delivers? (For those who do, 180-h.p. is optional at extra cost in all V8 models.) Chevrolet also offers the two highest powered sixes in its field.

Come in and see how the Motoramic Chevrolet is stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars!

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, March 3, 1955 | NUMBER 9

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Yippeeee! The days are getting longer and warmer! It's spring training time! Yippee!

Now, getting back to earth, we have a few "thank you's" to dish out for the chairmen and leaders of the Heart Fund Drive. Mabel Tustison has sent her thanks to those who helped make the drive in St. Joe and Newville a success. In particular she recognizes Mrs. Robert Sechler, Mr. Joe Yaste, Mr. Hershel Shockley, Mr. Joe Robinson and Troop 173 Boy Scouts of St. Joe — oh yes, and the St. Joe News, by golly.

Mrs. Carlos Church, who is the local representative in the county heart organization, also expresses her appreciation for the community's participation.

Mrs. Merl Furnish, chairman of the Spencerville drive, sends her thanks for that community's help in the drive and in particular she recognizes the help of Valda Brown, Jean Moore, Maxine Kelley, Peggy Koch, Betty Beckman, Mary Wisel and Shirley Smith.

The collections were as follows:

SPENCERVILLE
House to house	41.58
School Hearts	$34.71
Plastic Hearts	7.23
Culture Club	5.00
Spencer Home Dem. Club	5.00
John Koch	5.00
Total	$98.52
ST.JOE - NEWVILLE
Door-to-door coll.	$85.00
Plastic Hearts, club donations, etc.	55.00
Total	$140.00

Speaking of "thank you's" it would be appropriate if everyone who took part in the P.T.A. Carnival and Supper turned around and said "thank you" to every other one who took part. It was really a swell turn-out in all departments, from the ladies in the kitchen who began potato peeling in the afternoon to the operators of the concessions upstairs to the school students who sold supper tickets and operated booths to the ticket sellers and takers to the people who came to enjoy the evening.

I could start naming names and run up a big long list—and forget somebody along the line, so I won't. You know who they were if you turned out for the program. But I do want to mention the "motherly" eye kept on the whole works by the president of the P.T.A. and his Mrs., Bill and Marcia Sible. They were the ones who saw that all the pieces were falling into place.

Nearly eight hundred suppers were served that evening in the basement of the Spencerville Community Building.

Mrs. Carper, treasurer, of the P.T.A., reports that $853.95 was taken in that night and $640.40 collected in advance ticket sales by the students. Rita Reinhart and David Walters won wrist watches for selling the most supper tickets in a contest sponsored by the P.T.A.

The king and queen contest produced the following regal figures: Shirley Noack and Cal Coburn. She received flowers and he a billfold.

Comets Lose; Auburn Goes To Regional

Anticipation of a possible upset in the Auburn-Garrett sectional tourney the past week end on the part of the Riverdale Comets was short-lived. Hopes ran high in the community that the local five would be able to gain an unexpected victory over the Butler Windmills in the Comets' first bit of tournament participation. In the first period of play last Thursday evening at Garrett it looked as if that anticipation and those hopes would become a reality as Riverdale took a first period lead of 14-8 and in general looked like the proverbial "million bucks" in taking the early lead.

But the Windmills quickly organized thereafter and steadily built up a lead that they never relinquished. They dominated play through the final three quarters. When Dave Walters and Gene Carper fouled out in the last stanza, the Windmills coasted to their 56-41 win.

After that great first quarter the Comets just couldn't get up enough steam to sustain a scoring attack.

Meanwhile the Auburn Red Devils were on their way to their seventh straight sectional title, downing Angola in the sectional final by a score of 65-57. They will face the Monmouth Eagles in the second afternoon game at the Coliseum in Fort Wayne Saturday. Fort Wayne North Side and Avilla tangle in the 1:00 p.m. contest.

The two winners will then compete for the right to represent the Fort Wayne regional at the semi-finals in Elkhart in the 8:15 p.m. game.

Couple Injured In Auto-Train Accident

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart of near St. Joe were injured Tuesday afternoon in an auto-train accident at Greensburg, Indiana.

Reports of the accident from relatives indicate that the entire front end of the car was sheared off at a crossing in Greensburg. The door on the driver's side was also torn off.

The accident occurred at approximately 1:30 p.m. Tuesday as the Harts were making a return trip to St. Joe from Florida where they had spent the winter.

Mr. Hart suffered a broken shoulder and Mrs. Hart sustained rib fractures. Both were taken to a hospital at Greensburg for treatment before being brought to Sanders Hospital in Auburn Wednesday evening.

Students Score High On I. U. Exams

Ben Simpson, principle of Riverdale High School, announced this week that four students from the local high school are eligible for scholarships from Indiana University as a result of recent written examinations.

11,810 students from the state took the tests at various high school centers. Locally the tests were given at the Butler High School with twelve Riverdale High School students participating. December 10 was the date of the tests.

Four of the students from Riverdale scored 70 percentile or better. (Percentile is a system of grading denoting the percentage of students scoring below the grade of a specified student.) They were Jerry Woodring 92 percentile, Paul Baney 91 percentile, Charles Vincent 72 percentile and Loren DeLong 70 percentile.

Others taking the tests were Richard Bassett, Nola Ewell, John Heyman, Bob Lochamire, Wilbur Lothamer, Shirley Miller, Bob Plummer and Mary Wisel.

A score of 70 or better qualifies for the Indiana University scholarships.

Discipline To Preserve Order

If you ever go back through past issues of this paper, you find that there is a great amount of space consumed in reporting school activities or activities relative to the operation of the school. This is as it should be for we find upon close observation that the life of a small community literally centers about the school. There are many suppers, plays, magazine campaigns, etc., and the meetings of many of the community organizations are held in the school building.

There are times, however, when school "news" is not on the constructive level, "news" which we, and many others, would prefer not to hear, but still must heed because in some way that news got its start. Such an instance has occurred in the past few weeks concerning for the most part the disciplining of students in the high school, both in and on the school grounds proper and away from school property. The stories that are making the rounds at this time show once again that parenthood is failing in some instances in its obligation to society to instill in the youth of this country, and this community, an appreciation of the need for respect for their elders and respect for the offices and actions of those who hold positions which we commonly refer to in the category of "public servants." In this particular instance, the principle's office of the Riverdale High School has been the subject for criticism following recent acts of discipline which were apparently justified in the mind of the principle himself or he would not have resorted to them.

This is not intended to be a defense of the principle's disciplinary procedure. It IS, however, a defense (if that is the proper term for it) of his conclusion that discipline was called for and that it was within the limits of a principle's duties to extend discipline where needed. Too many individuals are inclined to forget that a school student, during school hours, is the child of the school and its faculty. There is no justification for the strife that is caused by parents who take son's or daughter's word for implied abuse of some sort relative to the conduct of school activities and who then tell others of the way the school is being run, according to the impression that son or daughter has given through his or her story. There is no justification for indignation at the discipline that may be handed out to son or daughter for breaking the rules that must be followed if we are to have any sort of school discipline. The only exception to the need for a passive attitude in this respect occurs when the discipline or punishment becomes abusive, when unreasonable physical punishment is meted out or apparent mental anguish is caused. From the information making the rounds in the stories we have heard, no one has been beat up nor has anyone's mental capabilities been seriously impaired. However, nine students have dropped out of school this year, most of them apparently because of disagreement with decisions of the principle. Four of the students received three-day suspensions, two dropping out of school at the time of the suspension and two later. There have been no students "expelled" from school; this can be done only on action taken by the school board.

Before we are accused of advocating the attitude that "you can't believe what your kid tells you," let us qualify our opinion thusly. The story which son or daughter brings home is influenced by their like or dislike of what happened. If something funny happens, they will tell everything that adds to the humor of the situation. But if something else happens which they do not particularly enjoy, everything DIS-agreeable will be included to add to the strength of the story. Unfortunately, it is the "adverse" side of human events which is emphasized more highly in all walks of life, witness the adult's acceptance and remembrance of the "bad" things he hears about his neighbor though the "good" things exceed them ten to one. So, we say believe that son or daughter "believes" his or her story represents the facts; then before giving vent to personal feelings and reactions through public pronouncements, do a little investigating and get the other side of the story.

We have, in the state of Indiana and throughout the nation, for that matter, a great deal of concern these days for the problem of constructing schools large enough and in sufficient quantity to house the present number of boys and girls of school age. There must also be an allowance for the ever-growing population, meaning that future expansion must be expected and the necessary money raised to finance school construction. Here in this very community, with the consolidation of three townships now in effect and many students from nearby townships adding to the total number of enrollment, we face the problem of school construction. Regardless of when the actual job of building begins or is completed, we, generally speaking, are looking forward to "the new school." We are looking forward to a bigger and better school with greater educational facilities contained in an enlarged curriculum. We are looking for a bigger and better "everything" as far as the school is concerned when we think of the future.

There is just one drawback. That bigger and better school building will not mean a thing without 'bigger and better" parents and students to go with it. The education of the community will not improve one iota if we are to take the attitude that son or daughter is a delicate thing and the faculty has no right to discipline him or her beyond the "pretty please" stage. The value to this country of the young men and women who graduate from that bigger and better school building will be no greater if we fail to instill in them an understanding of the importance of respect for person and property.

Most important of all, we will not enjoy, now or in the future regardles of the beauty or adequacy of the school edifice, a stable educational system in this community if we expect school teachers and principles to be "perfect."

Southernly Speaking

We're not speaking with a southern accent when we say "you all did a good job." But we are accenting the "good job" when we speak of the efforts put forth by all of you who helped to make the Riverdale P. T. A. Carnival and Supper a success.

Because of those efforts the Riverdale School Band is one big step nearer obtaining uniforms for its members. With the settling of accounts nearly completed except for a few possible small expenses outstanding, the treasurer of the P.T.A. has disclosed that approximately one thousand dollars is in the organization's treasury earmarked for the band's benefit.

The carnival and supper took in approximately fifteen hundred dollars and expenses came near the five hundred dollar mark.

Outfitting the band with forty uniforms will cost about two thousand dollars, more or less. With the P.T.A. contribution plus the Band Boosters treasury plus the Lions Club donation of two hundred dollars, the band has reached the three-quarter mark of its goal.

Yessir, you all did good.

As Dean Manion pointed out in his address here (Fort Wayne) not so long ago there is a pressure group in the United States for almost every selfish interest, but none at all for the preservation of our political system itself. You can go to Washington and find in the telephone book the telephone number of thousands of agencies all plugging for special causes but none at all for any agency trying to look after the interests of all the people. This wholesale organization of pressure groups seems to have been just one of those developments accompanying the growth of our highly complicated system of living.

Time and time again, newspapermen have had the experience of being besought by persons to launch vigorous opposition to something which newspapers had been fighting for a long time, but which the seeker of help ignored simply because at the time the thing objected to did not touch him.

People who blithely ignored militarization of this country when their own children were in baby stages suddenly started worrying about it as soon as their own youngsters had reached the military age.

People who worked for others and then went into business for themselves all of a sudden became indignant about the restrictions and requirements of tax laws, employment laws, and other controls, which in the past never bothered them. People who never worried about whether judges were good or bad suddenly became incensed about judges as soon as a case of theirs arrived in court.

By the very nature of things most persons seem to be so constituted that nothing that happens to someone else is worth bothering about. It is only when it happens to them that they get excited. But a person indifferent to what happens to someone else can't expect that someone else to bother when it finally happens to him.

Many persons seemed dumbfounded to hear Dean Manion say in his address here that the Supreme Court Justices had tied four to four in a decision whether or not our own Constitution or the provisions of the UN obtained in the case of an Indian soldier denied burial rights in a private cemetery. Yet newspapers and magazines all carried stories of the Supreme Court decision.

Americans in this age seem to be lulled to sleep by a conviction that everything is going to be all right in the sweet bye and bye, no matter what happens now. That feeling is in direct contrast to the feelings of our forefathers who wrote the Constitution of the Unied States. They were not only the greatest optimists, but also the greatest of pessimists. They foresaw a great future for this country, but they also knew from personal knowledge of history that government is always the greatest enemy of man's freedom, and that the government itself in this country had to be watched by a Constitution protective of the people. They were very cautious men. They wanted power well distributed and they wanted the Federal Goverment to be at all times a servant of the people in the various states, not their master. They were afraid, for good reasons, of what power can do to create tyranny. They said, "There is a need for faith," but they also said, "There is a need for protection of the people against the excesses of government, lest there be an end to freedom."

We have drifted farther and farther away from the convictions of our forefathers, so much so that the indifference which we are now showing toward what happens to the other ellow may, sooner than we think, destroy the last vestiges of human liberty in one of its few remaining sanctuaries.

—"Good Evening," Clifford B. Ward

There's an even more penetrating way to "share the wealth," as the late Huey Long phrased it, than the Democratic Party leaders have thought of with their $20 cut in taxes for everybody. It's equally logical and it could mean an even bigger potential in vote getting.

Thus there are about 55,000,000 citizens with incomes under $5,000 a year. This is a sizeable number of voters and enough to win an election if they vote solely on selfish grounds.

A scheme would be devised to free this entire group from the payment of any federal taxes whatsoever. It would cost the Treasury of the United States $8.5 billions. But if demagoguery is to be the rule, then there's a simple way to make it up — just increase the taxes on the persons with incomes of $25,000 a year or more. They're paying $8.7 billions a year already. The addition of $8.5 billions in tax payments would, of course, virtually confiscate the incomes of the most thrifty and the most successful citizens. Confiscation, however, is the eventual goal of the Socialists, and the Democratic Party is rapidly becoming the Socialist Party in America anyway.

It so happens that there are about 800,000 taxpayers in this country whose incomes are $25,000 a year or over. They pay more in total taxes than do the 55,000,000 who have incomes under $5,000 a year. They are carrying the heaviest tax burden already.

If the "share the wealth" doctrine is to become dominant, it would mean the eventual destruction of incentive and a consequent drop in the incomes of all persons now earning incomes over $5,000 a year. The goal of Communism — as well as of its twin brother, Socialism — is to do away with the managerial class or so to weaken its spirit as to cause the whole private-enterprise system to collapse.

Union labor, which has thrived under the system of risk capital, would not be able to get the increases in wages or pension benefits now enjoyed if the management class in America were wiped out as it has been in Soviet Russia or in countries where state capitalism is in vogue.

It is a paradox that the labor-unior leaders in America have lined themselves up politically with the Democratic Party, whose latest program confirms a suspicion that the party is bent on impairing the very economic system that has benefitted labor so widely. But the rank and file of the workers do not have much to say about the political maneuvers of the labor bosses. Their dues, which are supposed to be used for union benefits, are applied to pay big salaries to executives of the unions who spend a large part of their time in political activities.

Also, by the use of the compulsory unionization law, the union bosses hold the power of economic life or death over the worker and, unless he goes along with the political-campaign programs, even though they lead to socialistic ends, the ordinary union member can lose his job as a punishment for failing to conform.

The Democratic Party in the last election said through its leaders that it would support the president and promised also to favor policies of fiscal soundness. But the Democratic-controlled Congress has been here less than two months, and it is becoming crystal clear that such campaign pledges have already been abandoned.

A pattern of strategy is emerging. The Democratic leaders favor more and more spending — more billions for all kinds of socialistic adventures, including a program of government-owned electric-light-and-power projects. They also favor more and more exemptions from taxation for the maximum number of voters. Both approaches, while contradictory from any standpoint of fiscal soundness, mean a budget unbalanced by a wide margin. Then the Democratic Party spokemen will claim that the Eisenhower Administration has failed to balance the budget as promised in 1952.

It is beginning to look as if the 1954 election was very costly to the American people because it was influenced by the most deceptive piece of campaigning that the country has ever witnessed. The Democratic argument was that a depression was coming and that the number of unemployed would increase. It turns out now that the mild recession was short-lived and that business is booming because, in making 1955 plans, businessmen have had confidence in the fiscal policies of the Eisenhower Administration. They expanded facilities after making a remarkable adjustment to the post-Korean war shrinkages in Government spending.

If, however, the budget is to be heavily unbalanced and the Democratic Party in Congress — which never balanced a budget in 20 years — is to continue in power after the next election, the country will experience a real inflation. That would come from a rapid increase in the cost of living and a severe drop in the purchasing power of the dollar. That threat apparently has no terrors for the Democrats, who are out to win in 1956 by what representative Daniel Reed of New York, a veteran member of Congress, describes as a scheme for buying the electorate. It remains to be seen whether the electorate can be bought by a $20 tax cut per voter, and whether socialism, as offered by the Democratic Party leadership, is going to be accepted in preference to a sound dollar and a system of private enterprise.

Bus Inspection Begins

Annual inspection of Indiana's 6,000 public school buses will start March 7 under a revised state law which calls for major safety changes in the method of transporting 285,000 students each school day, State Police Supt. Frank A. Jessup has revealed.

Forty state policemen in the 10 department districts will conduct the inspections, he said, which will be between February 1 and March 15 in suceeding years. Bus operators thus will have until the next September 1 to comply with state school bus standards. Compliance will be indicated by an official windshield sticker of approval.

The change from the previous fall inspections was one of several revisions made by the state school bus committee and endorsed by J. Clayton Brown, Huntington, president of the Indiana Township Trustees Association, and Elbert Richards, Greensburg, Indiana School Bus Drivers Association president.

In praising the support of the trustees and bus drivers groups, Supt. Jesup asserted the new law "establishes maximum protection for pupils while in transit."

He cited as an example a move to relieve dangerous overcrowding by requiring that all student-passengers be seated in buses operated after September 1, 1958. Increased enrollments and insufficient buses presently forces some pupils to stand in bus aisles in transit in several counties.

While most of the changes will be effective next September 1, adequate time was allowed by the committee in setting up the change-over to permit local school units to anticipate their budgetary requirements and to negotiate contracts for bus service under the new law. Some school systems operate their own bus fleets, while others contract with private owners, Mr. Jessup said.

Besides the revised inspection time, other changes effective next September 1 include improved identification of school buses by means of a chrome yellow exterior color, larger explanatory lettering, and a blue light on top. Two red flashing lights at both the front and rear, turn signals, forward-facing seats, first aid kit, roomier seats and aisles and an emergency door are required.

Rear view mirrors on each side and a mirror to enable the driver to see children who step in front of the bus also are required. Graduated tinted windshields and interior book or luggage racks are prohibited.

The regulations specify that by September 1, 1956, buses with a capacity of 48 or more passengers must be equipped with booster-type brakes and heavy-duty generators.

Members of the state school bus comittee are Wilbur Young, state superintendent of public instruction, president; Edward W. Beaman, state commerce and public relations director, secretary; and Morris J. Carter, state motor vehicle bureau commissioner; Robert Yoho, state board of health secretary; Warren Buchanan, state public service commission chairman; and Supt. Jessup.

Carl Carpenter of near St. Joe was one of the many participants in the Sixth Hoosier Spring Barrow Show held Tuesday at the Indiana State Fairgrounds in Indianapolis.

Swine men from 50 counties showed 767 hogs in the foot competition Tuesday held in the Swine Barn.

Sponsored by Purdue University, Kingan, Inc., and the Indiana Swine Breeder's Association, the show is designed to focus attention of breeders and pork consumers alike on the modern meat-type hog.

The show recessed until Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m. At this time, the carcasses of the hogs which won in the on-foot judging will be displayed along with those of the barrows winning prizes in the carcass competition. This show, like Tuesday's live show, is open to the public. A luncheon, compliments of Kingan, will be served at the carcass show Saturday.

Mr. Carpenter's winning entry came in heavyweight single barrow class of Purebred Tamworths. The entry won a seventh place award.

'Y' Groups Organize

The Riverdale High School was honored Tuesday in having Mr. Nathan Wooden, Associate State Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., help the newly organized Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y groups off to a good start.

The platform is clean speech, clean sports, clean scholarship and clean living.

A candle light induction service is being planned for the clubs. The public will be invited.

The school sponsors are Miss Valerie Machlik for the Tri-Hi-Y and Ben Simpson for the Hi-Y.

Sport Snorting - -

The Auburn Red Devils continued their domination of sectional tourney play for this area last week end with their seventh straight sectional title. The final game Saturday night was far from a sure thing, however, when the Auburn five, after a smooth first quarter, suddenly found the whistles tooting against them and they were called for a dozen infractions in the second period. Angola took advantage of the difficulties encountered by the Red Devils in attempting to counteract the foul situation while at the same time preventing Angola baskets. It wasn't until late in the game that the winners were able to gain their substantial lead and keep it.

The local five had somewhat the same situation confronting them in their only tilt, though ending on the losing side of the score. They were called for no personal fouls in the first quarter while making good on charity attempts. Then in the second half the personal foul bugaboo hit them with Dave Walters and Gene Carper fouling out. Carper, whose performance was far from inadequate, probably was not able to give his best for this game as he was ill just prior to the tourney week end and was given doses of pennicillin to assure his appearance in the line-up.

A former student in the local school, now attending the Butler school, was a thorn in the side of the Comets, particularly Wilbur Lothamer on one occasion. Don Tharp, who led Butler's first quarter scoring, was guarding Lothamer closely in one instance and had the latter slightly perturbed. As Lothamer wrenched back and forth to avoid being "tied up" for a jump ball, he acidentally clipped Tharp across the brow with his arm. On a later occasion with another Butler player, the same wrenching action brought a foul on the Riverdale guard.

Blair of Butler demonstrated his jumping ability when he got away on a fast break for a wide open shot. He leaped high into the air and lightly rolled the ball over the front edge of the basket. Wilson also exhibited his agility with a few tip-in shots in rebounding.

Despite the loss in the sectional tourney, the Comets ended the season with an impressive record of thirteen wins and eight defeats. The steady improvement of the team since the beginning of the season has brought nothing but praise for the efforts of the team players and particularly the leadership of the Riverdale coach, Price Brookfield. It took a few games for the coach to "know" his players and the players to likewise become acquainted with the coach. Their performances in the subsequent outings were indicative of their team handclasp and characteristic "all for one and one for all" shout as they bounded onto the floor for play.

As was hoped for at the beginning of the season, some of the playing experience and "savvy" of Coach Brookfield "rubbed off" on his boys.

Elsewhere in sports, in the professional ranks, the Fort Wayne Komets may well be wondering what it is that got rubbed off on them. They had the highest scoring average in the past several games of all the league teams. The trouble is, the other teams as a whole had enjoyed a higher average as the Komet defense suffered a relapse. Plagued all season long with injuries to players, the local hockey team has had its hopes raised time and again that they would make the play-offs. But with this latest crimp in the Komet attack, it looks as if another year will pass before Fort Wayne's pucksters will have a chance at the play-offs.

The Zollner Pistons also are having their difficulties in keeping the league lead in the National Basketball Association. With the bottom half of their schedule showing a majority of road games and with a jinx by the New York team which has produced seven straight New York victories, the Pistons find a tough job on their hands. The first place team in the final standings gains a home-floor advantage in the play-offs and the Zollner team seeks that advantage. They won two important games from second place Minneapolis last week and another from Milwaukee before stumbling Sunday evening against the aforementioned Knickerbockers to drop a 95-83 decision. The Pistons had a bad night with a poor shooting percentage, failing several times on rebound shots and lay-ups. However, they bounded back Monday and Tuesday with wins over Minneapolis and Boston before dropping a game to Syracuse Wednesday.

Later this month there will be a lot of rumbling doing on at the Coliseum. The ABC Tournament will get underway with hundreds of bowlers, including local entries, participating in the biggest of bowling events.

ATOMIC BOMB BLAST—On Washington's birthday, at the darkest hour before dawn, I had the awe-inspiring privilege of witnessing my second atomic bomb explosion in the proving grounds near Indian Springs Air Force Base, Nevada. Last year, near the same area, I was among another group of Congressmen watching the Atomic Energy Commission set off the first atomic shell fired from a gun. This year's explosion was a smaller shot fired from a high tower in the desolate wastes of Nevada.

In contract to last year's explosion, which was geared to the latest development in national defense from nuclear weapons, this one brought to light the last word in scientific development of this great force for protection from atomic attack.

It was encouraging to learn that our scientists in this new field of power have discovered that there is a chance of survival if a person should be in the area where an atomic bomb had been dropped. Of course, a direct hit or near miss by such a bomb would wipe out everything within its immediate surroundings.

But in explaining what they have learned in the past year in the nuclear field, these scientists said that by following a few simple actions, unless close to a direct hit, most persons should recover or keep fairly safe from an atomic blast.

The safest place to be, if the area was attacked, would be in the basement or cellar, preferably protected by supports to keep the biulding or dwelling from falling in on one.

The atomic officials sugested that in such case one should have on hand some food, water and a portable battery radio so one could receive messages as to when an area was cleared of radio activity. By simply washing with soap and water, much of this radio-activity which is the serious aftermath of an atomic explosion may be removed. It was pointed out that atomic energy has been used effectively to preserve meats and food-stuffs and this is a great development for peace-time uses of nuclear power. Canned goods and food subjected to radio-activity should be washed before being consumed.

I was particularly impressed to hear learned men -- experienced in handling this powerful force -- explaining what they had discovered in dealing with atomic power in the short time since we saw the first atomic shot fired from a gun.

It is encouraging -- and I believe you will agree -- to know that we can live with atomic power. And, of course, I fervently hope that the future discoverles and use of this fearful weapon will be channeled into constructive fields, thus making it work for peace and a higher standard of living -- rather than merely devoting our efforts toward making it a force of destruction.

HOW TO PRAY

Lesson for March 13, 1955

Prayer is contact. It is contact between man and God. It is contact of the finite with the infinite. A Christian, a real Christian, who does not pray, is as absurd and impossible a figure as an athlete who never leaves his bed, a student without a brain, a human being who never eats. Not to pray is to lose contact with the living God. "Prayer is the Christian's vital breath" as the old hymn says. All Christians know this but many feel puzzled about it all the same. Our prayers seem feeble and useless and we may even be tempted to give them up entirely; but many who give up praying would keep on if they only knew how.

Ask!

There is so much in the New Testament about prayer, that a person may well read it through with this one question in mind. Let any reader who wants to try this, start out with a good translation of the New Testament (the R. S. V. for instance or some other modern and readable version) and a blank notebook. In each day's reading notice every reference to prayer—who prayed, why, how, what the result was; or what is said about prayer (as for instance by Jesus and Paul). Some points, it will be found, come out over and over again. Others may be touched on rarely. But few days wil go by without the reader finding something that can be jotted down in the notebook, which may have for a title: "What I Have Learned About Prayer From the New Testament." One thing will certainly come out from the first. Prayer is something God expects of all His children. Prayer is a privilege but it is also a duty. You can raise all the riddles about prayer you can think of—and they are many. You can think of all sorts of things that scare you away from prayer—your own insignificance, God's greatness, the strong possibility that you may not know what is really best for you, and so forth. But all those things were true when Jesus gave His friends those three simple commands: Ask! Seek! Knock! There are blessings that come only to those who ask. There is a light to be found only by those who seek. There are doors that open only to the voice of prayer. Without confidence, prayer ends before it starts.

In Jesus' Name

One thing Jesus said has met with much misunderstanding: "If ye ask anything in My name, I will do it." It is not right to think of this promise as attaching a magical influence to the form of words "In Jesus name, Amen." It not true that any prayer ending with those words is a prayer that will be answered, and any prayer not ending with those words will not be answered. That is not what Jesus meant at all. Take the story of the two prayers, the publican's and the pharisee's (Luke 18:9-14). Would the pharisee's prayer have been answered and honored if he had ended that proud petition, or rather that prayer of thanksgiving, with the words "In Jesus' Name"? Of course not. If he had added such words they would have been out of place. A prayer in that holy Name is truly in the Name only when it expresses the mind of Christ, only when (so to speak) he could sign his name to it. The more nearly our prayers are like what our Lord Himself would think of, the more nearly they will come to being fully answered.

Our Lord's Prayer

The most famous prayer in the world, the one most often repeated by Christians, is the Lord's Prayer. Jesus did not intend this as a formula. A Christian who never prays except in these exact words would not have understood what Jesus taught about praying. What Jesus did mean by giving us this prayer is to show us the "manner" of prayer—that is, the lines on which true prayer must be made. The reader is encouraged to study this short but wonderful prayer again and again, as a guide to his own talks with God. One very important thought is in the very first word: "Our." If the first "how" of prayer is confidence in God, thes second is harmony with the mind of Christ, and the third is sugested by this word "our"—remembering we are not alone. If any desire is selfish it is desire that God will not bless.

Around the Town

With the Editor

All it takes is some little remark about the weather and boom—the roof falls in. Here we are back to the milder temperatures, again, after that cold snap last week end. Now let's see what happens.

We came as close as we'll ever come to winning last Thursday night. The Pistons gave away their yearly Chevvie and the young man who was called to receive the keys to the new buggy was sitting right next to us.

The Ridgways are about ready to throw in the towel.

That adage of misfortune occurring in threes is holding true in their case. Callie in the hospital from a bad fall, Mildred getting her hand in the washing machine and the pipes freezing and busting to give things a nice wet appearance.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met on March 2 at the home of Mrs. William Staman. Mrs. Maurice Kline led the reading of the collect and the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Don Burley presented the lesson on "Miracles of the Age." She used the definition of the word "miracle" as the base and branched out by telling several examples. She also cited the opinions of two doctors and two ministers on the subject.

Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser presided during the "Hidden Talents" session. Mrs. Weldon Shafer read an original letter to honorary and emeritus members on the state of the Literary Club this year.

Mrs. Carlos Church accompanied Mrs. Frank Shull who sang "My Task." Mrs. Charles Krise read "Tea Party" and "I Met God In the Morning." Mrs. Carl Sipe recited "Aunt Jeremiah's Courtship." Mrs. Cora Curie read "Taxes, Taxes, Taxes." Mrs. Claud Laeub then recited "Boy sFlying Kites." The remaining members made appropriate comments on their hidden talents.

Mrs. Don Burley read a "news summary of the week" for entertainment.

Eighteen members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Cora Curie, parliamentarian, read the club constitution with eight proposed changes. The club voted for the revision.

Mrs. Carl Carpenter read the critic's report.

Club was adjourned and refreshments were served by the hostess.

Pros. Attorney To Address PTA Tuesday

Instrumental solos will be presented by students of Miss Betty Boggs, head of the music department of the Riverdale schools.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS

The girls' 4-H club of Concord Township was recently organized. A new name was chosen for the club, "Workers Not Shirkers."

The following officers were elected:

Gladys Ross—president.

Esther Fetters—vice president.

Janet Jarrett — secretary - treasurer.

Carol Flesher—news reporter.

Ruth Washler and Cheryll Collins—recreation leaders.

Carol Baker—song leader.

Rita Reinhart—health and safety leader.

Meetings will be held following school until 5:30 p.m. at the home of the leader on the second Monday of each month until school is out. After that meetings will be held every two weeks. The next meeting will be held March 14.

Projects must be completed by the first week of August. There is still plenty of time to enroll and club members are anxious to see "new faces" at Monday's meeting.

Men of Patience

Of all the admirable qualities in human character, the most desirable, the most to be sought after, the most satisfying, the most rewarding is the most difficult to attain.

That quality is patience.

Though this particular quality can be found in all walks of life, it is significant that the greatest examples of patience are to be found in the ministry. This is not surprising since that quality is the most outstanding in the attitude of God toward His creation, mankind. If we stop to analyze the situation and consider the stumbling about which the human race exhibits in its seeking of eternal life, we find that the biggest hindrance to attaining that goal is the fact that man is not willing to accept and acknowledge by his actions what he accepts and acknowledges in words. And if we stop to think of the mental anguish mankind must cause his Creator—multiply the many weaknesses of one person by the population of the world—we can see that it requires a great deal of patience to keep from blotting out the human race for its practice of disbelief.

Patience it is, first in the heart of God, but also in the hearts of those of the ministry, that allows for the day when a man becomes aware of a weakness. That is the day when he sees the words of truth spoken again and again as they apply to him. Think for a moment of the years and decades and centuries since the power and promise of God were revealed to man. All these years of looking for something that is there to be had by following ten specific rules as closely as possible. And think of the years that man has believed that his promised reward can be obtained through those rules, yes, partly, but also through some rules of his own which are easier to follow. Now while he seeks an easier way, there are those who admonish him of the errors of mankind, those who have felt compelled to further the teachings, to perpetuate this promise by bringing to all men regular broadcasts from the pulpit. Now think of the thousands and thousands of words spoken each week, in particular on Sunday mornings, words which are too often allowed to pass in one ear and out the other. Hours of preparation go into the minister's sermon which is delivered in minutes. Think of the many, many times when these men of God must be tempted to say, "What's the use!" and let the human race fall as it will.

Were it not for patience on the part of those who are the backbone of our religious and spiritual being, we today probably would not know what the Bible is nor what it contains. A minister is not patient in every way. Such patience would be superhuman. But all ministers who devote their lives to the word of God are living examples of the very same patience which God himself shows toward all creation.

Guest Editorial

I was 15, redheaded, the eldest of five. I sat at one end of the pastor's pew; my brothers and sister—each a year apart—sloped down like a flight of stairs to my mother at the end. Father, in the pulpit, announced his text: "And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain."

"What nonsense!" I thought to myself. "Why should any man compel me to go a mile; and if he did, why should I be so chickenhearted as to say, 'All right. Just to show you I'm a good sport, I'll go another'? It doesn't make sense."

This seemingly idealistic precept, Father went on, is the best advice by which any person can shape his life. The world is filled with people who, by the necessity of making a living, are constrained to travel the first mile—the mile of duty and necessity. They take the job; they put in the eight hours. They aren't paid to think or worry—that's up to the boss. If he falls down, that's too bad. There are other jobs.

But one among them says to himself, "There ought to be a quicker, more efficient way of doing this job. Can't I work out a method by which my company can increase its income or decrease its expenses, and so be justified in paying me more and promoting me faster?" This kind of thinking and planning is the challenge of the Second Mile.

Such were my father's words. I remembered them again when I had been in business two years. I was soliciting advertising for a struggling group of magazines. My nominal salary was $40 a week, but because of the concern's promising future I agreed to draw only $10—the rest to be paid when brighter days dawned.

But things got tighter, and I began working in the editorial department at night. I wrote editorials, contributed special articles, answered readers' letters, prepared promotion material, read proof—did just about everything there is to be done in a publishing plant. I was sure we were building a great business.

Then one morning I arrived at the office to find the door barred by a sheriff's writ. I was crushed. I thought, "What a fool I have been, doing the work of three men, getting practically no money, wasting two years of my life only to wind up with nothing! What a fool to have traveled Father's 'Second Mile.' "

I managed to get a new job in a larger publishing house. I was the only youngster there, I discovered, who had had experience in practically every department. I progressed rapidly. The things I had learned to do beyond my required duties, things which had seemed such a waste, were now being richly rewarded.

Years later my partners and I started our own little business. One of our employes was an alert and attractive Irish lad who came to us for a summer job. In the fall he stayed on and became our office boy and mail clerk. When he brought me my mail, he would say, "Mr. Barton, what books should I be reading?" Often as I passed the mail room late at night I would find him hard at work, reading and studying.

Presently we promoted him into the department which made our contracts with publishers for advertising space. Efficient and with a genuine liking for people, he gave as generously of his time to representatives of small firms as to the man with a big account. Word got round that if you had a public-relations problem, you could get the best help from Duffy.

Years passed. The business grew. My partners and I decided it was time for me to retire as president and choose a younger successor. By that time there were at least 100 college men in the company. But when we chose for our president the ex-mail boy, who had never finished high school, there was not a dissenting voice. He knew every phase of the business. He had spent 20 years traveling the Second Mile.

A pretty woman, sitting at dinner beside Sir Isaac Newton, asked: "Tell me, Sir Isaac, how did you happen to discover the law of gravitation?" To which the great man replied, "By constantly thinking about it, madam." Emerson tells of a man who left a large fortune to his son on condition that he spend one hour every day ALONE. Thinking, rethinking, forcing the mind to work, to extend its range and its powers—these are the signposts along the Second Mile.

—Bruce Barton, Editor, Author, Congressman

G IS HARD LIKE IN GRANITE

A family of G-nus---papa G-nu, mama G-nu and baby G-nu— were foraging for food with little success. There was a famine of both locusts and honey.

Finally in a dark swamp they did locate a swarm of G-nats. By using their finest meshed G-nat net they managed to corral the whole swarm in a bucket, slapped on the lid and lit for home. There they popped the bucket into the ice box with a promise from mama of toasted G-nats for breakfast.

That night baby G-nu woke up. He was hungry. He called for mama G-nu but she didn't wake up. He called for papa G-nu but he didn't wake up. So, finally, he got up himself, went to the ice box and thought he would just take one little finger tip of G-nats. He smacked his lips. Boy, they sure were good. So, he took another finger full. Well, one led to another until, before he knew it, they were all gone. So he slapped the lid back on the bucket, popped it back into the ice box and went back to bed.

Next morning, mama G-nu went to the ice box to prepare breakfast. The bucket was empty. The G-nats were all gone! She called baby G-nu and asked, "Dd you eat all those G-nats?"

Baby G-nu, being truthful, answered, "Mama, I can not tell a lie. I got so hungry last night, I got up to just take a taste. And before I knew it, they were all gone."

Mama called papa. "Papa," she said sternly, "you should punish baby. He ate all the G-nats."

Papa just shook his head. "No, mama," he said, "remember the old adage. You must paddle your own G-nu!"

There will be a "St. Patrick's Day" Party at the church on Friday night of this week. It will be a "wearing o' the green" party and all are asked to wear some green. Those who have not the green may have to pay a forfeit. Let's have a big crowd out Friday night.

Next Sunday night our young people will again sponsor our evening service. They will plan and prepare for the whole service. They have a project in mind that you will be sorry if you miss it. Be sure to come to church Sunday night.

Concentrated effort is being made to get 100 percent of our Bible School enrollment out to Bible School and church between now and the 10th of April. Every class is striving for that goal. Honorable mention is to be made of the first class to attain this objective.

That old flu bug got busy last week and took his toll from our Bible School and church but we hope that he will be routed and all you good people will be back in the worship services this coming Lord's Day.

ADAIR SELECTS CANDIDATES TO U. S. ACADEMIES

Fourth District Representative E. Ross Adair has announced the appointment of candidates from the Fourth District to the two service schools -- West Point and Annapolis.

John H. Moellering of Fort Wayne received the principal appointment to West Point and Donald B. Messerschmidt, also of Fort Wayne, the principal appointment to the Naval Academy.

Alternate appointments to West Point were awarded to James L. Rowley of Decatur, first; John T. Downey of New Haven, second; and William C. Lee, third.

Alternate appointments to the Naval Academy were given to Robert F. Grimes, Garrett; Bruce W. Shoemaker, Bluffton, second; Michael F. Loomis, Fort Wayne, third; David F. Van Hine, Ft. Wayne, fourth; and LeRoy A Wilkinson of Grabill, fifth. Under a new policy adopted this year, the Naval Academy permitted the appointment of additional alternates; formerly only three alternates were alowed.

These candidates are eligible for consideration for the July 1, 1955, term at the academies, but first must pass the physical and scholastic entrance examinations.

TOMATOES BRING $8.2 MILLION TO STATE FARMERS

Tomatoes last year put more than $8.2 million into Indiana pockets.

This money was earned by the state's farmers by producing more than 245 thousand tons of the ruddy vegetable, explained R. B. Connelly, Indiana representative of the American Can Company. Of this total, he added, about 231 thousand tons were produced for canning and the remaining 14.6 thousand tons for sale on the fresh market.

About 33 thousand acres of land were devoted to production of tomatoes in the state last year, he said.

RECOMMENDS STRONGER 'ANTI-SECRECY' MEASURES

Indiana can strengthen its famed "anti-secrecy" welfare law by making public the extra payments for medical care and other direct purchases contracted on behalf of welfare recipients, the Indiana Study Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said this week.

It recommended that payments approved by the County Welfare Boards and "paid to vendors be published monthly or quarterly in a newspaper of general circulation within the county authorizing the payments. Such publication shall show the names of the persons, firms or corporations receiving the vendor payments and the amounts thereof."

"There has been a very large increase in the expenditure of public funds for medical assistance," declared the report by the Commission, created by Governor George N. Craig and headed by Earl B. Pulse of Columbus.

"In 1935 total medical care costs were $2.35 million; in 1953 they amounted to $7.7 million. During 1935 an average of nearly 250,000 individuals received relief monthly, while in 1953 this number stood at less than 100,000.

"Thus with less than 40 per cent as many people receiving various forms of public assistance in 1953 as in 1935, total medical care costs were more than three times greater."

The Commission "well knows that medical care is essential," it declared, but said that if certain problems "continue to go unsolved, cooperation between the various welfare departments and medical practitioners" might well become difficult to achieve, and that "solutions must be found, and progress made, or the pressure of rising costs may result in a complete rejection of the program."

In urging that vendor payments be made a public record, the Commission also recommended an administrative simplification designed to save approximately $30,000 a year.

The Commission recommended that "one additional copy of each monthly allowance schedule be furnished each County Auditor as a public record," and that carbons be given to Prosecuting Attorneys, while Township Trustees would also be kept up to-date each month.

The present "anti secrecy" law calls for quarterly rather than monthly reports for the public record.

The Commission pointed out that the monthly allowance schedules already must be prepared so that County Auditors may follow it to write the warrants for payment to welfare recipients.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK—With the newspaper pages often filled with news of international crises and domestic conflicts, it is easy to overlook what escapes the headlines although it may be information of great importance in our day by day living.

Here are some of the things that Congress has learned which reflect the quet orderly progress of our economy that speaks well for the future security and progress of the nation.

First, you haven't read too much about it, but today there are about 63½ million Americans gainfully working at jobs of their own choosing.

Of America's 47 million families, 55 percent own their own homes.

Through life insurance policies, our people have piled up savings and protection amounting to $80 billions. In U. S. Savings Bonds, Americans have invested $50 billions for their future and the strength of their country.

A total of $25 billions has been amassed in retirement pension funds.

The national economy is functioning smoothly without stringent government controls which harassed business and industry in former years and prevented economic expansion.

Inflation has been halted and the American dollar is stable after previous fluctuations.

We are making marked progress in the transition from war to a peacetime economy without serious industrial or employment problems.

This all adds up to good news. It is bringing increased confidence in government and promises well for our future peace and prosperity. It is a report that one likes to pass on to the people who are often disturbed by the eruptive and distresssing news that hits the headlines day after day.

INFORMATION AVAILABLE—Commencement is staring many Fourth District girl students in the face. To assist them in facing the problems of what to do after graduation, the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Dept. of Labor has published a leaflet entitled, "After High School, What?" The publication asks and helps answer these perennial questions: shall I prepare for job or marriage? How can I best decide what kind of a job would be best for me? What kind of skills should I acquire in high school? Can you tell me how to find a job when I'm ready? Any one wanting one of these booklets can obtain it for 10 cents with a request to Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

AGRICULTURAL YEARBOOKS READY—Farmers or students interested in obtaining a free copy of the Agriculture Yearbook for 1954 may obtain one by writing to me: 1511 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

LIVING IN HEALTH

Lesson for March 20, 1955

Ascariasis is the name of a disease. It is caused by colonies of small round worms, parasites, named Ascaris. A Christian medical missionary who opareates a hospital in Korea writes: "Reducing the number of people who have this debilitating parasite from 99 percent to 38 percent in one year, in our leper, colony, is something to shout about from the housetops of Korea. Ascariasis takes that sharp edge off a person so that he is dull; his ambition is dampened; his reflexes are sluggish and his integrity is weakened. I sometimes feel that many of the attributes so often blamed on the Devil may possibly be more accurately credited to the lowly round worm that lives in comfort inside most Koreans." This is just one single illustration of something many Christians do not realize: that spiritual health, mental health and physical health all go together.

Doing, Not Drifting

Christian living has many aspects. One of them is the importance of keeping a healthy body. Ascariasis seldom puts the patient to bed. Indeed the patient is seldom aware that anything is wrong with him, and yet his lack of ambition, his dullness of mind, his lack of dependability may have their basis in his physical condition. So it is with all diseases, so it is with all physical inefficiency even when you can't quite call it a disease. It is a sin to be less healthy than you CAN be. It is (assuming you can help it) because your physical flabbiness leads to mental and moral and spiritual flabbiness, too. This is not saying that every patient in a hospital is there because of his personal sins. But it is true that many of them are there precisely by their own fault. The point is, health of body is a Christian's responsibility, a duty he owes God, other men, and himself. And health of body will not come by chance, it will not come by drifting. It comes by doing. This is true of the whole Christian life, bottom to top. Paul says to his converts: "Every one of you should learn to control his body, keeping it pure and treating it with respect, and never regarding it as an instrument for self-gratification." (I Thess. 4:4, Phillips translation.) Health begins in self-control, comes only by working at it.

Purity Is Positive

It is true that the New Testament warns against spiritual sins quite as much as against physical sins, if not more so. But it is also true that there are plain teachings about virtues and vices of the body itself. Drunkenness, sexual sins of various kinds, are always marked out as spiritual dangers. Blessed are the pure in heart, that is true. But those who are not pure in body are not pure in heart. Further, purity is not a negative thing. A virgin who had never touched a drop of liquor might yet not be pure. Repression of desire as the Bible knows and as psychology on its own has also discovered—sheer repression with nothing to balance it—may be a bad thing. A driver was boasting about how he eliminated some distance on a certain route he took every week, and so saved three minutes on every trip. But he could not answer the question: What do you DO with those three minutes? So purity of life means more than not squandering our energies and wasting our health on drink, and otherwise; it means using the energy we save as God would have it used.

Who's In Charge Here?

The key-question for health-physical, mentol and spiritual-is, Who is in charge here? Is your body in charge of your mind, or is it the other way around? But which mind is in charge here? Your lazy, sleazy shifty mind, content with ignorance, asking only to be amused (for you have such a mind) or the mind that aspires to higher things (for you have such a mind, too). You carry with you all your life the mind of the brute, the mind of the child; but you have the right to a mature mind, to be mature. Who is in charge here, the brute, the child, or you? Above all, who is in charge of you? If the true answer to that last question is God, then the true answers to the others will be easier.

There's even more to Chevrolet styling than meets the eye!

This is beauty with a bonus . . . for Chevrolet styling is designed to add safety and comfort while you drive, and to return greater value when you trade.

Truly modern lines are shaped by usefulness. You can see what we mean in the deep crystal curve of Chevrolet's Sweep-Sight windshield . . . a dramatic style note, certainly, but one that stems from the need for wider, safer vision. Or take high-set taillights—they add to the impressive length of line . . . but they are up where they can be seen for safety's sake.

The smart louvers across the hood aren't just decoration . . . they mark the intake for the High-Level ventilation system for cleaner, fresher air. And the whole shape of the body—its lowness, the dipped belt line—is merely a reflection of a lowered center of gravity, the added stability.

This is truly functional styling that serves you better every mile, and preserves its value against the distant day when you trade. This is Body by Fisher—another Chevrolet exclusive in the low-price field. Come in and let us demonstrate that this new Chevrolet is just as exciting to drive as to look at!

'Open Covenants. . .

Do you ever find this thought entering your mind: "Why are we having so much conflict in the world today? Why is there a continuing pressure on this country in its national and international affairs?"

If one could give an answer that would be accepted as fairly close to the correct solution, he or she would be a great person. But the trouble is that we do not know what the correct answer is. We are not even certain that we have an answer that is half-way correct. All that can be done is to keep trying - but in that trying it would be well to consider past experience. The same exact occurrences certainly can not be found in history. They can, however, follow a pattern in many cases, a pattern which has as its solution the use of something of which we hear a great deal but in which, for some reason or another, we do not place much faith. That solution - principle.

Somewhere in the uttermost recesses of our collective brain this phrase will ring a bell - "open covenants and agreemnts openly arrived at." Remember it? That comes 'way back from grade school or junior high school days when we read of the history of the United States. What does it mean? Just what it says - the contents and particulars of agreements between this country and any other were publicly known or available for public consumption.

How does this fit in with today's pattern of international relations? Well, off-hand, it does not fit too well. In fact, the situation could be called a misfit. Glance through the past pages of history, the last decade or so, and what do we find - Yalta, Potsdam, yes, even the United Nations - all representing in the average mind an important meeting of national leaders but having no more significance that that there was a meeting and some sort of an agreement was reached. We say today that the U.N. is not a closed gathering of nations, that the public can go to U. N. headquarters anytime to visit and see the many national representatives at work trying to keep peace. But that does not necessarily mean that the functioning of the organization is "open."

One fact has come into the open, however, concerning the following of principles in these international agreements. That is that the higher-ups in the operation of government are prone to abandon American principle, particularly as embodied in our Constitution. That great document has become secondary in many instances when it should be the primary factor in our relations. Articles appearing here in past weeks, written by learned men, have pointed out that United States citizens are losing their constitutional rights and privileges through agreements reached in the negotiations and meetings held in the name of the United Nations. And of course we have little knowledge of the agreements made in recent years by past presidents until terms of those agreements are revealed in later national relationships. Little argument can be offered for the fact that a nation existing in the darkness of secrecy is a nation existing under the handicap of confusion. Part of our national headache is caused by our not knowing exactly what we are obligated to because of the practice of leadership to deal in secrecy.

This secrecy does not exist only in national affairs. It extends to every phase of government. It is the apparent belief on the part of leadership that the less the public knows the better off they are. And it can be said that the public in a sense goes along with that sentiment by its failure to demand of government knowledge of the operation of government. The behind-closed-doors tactics which we accept as a part of politics is our downfall. This state of Indiana which we Hoosiers consider as part of the stronghold of American good-government gains little in that respect in an article appearing in the March 7 issue of Time magazine in which some of the "operations" of Indiana politicians are given a lengthy review. As one reads such an article, it can easily be understood why many believe that "it's impossible for a man to get into politics and stay honest." But why is it impossible to "stay honest"? First, because the politican himself forgets "principle," second, because the people who elect him forget "principle."

It all goes back to one fundamental factor - good government comes from each one doing his part. It cannot come by sitting back and letting the other fellow take care of it. Trouble arises when the other fellow takes care of it - but also "takes care" of himself in the process. Good government comes from thinking of others, ALL others. Good government, stable government comes through adherence to principle.

Our national forfathers based the foundation of this nation on principle. This then became the greatest national creation because of their wisdom.

Why do we now doubt that wisdom?

Guest Editorial

The American Congress is being subjected to tremendous conflicting pressures. A numerous segment of the people are insisting upon a wide extension of measures to increase the public welfare through Federal appropriations for roads, for schools, and in many other categories, while at the same time demanding adequate national defense.

A second pressure comes from those who assert that Federal taxes must be reduced to increase business incentive and free greater purchasing power. They also demand a reduction in the cost of living.

Presumably, every American desires that the Nation remain upon a strong, stable economic basis with a currency and a credit structure which will enable it to maintain constant progress at home while continuing to hold its position of power among the nations of the world. No such hopes can be fulfilled unless immoderate and unwise pressures are resisted through a determination to keep the Nation on a sound fiscal basis.

The President has submitted to Congress his annual Budget which sets forth plans for expenditures through the fiscal year 1956 and recommendations for the raising of revenue to meet these expenditures. On its face, this Budget comes within about $2.4 billion of balancing. But the Budget submitted is not the whole story. In his message the President announced that he, at subsequent dates, would submit later proposals for expenditures which may result in substantial increases.

In this statement, I am commenting on the recommendations to the President by the National Advisory Committee for a National Highway program. The Committee's recommendations call for expenditures on two programs in ten years that would total $31 billion. The Committee estimates $25 billion would construct 40,000 road miles designated by the Federal Government as Interstate Highway. This would be little more than 1 per cent of all public road mileage. The average would be about 800 miles per state. For this, the Committee recommends borrowing $20 billion at 3 per cent interest and collection of $5 billion in fees from filling stations, motels, etc., operating on the right of way.

If the 30-year taxable bonds recommended by the Committee can be sold at 3 per cent and if they are paid off on schedule—the last maturing in 1987—the interest would cost more than $11.5 billion. At this rate every dollar borrowed would cost taxpayers $1.55. Based on all recent Federal experience, it is a violent assumption to predict these bonds will be paid off at maturity. In effect we have not paid off a single dollar of Federal debt in 25 years. Continuing increase in the Federal debt is in prospect for an indefinite period.

It may be expected that even before the 40,000 miles are constructed, the program will be expanded in mileage, scope and amount. It is certain that the program will be thousands of miles greater than contemplated in the Committee report. (A 101 billion program already is in contemplation. Ed.)

As we grow, population shifts and the impact on specific road changes and therefore our road needs shift and change. There is no such thing as a permanent road because no one can predict years in advance what specific roads will carry the most traffic.

The Committee recommended to the President that the program be financed through a Federal corporation which, without either assets or income, would borrow $20 billion from the public. If financial difficulty should develop at any time, the corporation, with no further authorization, could make mandatory calls upon the Treasury for amounts up to $5 billion outstanding at any one time.

If the Federal Government can properly borrow money for roads in this fashion, without regarding it as debt and spend it without budgetary control, it may be expected that similar proposals will be made for financing endless outlays for education, hospitals, public health, etc. In fact I am informed that such a plan is now under consideration for school contruction.

Count it as you will, as we spend more than our income we add to our debt. The least the Goverment can do in fairness to taxpayers is to keep books and accounts in a manner reflecting the true state of our fiscal affairs. When the Government contracts a bona fide debt but arbitrarily removes it from classification as public indebtedness, it creates fiscal confusion and destroys confidence in Government credit.

You can not avoid financial responsibility by legerdemain and you can not evade debt by definition. The obligations of the Federal Government and all its citizens will remain!

Since 1934 Federal grants to States have enormously expanded in cost and functions. Every Federal grant elevates the control of the Federal Government and subordinates the authority of the States. Time and again I have seen the iron hand of the Federal bureaucracy compel the States to do things they did not desire to do because of grants made by the Federal Government.

The growth in Federal grants is indicated by the fact that in 1934, 21 years ago, the total of such grants was $126 million for 18 grants-in-aid programs. Now, the total of Federal grants is $3 billion for 50 programs. This is an increase of 300 per cent in programs and 2300 per cent in cost. Federal grants to States never end. They continue to expand.

Two years ago the President requested Congress to increase the debt limit from $275 billion to$ 290 billion. Testimony of Administration spokesmen was that unless the debt limit was raised the Government would be unable to pay its bills and a "panic would result." The Finance Committee refused. What happened? The heavens did not fall; panic did not occur. The Administration reduced its spending and stayed within the statutory debt limit.

The debt limit is no mere gadget without real purpose. Congress for many years has fixed a Federal debt limit beyond which government officials can not borrow. The debt limit is of real significance to our future solvency.

Senator Bridges on behalf of himself and on my behalf has proposed an amendment to the Constitution to provide for the imposition of Federal taxes to provide revenue at least equal to appropriations, save in time of war. Such a measure would compel a balanced budget and prevent further expansion of the debt.

An overhanging debt and an unbalanced budget, sustained by deficit financing, inevitably produce inflation which, by progressively reducing the purchasing power of the dollar, robs millions of individuals with fixed incomes, persons living on pensions, upon social security payments. The value of existing life insurance policies and of the savings of the people is steadily destroyed.

Existing policies progressively impoverish us. We are borrowing money now to pay interest on money we have borrowed before.

Public debt is not like private debt. If private debt is not paid off, it can be ended by liquidation. But if public debt is not paid off with tax proceeds, liquidation takes the form of disastrous inflation or national repudiation. Either would destroy our form of government!

The Constitutional Amendment which Senator Bridges and I have proposed would provide a permanent protection for the solvency of the Federal finances. But every emergency proposal can be met. When the Senate Committee on Finance 2 years ago refused to increase the debt limit from $275 billion to $290 billion, the Executive Departments had no recourse save to remain within the limit legally set. In my opinion the action of the Finance Committee at that time was the greatest single factor in the expenditure reduction. But there was still a deficit of more than $3 billion which reduced both borrowing authority and the cash balance.

Prior to World War I, the Federal Debt was a minor problem. On July 1, 1914, the interest bearing debt was less than $1 billion. At that time Federal debt could be created only by Act of Congress which specified the purpose. This procedure was revised to meet the needs of World War I. It was in that period that the Secretary of the Treasury was given authority to borrow, subject to an overall limit fixed by Congress.

This statutory limit was first fixed at $11.5 billion and then raised to $20 billion, to $37 billion and then to $37.5 billion in 1921. The limit was kept at $37.5 billion for ten years. In 1931 it was raised to $45.5 billion and then to $48 billion in 1934. In 1935 it was reduced to $45 billion.

In 1940 it was raised again to $49 billion, then to $65 billion in 1941. With the beginning of World War II it was raised to $125 billion in 1942, to $210 billion in 1943, to $260 billion in 1944 and it is now $275 billion except that there may be a temporary increase to $281 billion until June 30, 1955, after which it must revert to $275 billion.

The present public debt which we now owe is equivalent to the full value of all the land, all the buildings, all the mines, all the machinery, all the livestock—everything of tanglible value—in the United States. We are mortgaged to the hilt.

It should be the considered judgment of every one of us that the Federal debt should not be increased except for extreme national emergency and the size of the Federal debt is the greatest national emergency confronting us at the moment. We, of our generation, should pause to realize that we are the trustees of our freedom. It is our obligation to preserve sound government for future generations.

This Nation has been through many wars and after each of them, except World War II, we have discharged at least a part of the debt incurred for our defense. After World War II we continue to add to our national debt and ten years after its conclusion we are still borrowing.

For all practicable purposes, there has been no reduction in the Federal debt since the end of World War II. The only reduction was made with unused proceeds from a huge bond issue just before the end of the war. When the war contracts were cancelled, the unused money was used to reduce the debt. Otherwise, the debt has been increased steadily by deficits in 21 out of the last 24 years.

The close connection between debt and a policy of deficit financing and the purchasing power of the dollar is emphasized by the experience largely resulting from the refusal of the Finance Committee to sanction two years ago a $15 billion increase in the debt limit. A policy of ever-growing national debt, together with schemes of unbridled expenditures for a multitude of welfare projects had resulted in a reduction of the purchasing power of the dollar from 100 cents in 1939 to about 52 cents. When the Administration was confronted by a denial of further debt-incurring authority and when there was at least a halt in spending in some other directions, the downward course of the value of the dollar was abruptly checked.

So far, there has been no resumption of this downward course but it is beyond all doubt that adoption of the plans for unlimited spending and a willingness on the part of Congress again to raise the limitation on debt, would mean that the dollar would become of less and less worth each year, even each month perceptibly.

It frequently is complained by citizens that the high cost of living must be due to illegal combinations in business, to conspiracies among traders to raise prices to the end that the wage-earner and every other citizen may be robbed.

From time to time there have been such abuses and, so far as possible, they have been eradicated. But no conspiracy in restraint of trade, no combination of manufacturers or traders ever has equaled in effect the pressure of currency and credit inflation upon the purchasing power of the dollar and, therefore, the immediate cost of living!

Young men and women, born in 1930, have lived under a Government operating in the red virtually all of their lives. Today the interest on the Federal debt takes more than 10 per cent of our Federal revenue. Without the tremendous cost of this debt, our annual tax bill could be cut ten per cent across the board.

In a Goverment grown callous to deficit financing, to increase the debt limit permanently would be regarded by every bureaucrat as license to increase his demands for higher expenditures. The lid would be off. It is my firm conviction that if we had increased the debt limit to $290 billion two years ago we now would be approaching that debt limit and preparing ourselves for another request to raise it again, this time to $300 billion.

Actually, we should be reducing the debt at this time, not increasing it. If we can not balance the Federal budget and reduce the debt in peace and better-than-normal prosperity, when can it be done?

Few will deny that we have reached our solvent limit. As to inflation from deficit financing, I have two tables developed by official sources. One shows deficit spending since 1940. The other shows the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar over the same period. Beginning with 100 cent dollars in 1939, the purchasing power dropped 5 cents in 1940 and 1941 when combined deficits were more than $8 billion. Despite wartime controls, it dropped 17 cents under pressure of war deficits. And under post-war deficits, it dropped another 26 cents. The American dollar now has a purchasing power of about 52 cents.

We still have practically the highest taxes we have ever known. Yet, a balanced budget is not in sight. Unless Federal spending is reduced still further, deficit spending and inflation will continue to the bitter end which is insolvency. We can not preserve our freedom in insolvency. We can not defend ourselves militarily in insolvency. Our currency will be worthless in insolvency.

Inflation knows no alternatives. Left to develop, it moves in only one direction. All experience, all history tells the same bitter story. It is the story of a rake's progress. Those who wilfully or otherwise would destroy American solvency would destroy freedom for people everywhere!

—Senator Harry F. Byrd, Chairman of House Finance Committee.

Fire Department Turns 'Mudder' For Grass Fire

The St. Joe Volunteer Fire Department was called out Monday afternoon to extinguish a grass and stubble fire on state road 101 on property of John Crothers and Roger Inlow.

The fire was not endangering any buildings at the time the department arrived. Mr. Crothers had put out flames at the rear of a barn on his land by beating them out with a shovel. There was a possibility, however, of their spreading to nearby woods to the west and also toward the Inlow property to the north.

The fire truck was driven into the field to get near the flames but the soft condition of the ground soon had the "bucket brigade" in action as the truck sank to its hub caps in the mud.

A tractor and "muscle" soon removed the red wagon from its hole.

Mr. and Mrs. James Tatlock of West Lafayette were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Derwood Ridgway.

A total of 49 General Telephone Co. employees were honored for "faithful and valuable service" at the company's northern district service pin dinner at Elkhart on Wednesday evening, March 9. Those honored from this area were (Angola) Mr. D. W. Crain, 10 years, plant department; Mr. Gene Campbell, 5 years, plant department; Mr. R. E. Meek, 5 years, plant department; Mrs. Lorene Cole, 5 years, traffic department; (Butler) Mrs. Vera M. Hamman, Miss Mary A. Kaufman and Mrs. Ruth W. Smith, all 5 years, all traffic department.

Mr. William Sadler has announced that the last adult ag class will be held Monday, March 21, at the school in St. Joe with the topic, "electricity."

Derwood Ridgway has issued a call for volunteer workers for the Red Cross fund drive being conducted during the month of March. Mr. Ridgway is local chairman for the collection in Concord Township and St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Onan Laughman and daughter, Tahoma, of Shriner Lake called at the Leonard Jarrett home Sunday afternoon. Both Mr. and Mrs. Laughman are able to be about their duties following serious illnesses during the winter.

Mrs. Minnie Gee was able to walk up town recently and to attend Sunday School and church for the first time since January.

Are you a "Do-It-Yourself" Driver?

Or would you rather be waited on hand and foot?

Position the seat yourself . . . or let electricity do it?

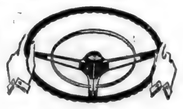
Chevrolet's big, beautifully upholstered front seat moves up and forward or down and back into your most comfortable driving position.

No worry about your battery in a new Chevrolet. It's the only car in its field with the reserve power of a 12-volt electrical system!

Rather shift for yourself . . . or let Powerglide do it?

Shifting's smooth and easy with Chevrolet's new and finer Synchro-Mesh transmission. A flick of your wrist is all it takes to shift gears.

Powerglide, too, is better than ever this year. Even smoother and sturdier. It's the most popular automatic transmission* in Chevrolet's field!



Want standard steering . . . or extra-easy Power Steering?

Try this easy new Chevrolet steering. Only Chevrolet and some higher-priced cars use a ball bearing system to cut friction to a minimum.

There's nothing quite so easy as Power Steering, of course. Good news: Chevrolet's new linkage-type Power Steering* carries a reduced price!

Apply the brakes like this . . . or have power make it easier?

Improved brakes and new swing-type pedals make stopping a cinch. And Chevrolet's exclusive Anti-Dive control gives you "heads up" stops!

Chevrolet Power Brakes* are better than ever this year—let you stop by a simple pivot of your foot from accelerator to swing-type brake pedal.

Automatically—

Chevrolet's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars!

What's a high-priced car got that Chevrolet hasn't? Not automatic power features. Not style—just look below. Not performance—just try out Chevrolet's new V8 or one of the new 6's. Not ride—perhaps the thing that will surprise you most is Chevrolet's fine, solid feel on the road. Come put it to the test. See how Chevrolet's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars in every way!

Letters to the Editor

Hi Ted

I received your issue of the St. Joe News, but it didn't put me much up to date because it was the Jan. 27 issue.

But I was glad to get it any way, because there was a lot of things in it I was glad to know about.

I have been in Japan for three weeks now and the time really goes fast. They have all kinds of recreation right on the base for us to do.

The chow here is good and we get a lot of it. I will probably get fat like my brother, Bob.

I am at Middle Camp Fuji. It is right at the base of Mt. Fuji the volcano that the Japanese worship. It is suppose to erupt some time next year. Lets hope I'm not around at the time.

Middle Camp Fuji is about 100 miles from Tokyo. On these trains they have over here that is about a 2½ hour ride.

Two weeks ago I went up to Tokyo and stayed the week end with Bill Billows and his wife Doris. It was really nice talking to someone from your home town. And Doris does cook a fine meal.

We had some of Sechler's great pickles, that Bill had on hand.

There are seven guys in my company that have the last name of Baker.

I am in 4.2 mortar company. They call us the 4 Deuce Company.

I finally made my first stripe and hope to have another one before I leave Japan.

Here is my new address:

PFC Clayton B. Baker

3rd Marine Division FMF

I never did get any letters from those STUCK-UP high school girls.

THE LIVING WORLD

Lesson for March 27, 1955

It shouldn't seem singular that we are all born plural. We can't be born at all without the consent of two people we never saw before, and we can't be legally born without the consent of a great many more. We live in a world of people, by the help of many people. We cannot achieve health, wealth or happiness all by ourselves. And when we die the reason why we are not missed very long is that there are so many other people ready to take our place. Now the Christian like all other men lives in a world of men. His religion ought to give him some clue, at least, as to how he should live in this human world, this immense complex wheels-within-wheels thing we call Society. Is the right Christian thing to do to run away from the world and hide? Hermits have tried it. Is it the right Christian thing to do to adopt the slogan, "If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em"? Shall Christians just accept the world and its ways? Worldly "Christians" have tried that.

Salt and Light

But neither the Christian hermit nor the "worldly Christian" has helped the world. The world is no better for either of them, and on the other hand both hermit and worldling have ended by being no better than a caricature of a true Christian. The Christian's relation to the world around him . . . . wait just a minute. We are going too fast, aren't we- "The world"—what do we mean by that? For the purposes of these present thoughts, the "world" means all the realms and ramifications of such variegated human arrangements as sports, politics, education, business, industry, agriculture, international affairs; all human institutions and relationships on a large scale or small. The "world" here means human beings, not in separate capsules but tied in innumerable ways to one another, affecting one another, inseparable from birth to death. The Christian's relation to this world is not like that of a pin stuck into a pin-cushion. The world is not merely the place where he has to be. Jesus put it into those two little thumbnail parables of Salt and Light. The Christian is to be different, to be separate; but not as a pin is different from its cushion. The pin does nothing whatever for the cushion; but salt and light do something, something valuable and needed, to whatever it is with which they make contact. Christians are expected to apply themselves and their Christianity to every relationship of life—that's a dull way to put it, but doing it is never dull.

Love Is Concern

Jesus and Paul both made it clear that the one law of life that sums up all other laws is Love. Not romantic love, not sloppy slippery sentimentality, but genuine heart-concern, intelligent concern, for the welfare of others. We all know that this is the law that transforms family life from a kind of jungle, or a cage at best, into something very close to heaven. We haven't all discovered that this is the law that can transform public life, yes, politics, business, all the rest of it. It's harder to do but there because the larger the circles the less co-operation you are going to find. Nevertheless, it is a fact that civilizations, nations, businesses, that have learned something from the Christian Gospel are better for the people that live there and work there than where Christianity has never had a chance. Yet ours is still a pagan civilization. When a manufacturer writes that the principle of his business has always been to make money for the stockholders, he has not got hold of the Christian idea. When an industrialist says that his business is making citizens and he is using a cotton mill for that purpose, he HAS got hold of the Christian idea.

To the End of Time

But suppose the H-bomb gets us all? Suppose, for lack of enough strength Christians, the hate-all, grab-all way of the world has brought us to the edge of doom, what can Christians do? Sit down and wait for the end? The Apostle Peter did not think so. Neither did any other early Christian leader. They felt themselves in a world on fire—and indeed so it was.

215,000 more kilowatts to back up her confidence

When Janie flicks that switch she knows the light comes on.

Farms, stores, homes and factories wherever I&M serves have confidence that electricity will be there to serve them when it's needed. And now their confidence is backed by 215,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity: Unit 3 at I&M's Tanners Creek Plant has gone into service.

The addition makes Tanners Creek Plant the largest power plant in Indiana. The new unit alone provides enough more electricity to meet the entire electrical needs of a city of 200,000 population.

That's a lot of power...and powerful testimony to I&M's own confidence in the future of the area we serve!

Around the Town

With the Editor

With all the plugging yours truly does for the "hometown newspaper," he occasionally wonders if it does any good. If it doesn't, then the plugging by some of the readers should be a selling point.

In the last couple of weeks I've heard George Beams say he had several calls from his ad, and Lorreta Musser said they had several calls from their ad, and Bob Witt sold all of his oats, and---let's see, I know there were others who remarked about the results of using the little old St. Joe "Nuisance" but I can't remember who they were.

Now if we could get more merchants feeling the same way, everything would be fine. You know, there are something like twenty business firms in St. Joe, but you wouldn't know it from reading this paper. For some reason, it isn't good enough for them—or something.

The volunteer fire department wasn't too "volunteer" Tuesday during that gale when a call came in from Harold Kagey at the nursery for help. There were several who answered the call and went out to the fire in their own transportation—including me. The only trouble is, the truck must get there, too, and with the "fresh air" arrangement of the department's fire wagon, you can't hardly find them firemen to ride it on unpleasant days.

You can tip your hat to the Yeiser family for Tuesday's fire truck run. Big Mose and Little Mose were the only ones on the truck when it went out —and when it came back.

The rest of us chickens were in "crates."

Six To Take Exams Saturday At Fort Wayne

Six students from Riverdale High School will compete this week end in state achievement tests to be given at Ft. Wayne.

On Saturday, March 26, State High School Achievement tests will be given at Central Catholic High School in Fort Wayne in various educational departments. The six from Riverdale are Doris Dowden and Fletta Griggs, competing in geometry; Wayne Akey and Mary Beckman, competing in English; and Maynard Robinson and Nancy Strabele, competing in algebra.

Winners of the Fort Wayne contests will compete at Bloomington on April 30.

Boosters To Sponsor Auction

A public auction will be held Saturday, March 26, 1955, in which articles will be sold for the benefit of the Band Boosters Club for the band uniform fund.

The auction will be held at the Community Building in Spencerville and will be conducted through the services of auctioneers Russell Kruse, John Kelley and Lawrence Wagner.

The uniform fund is reaching its approximate goal of two thousand dollars and this auction sale should make possible the financing of the entire purchase of forty uniforms.

Solicitors will contact homes in the community for donations of articles for the auction. Or contributors may call the high school at St. Joe, phone 2245, and leave a message that articles can be picked up for the sale.

The auction will start at 11:00 a.m. There will be a refreshment stand in operation at the gym. A list of articles secured thus far for the sale appears on another page of this issue.

Registered Shoots Begin March 27

Ralph Johnson, chairman of the trapshooting events of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club, has announced that the first in a series of registered shoots at St. Joe will be held on Sunday, March 27.

Shoots have been scheduled for this month, April, June and July.

The program will include 50-16 yard and 100-handicap events plus practice shooting.

Nuisance Club To Have Sale, Wash Cars Saturday

The Nuisance Club of St. Joe will hold a bake sale this Saturday, March 26, at the News Office in St. Joe.

The club will also have a car wash service in progress at Dunten's Market through the day for the convenience of car owners who wish to have the appearance of their means of transportation improved.

Local Speller Places 2nd In County Contest

The elementary grades of DeKalb County schools sent their representatives to the assembly room of the Court House in Auburn Tuesday evening to compete in the county-wide spelling bee.

Representatives of the Riverdale Elementary School included Michael Haberkorn, third grade; Pamela Wasson, fourth grade; Janice Louden, fifth grade; and Judy Codington, sixth grade.

All of the local spellers were "spelled down" in general competition except Mike, who remained to compete with Michele Wade of Garrett for the winner's ribbon. Michele outlasted Mike as he faltered on "pupils."

The winners of the contests were determined by narrowing competition to two contestants. When a mistake was made by one student, the other was given the opportnuity to spell the word correctly plus one additional word. If the second student could not correctly spell the other contestant's word, both continued until one or the other was "spelled down."

Roger Hess, superintendent of DeKalb County schools, was the leader of the contest assisted by teachers from the various schools who served as judges and pronouncers.

Winners were as follows:

THIRD GRADE

1st—Michele Wade, Garrett.

2nd — Michael Haberkorn, Riverdale.

3rd—Kenneth Joseph Hohl, Ashley.

FOURTH GRADE

1st—Deanna Taylor, Ashley.

2nd—Judy Reinoehl, Fairfield.

3rd—Ann Rynearson, East Richland.

FIFTH GRADE

1st—Donald Gettys, Waterloo.

2nd—Esther Wartsler, Garrett.

3rd—Carrie Teagardin, Troy.

SIXTH GRADE

1st—Carol Reinoehl, Ashley.

2nd—Nancy Lockwood, Waterloo.

3rd—Patricia McNeely, Corunna.

Further competition in the county spelling bee will continue on Friday evening when Carol Flesher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Flesher, will represent the eighth grade of the Riverdale School. Edward Bley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bley, will be the alternate.

Representing the seventh grade will be Kathy Keating, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Keating. Joy McNabb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McNabb, will be the alternate for the seventh grade.

Also Friday night there will be contests in the Journal-Gazette spelling contest with Riverdale to be represented by Priscilla Mayer. Alternate for the district spelling contest will be Mary Moore.

Carol Pugsley Appointed New 4-H Leader

Mrs. Carol Pugsley of St. Joe has been appointed county girls' 4-H leader, according to an announcement from the county home demonstration agent, Mrs. Isabella F. McClellan. The appointment was made recently by Purdue University.

Mrs. Pugsley is a graduate of Ball State Teachers College. She has taught home economics and girls' physical education for seven years, giving her good qualifications for her new position.

Anyone in the county interested in joining a 4-H club or needing assistance with 4-H club work may contact Mrs. Pugsley in the county extension office in the court house at Auburn.

Poultry & Egg Show To Be Held April 2

The 6th Annual DeKalb County Poultry and Egg Show will be held Saturday, April 2, 1955, in the assembly room of the court house at Auburn.

The show is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

The morning will be devoted to demonstrations and judging of products made from eggs. The afternoon session will feature Bob Hogue, Purdue specialist, who will speak on Consumer Problems in Poultry and Eggs, and Reba Pyle, home demonstration agent of Koskiusko County.

A discussion will be held on how to use eggs and poultry to add interest to the homemaker's daily menus.

Door prizes will be awarded at the close of the afternoon program.

Troop 172 Receives Charter

Charter night ceremonies were conducted Monday evening at Spencerville for the Spencerville Boy Scout Troop No. 172. The ceremonies were similar to those conducted in St. Joe just one week ago for the St. Joe troop.

At Monday's meeting held in the Spencerville Fire Hall, W. L. Hurni received the charter in the name of the sponsoring unit, the St. Joe-Spencerville Lions Club, and in turn presented it to the scoutmaster, Rev. Wayne Baxter.

Gray Woodcox, district commissioner, presented W. L. Hurni, Joe Baidinger, Forrest Brattain, Fred Stemen and Paul Graham with their adult scout registration cards as troop committeemen.

Rev. Baxter and Bill Hudson were issued registration cards as scoutmaster and assistant, respectively.

Orville Collins, Northeast District director, addressed the parents giving some of the background of the scouting program and the purposes of the program.

The following scouts received their tenderfoot badges:

Terry Brattain, Donny Baidinger, Richard Baker, Parks Hollabaugh, Jack Barnes, Jim Hollabaugh, Wally Graham and Joe Spitler.

The two local scout troops are participating in ticket sales for the Scout-O-Rama to be staged at the Coliseum in Fort Wayne on April 29 and 30.

The Scout-O-Rama is being staged by all of the Cub Packs, Boy Scout Troops and Explorer Posts in the Anthony Wayne Council. The Council includes Adams, Allen, DeKalb, Huntington, Jay, Noble, Steuben, Wells and Whitley counties.

A number of scout units already have begun work on their exhibits which will be set up in the exhibition floor of the Coliseum. The entire exhibition area will be used.

The local troops entered local scout activity too late to be prepared for presentation of a booth at this year's Scout-O-Rama. However, the troops are participating in the promotion of the event through their ticket sales efforts.

Complacency

Though the weather has given the breath of spring a slight chill in the past few weeks, it has not completely erased that certain feeling one gets in his bones when the grass is just on the verge of popping into its richest green, when the air creates a feeling of warm goodness, when everything in general is poised for the eternal and annual bursting forth with new life.

What is there about spring that makes it such an enjoyable part of the year? To some it is the end of winter drudgery, the end of curtailed outdoor activity. To others it is the end of physical miseries composed for the most part of the usual allotment of colds, fever, the flu and so on. Whatever your particular reason may be, spring is the beginning of something fresh and new. It signifies the promise of greater enjoyment.

A person's enjoyment of his everyday life depends a great deal on his enjoyment of the place where he lives. You will not find a happy man where there is not a happy atmosphere with his fellow men. You will not find a satisfied man where there is dissatisfaction with where he lives. There are always those in every community, large or small, who are not satisfied with this or that condition or situation and have an example in mind of some other place which they use as an illustration of their supposed ideal. They use to excess the excuses and reasons for tearing down and degrading the place where they live and the people with whom they live each day. They find little good in anything and appear to be so concerned with fault-finding that they would not recognize nor acknowledge goodness if they saw it. Strange to say, many of them who are not particularly tied down to their present home remain where they are and go on "griping" instead of moving someplace where they would be happier (supposedly).

While these, fortunately, are in the minority, there are sufficient numbers of them to make it occasionally unpleasant for others. There is the majority which can ignore these complainers and go ahead with their plans for betterment in all ways. We may be inclined occasionally to succumb to the views of the minority and say, "Oh, well, what's the use of trying to improve. No one is getting hurt just letting things as they are." Then there may be some Sunday afternoon of just driving around, taking the family for a ride in the car. And there may be that little town "no bigger than ours" that has the nicest looking homes, the neatest yards, and - - - -. Implied in these observations is the thought that THIS little town MUST be a nice place to live in because it LOOKS that way.

Now look at your home town. If you were a stranger driving through St. Joe on a Sunday afternoon, would there be anything to strike your fancy as to its neatness, its well-kept homes and yards? Would you remember St. Joe as "that pretty little town we went through last Sunday"? If there would be any memory of beauty, it would be of a few individual instances of care, not of a collective and community effort.

No, no, don't go looking at the other fellow's back yard. Keep your nose right in your own plate. It isn't necessary to look elsewhere for trouble. We claim no immunity from this complacence. There are many times when the News Office gets too dusty, when the windows get too dirty, when the grass gets too long, when the sticks and stones are allowed to collect and detract from its appearance. There are homes that go too long without a fresh coat of paint, yards that go too long without seed to grow grass. Why? Well, mostly because we are getting along with the way things are. It takes some money, certainly, to maintain attractiveness. But we can't make money the excuse when the real reason is just plain laziness. It will take money to make St. Joe more attractive; but it will take a greater amount of another ingredient to accomplish what we St. Joe'ers should during this coming spring and summer. It's called "elbow grease."

Complain as you may about the faults of your home town, of the people in it, of the way it looks, --of everything, you should exercise care in that criticism. Your home town is but a reflection of - - - YOU.

We Revived the Lost Art of Calling

"Loneliness is laziness," my mother used to say. "The world is full of folks like me who need someone to talk to. So when I'm lonely I go calling." At such times she would round up her four young sons and march off to some friend's house for a visit without notice, saying of this informality, "People I have to make an appointment to see wouldn't be interested in me."

Last year, on an idle Sunday afternoon, her philosophy came back to me. Wishing my wife had invited friends over, I wondered what had happened to this charming potluck hospitality of yesteryear. It seemed that average Americans, neighborly by tradition, had forgotten casual visiting and maintained thin social relations only through RSVP parties and dinners.

My wife and I wondered how many of our friends were sitting home alone, wanting to see others but unwillig to go visiting without an invitation. Perhaps they, too, would like to see more of people without giving a dinner or paying a baby-sitter.

Our address book contained the names of over 60 families, including relatives, that we would like to see. Allowing one night a week for dinner "entertaining"—a word we suddenly disliked—it would take more than a year to have them all to our house. It would cost a minimum of $600, to say nothing of the work involved, and our guests would have to find, pay and haul baby-sitters—as well as fix a meal beforehand for their children. Our entertaining actually would be as big a hardship for them as for us. We hadn't seen some of these people for 18 months. Were we dropping them—and being dropped—because of an economic code of social conduct?

Then and there, we decided to "go calling," to visit all our friends one by one whenever we had an hour to spare. The thought of imposing on them or of not being welcome appalled us at first—and we sensed that this was the main reason calling had become a lost art. But we would try not to let our natural hesitancy interfere with our plan. If we caught people doing the laundry or recovering from the night before, we'd move on. Next-door neighbors drop by casually, without fanfare. Why can't friends do likewise?

Our first offense against current etiquette would be in taking along the children. Our children were growing up strangers to our friends and their children, as well as to social amenities. Taking them visiting would serve a dual purpose. It would broaden the kids as well as subtly assure our hosts that, because of children's schedules, our drop-in visit would not be a long one.

Our second breach was in deciding not to telephone. We could have used the apologetic dodge of telephoning that "We are going to be in the neighborhood," but we didn't want our friends to feel that we expected something special. We only wanted to see them—and to let them know just that.

Some surprised hosts did act confused and ill-at-ease at first. One woman friend frantically asked us what day of the month it was, fearing she had invited us and forgotten. Her husband asked with nervous cordiality what we'd like to drink. When we told him, "Nothing now, thanks—just dropped in to visit," they were really confused, plainly seeming to wonder if we were in trouble, or looking for a job or a loan. My wife finally set them at ease. "We've missed you," she said, "and wondered how you were." Before long the warm realization came over them that we enjoyed and valued their company and were letting them know. They would hardly let us leave. Without intending to flatter, we had flatered and honored them by troubling to visit them.

Today we are over halfway through our list of friends whom we've wanted to see. And we find that, on the whole, visiting has become a warm and rewarding experience. We have recaptured for ourselves, our friends and the children something of the close bond that held people together before natural gregariousness ran afoul of psuedo-social custom.

Best of all, our friends have begun repaying our visits. We're learning to enjoy one another's company instead of dreading the trouble and expense we formerly caused. "Dinner entertaining" is falling off, although we break bread together more often than before—family style.

There have been some delicate and some hilarious moments. Children have been both a pleasure and a pain; a few carpets, walls and gardens have suffered. But the gains have far outnumbered the losses for all of us.

"My house!" shrieked Polly as we four Johnsons trooped in uninvited, unexpected and, seemingly, unwanted. She fluttered ahead of us, blazing a trail through broken toys, righting an overturned chair and brushing straggly hair from her face. "We came to see you and Joe, not your house," my wife, Verna, said reassuringly.

Like jumping into a cold surf, Polly came up liking it. As we left she confided, "You know, I've enjoyed this more than any visit in months. I usually go into such a tizzy getting ready for people that when they get here I'm too tired to enjoy them."

Her warm words reassured us when we were assailed by doubts about visiting our next "victim." But what greater reward could be had than Maggie's spontaneous words when we came upon her and Jim listlessly playing Scrabble on a quiet Sunday afternoon? "We were just saying how much we'd like to see you," she said.

At another home we found the family already entertaining friends, and we were asked to join them. What had been intended as a short call turned into a long, neighborly get-togther, with hitherto-neglected children sharing in the fun.

MARCH

We have learned something from almost every visit. I have often caught handy husbands unstopping sinks and repairing carburetors and lawn mowers. Pitching in to help, I learn a few do-it-yourself tricks while Verna, besides swapping recipes, comes home with such miscellaneous intelligence as how to polish philodendron leaves and how to "antique" furniture.

Benefits were mutual at Jay's and Margaret's. He was preparing to market a toy he had invented and wanted our four-year-old daughter Tralee to try it to see if he should advertise it for that age level. Tralee couldn't work it, and Jay decided to aim at the six-years-and-older market. Verna gave me a stern look and asked, "Does this remind you of something?" It did, and we have gone to work on a plaything for younger children which we often had discussed but done nothing about.

On the downright mercenary side, we have acquired for Tralee eight dresses which various friends' daughters have outgrown; a leather jacke tfor two-year-old Mark from long-armed Billy; a set of window shades which Shirley was replacing with venetian blinds; a sandbox and filing cabinet from John. In turn we have emptied the garage of an unwanted rug, an outmoded TV set, a sport coat, a bushel of canna bulbs, an end table, an old automatic washing machine and a baby crib.

We found we needn't fear interrupting others' plans. What activity have you planned recently that friends could not make more enjoyable? We dropped in on Ted and Doris just as they were leaving Patty with a sitter to go bowling. They wouldn't leave without us. So—the sitter sat double, while Ted and Doris got as much fun out of teaching us "their" game as we had in learning it.

A note of warning: Don't take up calling unless you truly like people and want to give them some of your time. For your friends are going to like it, and return your call.

Be prepared, too, for some anxious moments. You will ring doorbells where domestic quarrels are raging, where people are taking naps (you'll learn to look for drawn shades), where houses are a wreck, where no one is home (you'll leave a note); where the house is overflowing with relatives (you'll wish you had left a note), where you'll be shushed for the second act of a TV drama, where "important" people are being "entertained" and where within-reach bric-a-brac will make your children as welcome as a herd of bulls until you prove they're under control.

"My, how they've grown," they will say of your children, and you of theirs—a jolting reminder that life offers little but time and that you have spent too much of it without the companionship of friends, working for some vague tomorrow when you'll have time and money for them.

In the main you will find only friendly people like yourselves—bursting with pleasure that you thought of them.

—Grady Johnson in The Christian Science Monitor.

Most persons like to think of themselves as possessing superior intelligence. Obviously, this can't be true. Most persons are of average intelligence and intelligence can't be measured by diplomas, degrees and academic credits. Who is a superior student in grade school and high school? The pupil that gets the highest marks? I doubt it. Many a youngster of average grades has entered college and gotten excellent grades, while perhaps the valedictorian of a high school class found the going in college tough enough to make him drop out. Some pupils in grade schools and high schools are pushed to their capacity by parents, while other kids have an unused reserve capacity that they never use until college competition makes them use it. I think most educators have seen kids who were in the lower percentiles of their high school classes hitting the highest percentiles in college, while other kids who were in the higher eschelons in high school just got by in college.

When you are dealing with a human being, you are not dealing with anything that is capable of exact measurement. We have become very successful in measuring material things in a materialistic age. We like to think that by many scientific tests we can measure a human being's capacity along many lines in the same way that we can analyze a piece of steel. But that is not true.

A man who is a genius in some things can be a dope in others and conversely, a man who is a dope in many things can be a genius in others. Most persons have difficulty in knowing themselves thoroughly. It is even harder to know someone else very well, even someone closely related to you.

The best that can be said of any system of measuring human beings is that it may offer a sort of guide and that's all. Many a man who thought of himself as a coward has responded in moments of danger with rare courage, and many a person who thought he wasn't a coward has acted like one when the chips were down. Many a kid that everyone wrote off as a doomed failure has grown up to be a very successful adult in a lot of ways; and many a man, marked for fame, has ended up a great failure.

What was the IQ of Jesus Christ? I don't know, nor does anyone else. Nor has anyone ever raised the question, because it makes no difference. How many degrees did He have? What schools did He attend? The point I am making is that the only real measurement of any person is moral.

The point of all our educational processes is to develop better human beings, and the word better has to have moral implications, not merely intellectual ones. We should not confuse means with ends and believe that the process of education is more important than the object of it. Getting back to the subject of Christ: He chose twelve men for one of the greatest tasks ever given to a small group of men, and He chose as the leader of that group, one who by the usual human standards might have been the last to be picked. His judgment didn't seem the best. He was slow to catch on with respect to what he was to do. He was a man you couldn't be sure of in an emergency. But he was the man chosen and did a job that is still remembered with admiration several thousand years later.

In dealing with human beings you are dealing partly with God, and He must laugh at the attempts of people to measure Him.

Lions Attend Convention

Fourteen Lions and Lionesses from the St. Joe-Spencerville Lions Club attended the first annual District Convention at Fort Wayne Sunday afternoon and evening, March 20.

During the registration in the Van Orman Hotel, the Indiana Lions State Band gave a concert. In the afternoon the Lions convened at the Scottish Rite Auditorium. Here they were welcomed by the Honorable Robert E. Meyers, mayor of Fort Wayne. This was mainly a business session with the district governor, John G. Herrmann, presiding.

At the same time the Lionesses were assembled at the Fort Wayne Women's Club. Here they enjoyed an exhibit of dolls made by Mrs. Herbert Storck and movies were shown of trips historically connected with the dolls. The theme of the exhibit was "In the Way Out Yonder." The movies, shown on an exceptionally large screen, were very interesting.

A social hour followed the program.

The local club representatives and wives went as a group to the Hobby Ranch for dinner.

The evening program was held in the Scottish Rite Auditorium with 1,042 attending. Again the Indiana Lions State Band entertained. In the past they have attended 14 International Lions' Conventions, winning first place nine times, second place three times and third place once. The guest speaker for the evening was Edward G. Barry, III, International Vice President. Several variety acts were then presented and attendance prizes awarded, but none of the local representatives were on the "lucky" list.

The following local club members and wives attended the convention: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hurni, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stemen, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kline and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dunten.

Seniors Schedule Work Day April 1

Let's Talk About-- The Weather

The weatherman gave Indiana (and the nation) something to talk about this week when the balmy promise of spring was given a cool welcome in the form of blustery winds, snow and freezing temperatures.

The first day of spring, supposedly March 21, had little to show to deserve the title. Cold temperatures on that day were a preview of still lower readings made Tuesday afternoon and night. In addition, windy blasts up to forty and fifty miles per hour prevailed through Tuesday. Snow which fell during the day, though light, caused dangerous driving conditions on the roads. It was particularly treacherous in that the winds blew much of the roads clear but left other protected areas with a sheet of ice thus endangering motorists who might be unaware of the patchy condition of the roads.

Clear skies Tuesday night and clear, sunny weather on Wednesday brought a welcome relief from the "second winter" thrown at the nation in this, the fourth week of March.

The high winds blew off patches of roofing, helped to bring down a large advertising signboard and grounded a tree in St. Joe.

ST. JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The St. Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Laura Washler on Friday, March 18.

The president called the meeting to order and the club creed and prayer were said in unison. Devotions were given by Myrtle Pugsley and the prayer by Gertrude Borthwick. Elizabeth Shull read the history of the song of the month, "On the Banks of the Wabash," after which everyone joined in singing it.

The project lesson, "Child Guidance," was given by Violette Kline. Alice Reidenbach gave an interesting and educational report on Garden School. Laura Washler reported on the Poultry Show to be held on April 2.

Special leaders reporting were: Myrtle Pugsley, fashion; Mary Kinsey, health; Emma Trenary, outlook; and Katie Storer, food preservation.

Thirty-one members responded to roll call. Two new members were welcomed into the club. They were Melba Chapman and Cora Funk. Neva Jennings was a guest and there were six children present.

Cora Curie and Elizabeth Shull sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Madonna Wade conducted a contest as part of the entertainment. The meeting closed with the singing of the song, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

The hostess and her committee, Emma Trenary, Mary Trenary and Audra Walter, served refreshments.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Florence Koch at Garrett.

Esther Haberkorn, Rep.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser on March 16.

After the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Carlos Church led the collect and Mrs. Wayne Storer led the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. M. E. Storer presented her lesson for Good Housekeeping magazine and called on each member to give a favorite work-saving device. She also presented two poems on the home and the housekeeper's work.

During the last part of the lesson hour, Mrs. Charles Krise reported on "Trademarks." She used a flannel board to display examples. She explained three classes of trademarks.

Mrs. Carl Carpenter gave two contests, one an Irish contest.

Seventeen members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Carpenter gave the critic's report.

After the business session, refreshments were served by the hostess.

The vote taken last Sunday concerning the Annual Homecoming held the first Sunday in August was unsatisfactory to the Board, therefore another vote will be taken this Sunday.

The Every Man's Bible Class and the Christian Home Builder's Bible Class Meeting will be Sunday immediately following the morning service. Bring your basket of food for a pot-luck dinner and go to Bro. Hanna's home. Business meeting and social hour will be the program of the afternoon.

More and more of the Bible School Classes are reaching their goal of 100 percent enrollment attendance in our Bible School. It begins to look very favorable for our goal of 150 for Resurrection Sunday, April 10, to be reached. Only three more Sundays in which to see our hopes accomplished. Prayer, work and Faith will do wonders for the church and also for our souls.

The church is the ark of safety for lost souls but it can only be effective when those souls come to the church. We'll be seeing you in church Sunday, or will we? It is up to you.

THE COST: A CROSS

Lesson for April 3, 1955

People who don't know the least thing about Christian religion do know this much, that it has something to do with a cross. You can't go into a church without seeing one. Many churches are even constructed in the shape of a cross. You can see one above the door or on the steeple. At this time of year it is a rare newspaper which does not carry somewhere the picture of a cross to go with Good Friday meditations or a Good Friday editorial. But if the cross is known even to persons altogether outside the Christian faith, it is infinitely better known to those on the inside. The deeper one penetrates into the meaning of the Christian faith, the more luminous the cross becomes. One might say that the cross is both in the pre-school and the post-graduate courses in Christian growth and knowledge.

Sacrifice Unlimited

The familiar cross of Christian art and architecture is a prettified version of an ugly thing, a cruel instrument of torture and death used by Romans only in case of executing slaves and the vilest criminals. Jesus was neither the first nor the last to be crucified. There are people who would call the cross itself an "historical accident." That is to say, if Jesus had lived in other eras or in other climates, he might have been killed by being frozen to death or buried alive or hanged or gassed. But that is neither here nor there. The meaning of the cross is not in the shape of a certain wooden thing that was used to kill people in a painful and horrible way. The meaning of the cross is simply this, in two words: Sacrifice unlimited. Paul puts it as simply as possible: "Christ died for all." He taught all, He set an example for all, He challenged and inspired all—that is, all who as He said "had an ear." But the cross reminds us that He died for all. "For their sakes," Jesus himself said, 'I dedicate myself." How far would that dedication go? Many a person will say sincerely, "I will do anything in reason, to help you." Christ went farther. It was not "reasonable" that He of all persons should give up His life for lesser men; but the kind of dedication that was His did not stop at the limits of the respectable and reasonable.

What Christians Remember

One might suppose that the Christian church would have liked to hush up the story of the cross, especially after the resurrection. It was a very ugly fact and as such was a handicap to the early Christians. Both among Jews and non-Jews, the cross was a kind of real curse. When the Christians preached Christ crucified, many a listener's reaction was: "Ask me to take for Master and Lord an executed criminal? Never!" But the Christians went right on with the story of the cross. The gospels give that story more space than any other event in Jesus' life. And the Christian church has never forgotten nor tried to forget it. For what it means to us is that God in Christ was far more than the fabled Greek gods who sometimes took human shape, sometimes shared with men their Olympic wisdom, but never suffered for them. It is know to Christians that the cross measures the immeasurable love of God for us and for all men.

What Christians Forget

What Christians too easily forget is something Jesus set in the center of his teaching. He spoke of His own cross, but He in the same breath would speak of the cross of His followers. The cross does not stand alone for one past event. It is intended to stand as a prophecy and pattern for every Christian's life. One modern translator of the Bible, coming to the verse, "Let him take up his own cross and follow me," boggled at that word "cross" and translated it, "Let him take up his own yoke. . ." No, there's no bypassing the intention of Jesus, one who meant what he said. And what he said amounted to this: For the Christian, one who wants to be a follower of Jesus, there must be no limit set on love's devotion. The Christian cannot say, if he really follows his Master, "I will do anything —in reason. . . I will make any sacrifice—that does not cost me too much. . . ."

The St. Joe News

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, March 31, 1955 | NUMBER 13

Around the Town

With the Editor

Don and Lazerne Keller say St. Joe played them a dirty trick. Here they were down in Florida and the people up here said "come on home, the weather's fine" and when they do—bingo, they get snowed under.

You might call it the passing of an era with Tuesday's felling of one of the large trees, a landmark at the rear of the town hall.

The old tree was brought down by some tree experts as the beginning of the construction of the proposed new fire station. The rings in the tree trunk indicated that it was around 42 years old.

Anyone know for sure??

Temporary difficulty with the pumping equipment of the local water system lowered the supply about three-quarters Saturday morning. The auxiliary water tank of the fire department was filled in case of an emergency which fortunately didn't come up.

From what's been heard in these parts, the band did all right through the efforts of the Band Boosters and auctioneer Russell Kruse at their sale Saturday. Reports are that they cleared around $400 which should just about put the uniforms on their backs.

A happy girl is Miss Betty Boggs.

Ah, the beaming faces of the youngsters Monday morning when the snow drifts kept the school buses off the roads and the doors of the school closed.

A direct contrast to the long countenances of the grown-ups who wonder—"will it ever get here??"

Free the Atom

General interest in the results of tests of the atomb bomb, a natural interest because of the promise of something new and awesome, probably is the reason for what may be considered a predominantly unrecognized questionable condition. That condition was pointed out in a recent communication from John W. Anderson, president of the National Patent Council and president of The Anderson Company of Gary, Indiana, manufacturers of patented automotive equipment. The communication included a statement of Mr. Anderson to the Joint Committee On Atomic Energy and a copy of an address given before the annual meeting of the Cleveland Patent Law Association.

The address, delivered last December, is entitled, "What Feeds Free Enterprise?" and in content answers the question by pointing out the importance of our patent system in the preservation of a free neterprise system. In his address Mr. Anderson also points out the attempts that have been made and that are being made to destroy the patent system. His statement to the Atomic Energy Committee specifically points out provisions in the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 which tend to promote the destruction of the patent system through control of private incentive. Boiled down to a few words, the contents of the address and the statement jolted us with a thought that had not occurred before - "Why does our government control atomic energy?"

Have you ever pondered that question? The first answer, and the most logical in view of the use the atom has been put to in tests thus far (tests, that is, which have been revealed to the public) is something like this: "The government controls the atom because we don't want numerous individuals shooting off atom bombs and endangering the lives and the health of our people."

The atom is not in existence only for the manufacture of bombs. It does not exist only for the destruction of mankind. It is presumed to be the greatest source of power yet discovered, but sources of power are good for con-struction as well as de-struction. If we have been thinking only in terms of "how many people will get killed" or "how big a hole will it put in the ground" when someone says but one word - "atom" - is it because that is all it is good for? Or could the answer be that we are thinking in destructive terms because of government control of atomic energy?

There may be doubting Thomases who will insist, "I'd still rather have Uncle Sam playing around with the atom than just anybody." Most of those doubting Thomases probably will then step into their high-powered automobile and quickly reach their next destination through the power of gasoline exploding in an internal-combustion chamber. The power of that gasoline when it was first discovered was relatively as destructive as is the power of the atom today? Do we need government control of petroleum refining?

Or many of the doubting Thomases may be hunting enthusiasts or trap shooters who enjoy the pursuit of their favorite sport. They use gunpowder. Destructible? Government controlled?

Yes, we have farmers, among others, who use dynamite to clear land. Their use of this power is of a constructive nature. They seek the use of more land to increase production of food. They use a power than can be destructive, but they do not use it that way.

So now we come again to the atom and atomic energy. It is granted that atomic energy is a powerfully destructive force and that it is dangerous. It is, however, no more dangerous actually than the fluid we buy when we drive into the service station and "fill 'er up" or the bullets we buy for sport or the dynamite we use for agriculture.

And of greatest importance to all, the continued control by government of the application of atomic energy to our civilization is a fearful inroad into the creative inventiveness of our free enterprise system. We read today of the wonders of tomorrow attainable through the power of the atom - atomic heating systems, atom-powered automobiles. As things now stand, we will enjoy these things through government say-so, not through the genius of free men. If we believe that such a condition is acceptable, then the planners of socialism for the United States have made progress.

Readers are invited to inspect the above mentioned address and statement for a more enlightening appraisal of the patent system and the related question of government control of atomic power.

EDUCATIONAL GOOD NEWS

Back in the 1930's when our nation was wallowing in one of the several depressions that have occurred in our upward march to constantly better living conditions, some important people among the educational forces felt that the American private enterprise system had proved to be a failure and should be changed. They joined with other forces—some sincere people and some scheming Communist conspirators—to reorient education in the United States, to prepare a coming generation for some form of collectivism.

Their efforts showed up in many textbooks, in classrooms, lectures and in a mushrooming propaganda program, beamed to adults, which pointed up and over-emphasized the defects in our system of capitalism and claimed great advantages for various forms of collectivism. Communist Russia had just been recognized with approval by President Roosevelt, and in the cultural and literary groups in the East, where the concentration of Communist agents was heaviest, the collectivism envisioned by Karl Marx and championed by the Russian Reds attracted many influential intellectuals.

At the end of World War II, the conspirators who were by then manipulating propaganda in every field of American life needed to break down the American citizens' love of country and their will to safeguard its system, and thus prepare the way for a take-over by the Communists. "Patriotism" became a word used only by "reactionaries." Loyalty to the "world" under "world government" became an aspiration toward which many school children were directed. "World citizenship" was a slogan on many campuses.

It has taken a number of years for the insidious aims of the conspirators behind this collectivist, world-government scheme to be recognized by important people in education. Some were duped by the conspirators. In fact, in some cases loyal Americans were so confused they lent their talents to formulating educational materials and techniques subordinating patriotism, subordinating the value of our national sovereignty, subordinating even the religious aspects of character building, and plugging for socialistic enterprises and an international government superseding our own.

A striking example of the beginning of what seems hopefully to be an educational swing back toward love of God and country and respect for our American economic system is to be found in the transformation wrought in the controversial high school civics textbook, Magruder's "American Government," a national scholastic "best seller" for 38 years. . . The whole atmosphere of the book has been changed during a rewriting period begun when heavy criticism was voiced by parents over the 1946 edition.

Here is a paragraph from the opening chapter of the 1946 textbook: "When we have definite international laws and an army to enforce them we should have international peace. For instance, when atomic bombs are made only by a world government and used only by a world army, who could resist? The United Nations formed by the Allies is a step in that direction." In championing the surrender of "some" of our national sovereignty, the book quotes writer E. Stanley Jones: "Center yourself on yourself and make yourself sovereign, and that self will go to pieces. That is true of the individual, and it is true of the group or nation."

In the 1955 edition these passages do not appear. Here is an excerpt typical of the orientation of the rewritten 1955 book: "As the leader of the free nations of the world, the United States is working for a lasting peace among all nations. But at the same time we know that the only sure guarantee of peace in today's strife-torn world lies in our own strength and in that of our allies. We oppose the Soviet-led communist dictatorships because we love liberty even more than we prize peace. We agree with Patrick Henry that peace is not to be bought at the price of chains and slavery."

The 1946 textbook, in discussing our economic system, said: "Capitalism gives economic freedom and incentive to do one's best; but it does not give as regular employment as a socialistic system of government." This was bulwarked by a long section stressing "advantages" of "full employment." It doesn't appear in the 1955 edition.

—Dr. George S. Benson, Director, National Education Program.

PROFANITY

I swear because:

It is a fine mark of manliness.
It proves I have self-control.
It indicates how clearly my mind operates.
It makes my conversation pleasing to everybody.
It leaves no doubt in anyone's mind as to my good breeding, culture and refinement.
It impresses people that I have more than ordinary education.
It makes me a very desirable personality among women and children and in respectable society.
It is my way of honoring God who said, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain."
And - it is a strong way to express a weak mind.

THE YALTA PAPERS — At last the American people are to get the facts as to what secret agreements were made at Yalta between the late president Roosevelt, prime minister Churchill and the late Red premier, Joseph Stalin.

It has taken us 10 years to uncover the secret concessions agreed to by the Big Three. Moreover, we have fought a tragic war in Korea known as a "police action," and witnessed the imprisonment of the top state department aide to the president at Yalta -- Alger Hiss -- before we as a nation were able to unearth the facts. Added to this is the startling announcement by the state department that even the public record is not entirely complete as sections of the discussions at the conference have been deleted. What measure of deletion has been made may never be known. It is unfortunate and ironical that our government will not permit the public to know all of the truth.

But we have an insight now as to what went on at Yalta. Secrecy in government is always anathema to Americans. At all times, to the extent consistent with national security, the public should be fully apprised of the actions of its leaders. The Constitution provides that the Senate shall ratify treaties which would spell out foreign commitments and alliances. This provision was particularly inserted so as to safeguard our national liberties. The Bricker Amendment which is still pending before that body would specifically outline treaty making powers and eliminate future secret agreements like those made at Yalta. The nation also is entitled to learn of decisions or commitments made at Potsdam and Teheran. With the Yalta papers now public, Big Three secrets entered into at those two places also should be revealed to the nation.

GENERAL Mac ARTHUR SPEAKS UP — In re-reading the speech of the late FDR on the Yalta conference at a joint session of Congress March 1, 1945, one is shocked to see how he obviously avoided any reference to concessions made relative to the Pacific front in World War II. He never once mentioned any agreements made with Stalin to get the Communists into the fight against Japan. He said, and I quote, "Quite naturally, this conference concerned itself only with the European war and with the political problems of Europe--and not with the Pacific war."

General MacArthur who was in charge of our forces in the Far East after the release of the Yalta papers declared that he was never consulted by the president or the chief of staff in regard to the conference. If he had been he said he would have advised against making any concessions to the Russians as we had the war virtually won in the Pacific as he had repeatedly advised higher authorities at the time of Yalta.

While I do not wish in any way to condemn or unjustly criticize the efforts undertaken by the Big Three at Yalta, or say that they may have been mistaken with reference to their deserting China and making concessions to the Commuists to get them into the war at that time, I do believe that for the future good of the country, the people should be kept fully informed as to any international agreements made by their representatives at such conferences. George Washington summed it up pretty well when he advised us in the beginning of our national life against entering into "entangling alliances."

HINTS ON HEALTH

DO BABIES WORRY?

Do babies worry?

A baby can worry himself right into a peptic ulcer case. It is estimated there are about 50,000 children between the ages of one and six years who have gastric ulcers. One of the factors causing ulcers is nervous and emotional distress.

Nothing upsets a child's emotional life more than a disturbed family situation. When parents are continually at odds and there is an atmosphere of sustained hostility in the home, the sensitive child reacts. The child may not show his feelings. He may keep his emotion repressed.

The type most likely to develop peptic ucer from worry is the tense, bright child, often referred to as a nervous child.

In studies made by investigators, chaotic family situations have been found in a majority of cases as a cause for peptic ulcer in children. Symptoms include the vomiting of blood, pain and constipation. Treatment of peptic ulcer in the child is similar to treatment for the adult.

Perforated peptic ulcer calls for prompt surgery. With unperforated peptic ulcer without bleeding medical management is usually sufficient. Treatment also must include investigation and relief of those factors in a child's life that case emotional stress sufficiently intense to produce peptic ulcer.

What with the flu bug, the big snow and "little faith" of some of our people last Lord's Day, the devil scored a great victory. A careful considering of Bible School and church attendance in this area, we note that a lot of regular people did not get out last Sunday. This coming Lord's Day, my good people and Christian friends, let's show the devil who is boss of our life. Put the old devil in his corner by attending all the services of the church. We'll be expecting our attendance to go over the 100 mark Sunday.

A mill-wheel may be turned--either by a current of water flowing underneath or by a stream falling upon it from above. Of the two, the latter is more efficient. There are two ways of moving men in the religious life. The first is a profound apprehension of "The terror of the Lord"; it is the undershot current, and moves men from beneath. The other is a sweet and lively experience of His love; it is the overshot current, and excites men from above.

Come to the Church of Christ in Newville Sunday and experience the warm love of Christ's gospel and the fellowship of good Christian people in the service of their Lord.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday-School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Scripture: Mark 16:1-7; John 11:25-27; 14:1-2; Corinthians 15.

Devotional Reading: Revelation 22:1-7.

WE SHALL LIVE

Lesson for April 10, 1955

"Eternal Life" has two meanings in the New Testament. One meaning refers to life beyond death. And yet this meaning is never applied to all human beings. It is either taken for granted or taught outright in the New Testament that all persons survive what we call death. But "eternal life" refers in this sense only to the survival of those who have accepted God's grace, never to those who have rejected it. The other meaning has to do with a quality of life itself, here and now, in this world, this side of what we call death.

Everlasting Life Can Be Terrible

The point is that if this quality of life is lacking in this world, the prospect of immortality is the most dismal that can be imagined. A modern pessimistic poem ends with the thought that in our whole universe we find everything contemptible — there is nothing to praise, not even ourselves. Suppose a person who has come down to that wretched conclusion goes on out through the curtain of death into the beyond—facing the prospect of endless existence, still seeing nothing but the contemptible within and without. What worse hell could be needed than that? So in the New Testament, immortality, as such, the mere prospect of personal survival after death, is never held out as something to be desired in itself. Eternal life, life that endures beyond death, is desirable only when the person who looks forward to it already possesses eternal life, as a changed and new life. To put it another way, only those who have been born again can be happy in looking forward to their "birthday in heaven." A corpse lying in the baggage car does not look forward to the train's arrival at its destination; only the living may have that pleasure. The corpse exists; the passengers live. So the Christian thought of Life beyond is not "We shall exist" but rather "We shall live."

Christ Lives Again

Perhaps Christians believe in eternal life, in the sense of this on-going through "death" of this present eternal life, less because of arguments than because of some inner certainty, some whisper of God within the heart rather than some argument of logic knocking at the brain. Still, if one can speak of arguments, there are two which specially appeal to Christians in all ages. One is that Christ lived, and lives, again. The first Christians told the world about a risen Christ. It is true they spoke of Christ crucified; but a crucifix does not express the whole Christian message. The dominant note of the New Testament is not death but life. Paul appeals to the resurrection of Christ in this famous chapter of his letter to the Corinthians. If that story is not true, he says, we are simply back where we were, the whole Christian faith is pure delusion. Every once in a while, and in our times more than twice in a while, people will try to tell us that the resurrection of Christ is a story you can "take or leave," that you can cut off the gospels with the burial of Jesus and still be a Christian. No, if that were so Christ would be no more than another dead dreamer. The resurrection sheds a brilliant light on everything that went before it and everything that comes after it.

Christ Lives In Me

The other argument which lies at the heart of the Christian's faith in a "life everlasting" which is worth looking forward to, is based on personal experience. "Christ lives in me" was the testimony of Paul first, and it echoes from the hearts of Christians ever since. When a man honestly thinks himself over, and asks, "What have I done, what am I, that God should trouble himself about me any longer? What right have I to expect, much less to demand, life everlasting?" his answer will be a melanholy "Nothing." Life that has no present sheen or strength of eternity about it or in it has outlived itself in less than three score years and ten. But if there is anything in a man that Christ has touched, if there is anything in a man that warrants saying, "Christ lives here," then he will dare and rejoice to say to Christ, "We shall live."

The St. Joe News

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, April 7, 1955 | NUMBER 14

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

I can't let the good deed of the Delbee Rupperts at Grabill go unmentioned.

I don't think they'll mind my saying that they owed a subscription bill. They wrote to the News and indicated that the bill (which was a pretty good sized one) would be paid as soon as possible.

That note was dated "May 1953." Their remittance came through the mail last week. Without any nudging from yours truly they remembered the bill after two years.

Some folks might call it a poor way to do business. Maybe so. I prefer to call it pretty decent treatment from folks whom I never even met.

Did somebody treat YOU "good" today? If the answer is "no," look back again. Is it that others have failed the Golden Rule—or that you have failed to recognize it??

Well, let's see, if the first week's issue of April of the St. Joe News published in the year 1947 is observed, it shows that Fran (Reidenbach) McMillan and hubby observed their 8th wedding anniversary on Tuesday of this week.

How'd I know? I found it in an old issue of the paper when I cleaned out the back room of the News Office Friday and Saturday. Also found were the pictures that appear on other pages of this issue. Do you recognize the people and places from 'way back when?

While at the dairy this week I watched the boys going on with their daily chores of bottling that healthy liquid and cleaning up again for the next day's supply to be processed. I thought there must be an automatic cleaner inside that one big tank at the north end of the processing and bottling room because the opening at the front wasn't too big. Water was running out the drain cock and I thought I saw a brush or something swipe past that opening above the drain a couple of times.

My eyes popped when out from that opening, not more than eighteen inches high, came the 6-foot 3-inch frame of Dewey White. He was inside the tank scrubbing it clean!

An end of another era came Monday afternoon when the Bowser's and Foster Gee, who have been dolling up the Bowser property at the west end of town, burned down that little building at the rear of the lot.

Churches Plan Special Services

Special services are being planned by the Spencerville Methodist and the Lutheran Parishes of the community commemorating the passion, crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ this week. On Wednesday night at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, the last in a series of speical Lenten services for the Lutheran Parishes was given at 8 p.m. Meditation was delivered by Pastor Philip Barnhart based on the 7th Word from the Cross, "Father, into thy hands I commit my Spirit." Pastor Barnhart spoke on the subpect, "God Is Our Trust."

On Good Friday afternoon at 2 p.m., union Good Friday services will be held in the Spencerville Methodist Church. Pastor Wayne Baxter of the Methodist Parish will bring the message on the subject, "Branded Loyalties," and Pastor Barnhart will conduct the service.

The special Holy Week services will be climaxed on Sunday morning with a combined Easter Sunrise Service sponsored by the Spencerville and Concord Methodist Churches and St. Peter's and St. Mark's Lutheran churches. This service will begin at 6 a.m. and will be held in St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville. A combined choir of 26 voices from St. Peter's and Spencerville Methodist churches will sing four special numbers in this service. These include "The Old Rugged Cross," by George Benard; "In the Garden," by C. Austin Miles; "The Holy City," by Stephen Adams; and "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Mrs. Joseph F. Knapp. Additional music will be furnished by Miss Nancy Vendrely who will sing, "Were You There?" Pastor Baxter will conduct the service and Pastor Barnhart will bring the meditation on the subject, "Then Came the Dawn."

Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner will be the pianist.

Following the service an Easter Breakfast will be held in the basement of St. Peter's sponsored by the Spencerville Methodist Church, St. Mark's Lutheran Church of St. Joe and St Peter's Lutheran Church of Spencerville.

Mrs. Ralph Sechler, Mrs. Gerald Blauser and Mrs. Mel Allen are the committee heads who are in charge of the breakfast. Women from all three churches will aid in the serving of the breakfast. The public is invited to the Sunrise Service and the breakfast.

Other services will be held in the respective churches. Holy Communion will be administered in St. Mark's Lutheran Church Thursday night and in St. Peter's Friday night with Pastor Barnhart conducting the services.

Kline's Addition Accepted By Town Board

At the regular meeting of the town board of St. Joe held Monday evening, April 4, approval and acceptance of a new addition of home sites was made.

The new addition is located on property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kline. Lots in the new addition are located between the blacktop road at the southwest edge of town and West Washington Street in a plat just west of State Road 1 as it enters St. Joe from the south.

The land has been surveyed by county surveyor Arnold Milks to include a sixty foot street serving a total of eleven home sites.

Records at the county court house reveal that Kline's Addition will be the ninth addition of St. Joe. The list includes Leighty's First Addition to the original plat of St. Joe, Leighty's Second Addition in 1880, Curie's Addition in 1882, Grill's Addition in 1882, Hart's Addition in 1888, Leighty's Third Addition in 1889, White's Addition in 1913 and Leighty's Fourth Addition in 1914.

During the board meeting citizens of the town were heard concerning drainage difficulties and also concerning the alleged location of an alley.

Weatherford Quartet To Sing At Concord Friday, April 15

The Weatherford Quartet, popular vocal group broadcasting daily over radio station WOWO, will appear at the Concord Methodist Church on Friday, April 15.

The concert at the Concord Church will begin at 8 p.m.

A free-will offering will be taken. There is no admission charge.

The public is invited to hear this program of religious song.

W. E. Clauser Purchases Trading Post

Annonucement was made this week of the sale of Walter's Trading Post in St. Joe to Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Clauser of South Bend. The business was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Walter of St. Joe.

The new owners will operate under the trade name of "Clauser's Trading Post" and have indicated that the store will maintain the same hours of business as have been followed by the former owners. The same clerical help will be employed, at least for the present time.

The transfer of the business did not include the appliance line. Mr. Walter will continue to handle the same appliance lines which he has in the past.

Mr. Clauser has a wide background of experience in the grocery field. He was employed by the Kroger Company for ten years prior to sixteen years with Bursley & Co. For the past twelve years he was branch manager of the South Bend office of Bursley's.

The Clauser family will take up residence in St. Joe in the early part of June. Mrs. Clauser, the former Eva Watt, daughter of Curt Watt of St. Joe, a daughter and a son will join Mr. Clauser later this spring to reside in the Russ property. The daughter graduates this year from high school and the son will be a freshman in high school next fall. Another daughter will be married in May. There are three other sons in the Clauser family, all maried, one of whom is also engaged in the grocery business, he in South Bend.

W. S. C. S.

On Wednesday afternoon, March 30, the W. S. C. S. of the Spencerville Methodist Church met at the home of Maxine Kelley. The meeting opened with group singing of the hymn, "In the Garden." Devotions were conducted by Cleo Reed who read from John, Mark and Galatians. The explanation of the scripture texts was followed by a hymn, "Are Ye Able?", and a prayer.

The lesson for the month on the subject, "Woman Goes To the City," was discussed by Miriam Baxter. The secretary's report was given and the treasurer reported a balance as of March 1 . of $89.46. Penny boxes were passed out to all who cared to take one. The money thus collected will be used to meet the pledge or some other worthwhile cause at the discretion of the group.

Plans for the breakfast to follow Sunrise Services on Easter morning were discussed and the president asked for volunteers to work and for donations of such foods as butter, coffee, juices and eggs.

Those on the sick list were remembered by cards of cheer signed by all present at the meeting.

While refershments were being prepared, Lois Fisher read the story, "The Easter Bell."

The hostess, Maxine Kelley, and co-hostess, Lola Kast, served delicious angel food cake with lemon sauce, coffee and jelly beans in bright spring colors to fourteen ladies and five children.

The meeting then adjourned.

The next meeting of the W. S. C. S. will be held on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 27.

Driver Escapes Serious Injury

Russell Walter of near St. Joe narrowly escaped serious injury Monday morning when the truck he was driving crashed into a bridge abutment a mile and a half east of Harlan.

Mr. Walter was making his daily milk products deliveries for Holsom Dairy in the largest of the dairy's fleet of trucks, a van-type vehicle. He was traveling down the road, and in making an adjustment to the door on the driver's side of the cab, momentarily took his eyes from the road. In so doing he edged to the side of the road and struck the abutment. The force of the impact threw the contents of the truck forward against a dividing panel and Mr. Walter was pinned in the cab.

The presence of the door-panel separating the driver's compartment from the contents of the rear of the truck probably saved the driver from serious injury.

Mr. Walter completed his route later with another truck and returned to the dairy before feeling the after-effects of the crash which sent him to his home for rest.

Extensive damage was caused to the truck.

Downfall Of A Tree

Mention was made in last week's issue of this paper of the "passing of an era" with the felling of a familiar tree at the rear of the town hall and fire department building in St. Joe.

Herewith is presented a picture story of the tree's last stand with photos taken on Tuesday of last week.

First, off come the top limbs . . . .

Then a line from the truck to the upper part of the tree pulls as the trunk is sawed, to bring the exclamation . . .

Dr. Philip Schaff wrote: "Before we can reason the resurrection out of history we must reason Paul and Christianity out of existence. We must admit the miracle or frankly confess that we stand before an inexplicable mystery."

Spinoza said: "If I could believe the resurreotion, I would become a Christian at once."

The salient doctrine of the Christian faith is the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Remove our Lord's resurrection, and Christianity will fall and crumble to nothing, for you take away the very keystone from this great arch. You thus prove Calvary, our preaching, faith, righteousness, hope and peace to be in vain, and that we are "yet in our sins" (I Cor. 15:14-17).

Twenty active members responded to roll call and each introduced a guest. Nineteen teachers and wives were present: Mrs. Richard Calbeck, Mrs. Joseph Yaste, Mrs. Gladys Blackburn, Mrs. Blanche Middaugh, Mrs. Violet Baker, Mrs. Guy Platter, Mrs. Merle Guilford, Miss Betty Boggs, Mrs. Louise Mountz, Mrs. Valerie Machlik, Mrs. Gladys Impton, Mrs. Allen Haller, Mrs. Mabel Miller, Mrs. Ben Simpson, Mrs. Iva Potter, Mrs. Maurene Moss, Mrs. Robert Dragoo, Mrs. Laura Spalding and Mrs. Margaret Bacon. Mrs. Lora Leighty, an emeritus member, Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner, an honorary member, and Mrs. Brumbaguh, mother of the speaker, were also present.

Tea was served from the dining room table beautifully decorated with candles and African violets. Mrs. Weldon Shafer, president, and Mrs. Ben Simpson, high school principal's wife, poured.

The committee for this special evening was Mrs. O. L. Hansen, Mrs. Carlos Church, Mrs. Robert Musser and Mrs. Henry Lung.

ARMY BOOKLET CONTAINS BASIC TRAINING DATA

Sgt. Harold C. Richards, the local Army recruiter, has just received two new booklets explaining to young men exactly what to expect during basic training. The publications are brand new and were just released this month by the Army.

The Army's action was taken in response to numerous queries from young men about to go into the service. It is expected that the booklets will be of particular help to the many youths who will enter the Army following high school graduation this summer.

The booklets are entitled "Starting Your Army Career" and "The Making of a Soldier." Both contain photographs taken during basic training at camps throughout the nation.

"Starting Your Army Career" explains how a young man may choose an Army career and also tells about occupational classification, educational advantages, medical and dental care and recreational facilities.

The other booklet, "The Making of a Soldier," is devoted to an explanation of basic training - from the moment a recruit steps off the Army bus to the end of an eight-week cycle. It includes chapters on rifle training, marching drill, bivouac and assignments to the various branches of the Army.

For further information and free booklets, contact Army recruiter Sgt. Harold C. Richards, 102 Walnut Street, Butler, Indiana, phone 336-W.

NO GREATER FOOL

Lesson for April 17, 1955

It was the day of the great mass-meeting. The new administration was meeting the voters face to face. At least, the man who hoped and expected to be the administration was facing the people he hoped to rule. The right word is "rule," for this was in the days when kings were kings and not mere signers of other men's documents. And this particular king was none other than the son, the one and only son, of the famous King Solomon. His name was Rehoboam, and if ever a greater fool lived on this earth, history has lost record. As a matter of fact, he could not be king automatically. The nation had not been a kingdom very long; there had been only three kings in all, Saul, David and Solomon. And in every case, the king had been elected by vote of the people. It was what we would call technically an elective monarchy, not yet a hereditary one. So Rehoboam had to persuade the people that he was worth electing. He could not be king of any tribe if that tribe did not vote for him.

A Royal Fool

Rehoboam now proceeded to do everything wrong. The people asked him the perennial question: What about taxes? Solomon's reign had been magnificent—if you lived in the palace. If you lived out in the villages or on a farm, it looked different. The royal officers were everywhere, bleeding the people for all the taxes and all the forced labor that the royal magnificence required for its upkeep. The people told Rehoboam that Solomon's yoke was grievous; they begged him to make it lighter. Rehoboam asks for time to think. He spends that time asking advice. The older counsellors, his father's trusted wise men, tell him to go light on the people. In fact they give him the whole theory of good government in a nutshell: "If you will be a servant unto this people . . . then they will be your servants for ever." Then Rehoboam asks the younger men, his own contemporaries, what he shall do. They give him the completely foolish advice to bear down on the people, treat 'em rough, tell them nothing good. So the feckless Rehoboam goes out and says in effect, "You took a beating in my father's time—but you haven't seen anything yet. If he beat you with whips, I'll beat you with scorpions."

Nine Hndured and Ninety-Nine Stepmothers

Of course Rehoboam lost the election. Only one tribe stood by him. The rest went off and elected another king of their own. A kingdom that David had won by courage and Solomon had held by wisdom, was kicked away by Rehoboam out of sheer foolishness. What made Rehoboam such a fool? It was not his youth. At the time of this episode he was forty years old, and if a man has no sense by the time he is forty, it is too late to hope. Part of the trouble may have been his 999 stepmothers. Solomon was married a thousand times, but we have no record of any children except this man Rehoboam. Considering what harem intrigues are like in the Orient, and considering the fact that most if not all of Solomon's immense harem were heathen women, it would not be surprising if Rehoboam's mother (who herself was a heathen from Ammon) was over-supplied with bad advice from Rehoboam's nosy stepmothers. Some fools are born, some are made. They are home-made, many of them. One of the best ways to produce a fool in your family is to listen to all the stupid advice the neighbors can give you.

The Voice of Inexperience

Another thing was wrong with Rehoboam, and for this we cannot blame his mother nor his congregation of stepmothers. It was his own fault that he preferred to listen to the men his own age, men who like himself had grown up in the luxury of the court, men who knew nothing of practical affairs, preferred to listen to them, the voices of inexperience, rather than to the older men whose advice Solomon had tried and presumably found good. Rehoboam being himself without experience could not tell of course beforehand whether the older or younger men were right.

No other low-priced car even comes close to matching these important Chevrolet advantages . . .

If you're planning to buy a new car, the one you just can't afford to miss seeing is Chevrolet—for 19 straight years America's best-selling car. The Motoramic Chevrolet offers you so much more than the other low-priced cars that it's hardly fair to compare them. And even the high-priced cars don't have all the advantages that today's Chevrolet offers you.

The beauty's built in—not bolted on!
Chevrolet's beauty is inherent in the basic contours of metal and glass. There's no excessive bolted-on ornamentation to go out of style overnight.

The Body's by Fisher!
You see Body by Fisher on lots of the high-priced cars—and only Chevrolet has it in the low-price field!

Today's most modern engines!
That goes for Chevrolet's new V8 and two new sixes as well. All bring you a modern 12-volt electrical system—double the voltage of other low-priced cars. Then Chevrolet's new "Turbo-Fire V8" has the shortest piston stroke in the industry!

A drive to suit your driving!
There's silky, peppery Powerglide (even better this year!), new Overdrive (both extra-cost options), and a new Synchro-Mesh transmission that's as smooth as they come.

All the power helpers you want!
Windows, seat, steering, brakes—all are available with built-in "muscles" to make driving as effortless as you wish. They're optional at extra-cost—and worth it!

Come take the key!
There have never been so many good reasons why you should drive a Chevrolet!

Over Ten Million Chevrolet owners—Two Million more than any other car!

Around the Town

With the Editor

Joe Gerig was given a hard time by his fellow Lions Club members Monday evening. He is about to take the "fatal step" - get hitched, that is. This coming Saturday is the big day and Joe says he's got the shakes.

It's interesting to watch the technique of the boys putting in that big new patch of cement just down the street. The way those big blobs of cement get worked into a smooth level walking surface is quite the thing. Those large areas present a problem when the finishing touches are to be made - how to reach the middle. Auber Butler made like a diver Tuesday setting a long plank out over the soft cement, propped at the center and weighted at the "dry" end. Then he crawled out on the "diving board" and with that professional touch of his finished the job section by section.

DuWayne Richmond and Wayne Rennecker have done most of the job with the Butler boys chipping in now and then.

Nice little rain we had Monday and Tuesday. —And look at that grass grow.

Several readers have remarked that they can identify most of the old-time pictures which appeared last week. I don't know the pictures from Adam - most of them anyhow. That one good-looking young man last week looks like it must be Merritt Sechler. So if anyone wants to take the trouble to send in the names, I won't complain.

Boyoboy! It's finally here - the baseball season. And look at the way those Cubs are going. As of Tuesday they had completed one-seventy-seventh of their schedule and hadn't lost a game.

You watch. They're going to do something this year. The best double-play combination in the majors - and loaded with power. Last place and maybe seventh is the spot they've been given for the coming season. I'll pick 'em for fourth or maybe even third.

—If there's a big silence come next October, you'll know from whenceth it cometh.

Harts To Present Dutch Festival In May

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart, owners and operators of the Karo-Lato Farm, one-half mile east of Spencerville, are preparing for an elaborate "Wooden Shoe Festival" to be held during the month of May at the farm.

A Dutch theme will prevail for the event with flower beds laid out in blocks with each variety labeled with a wooden shoe sign. Tulips will be marked by white signs since they will be in bloom at the time, but other plants will be identified by painted wooden shoe markers carrying the color of the individual plants.

Each sign will stand acording to the height of the plant: high, medium or low. Flowers will include over one hundred varieties of tulips, 150 different kinds of perennials and several types of gladiolus bulbs, evergreen plantings, geraniums, petunia, colea, marigold, snapdragons, zinnias, asters and others.

Girls dressed in hand-made, authentic colorful costumes, big wooden shoes and large white hats will be placed in the rows of flowers. A booking office and sign will be built in the shape of a wooden shoe. Mrs. Charles Anderson, Fort, Wayne, designed the costumes and Mrs. Hart and other Spencerville women are sewing them.

A salesman from the Netherlands will bring two authentic Dutch costumes from his native land for display purposes. The Harts explained that this salesman spends six months in this country gaining orders and six months in the Netherlands filling them. He will wear his own Dutch dress while at the festival.

The owners are making their own decorations and most of the costumes but will import the Dutch wooden shoes and other souvenirs. They hope to make the festival similar in popularity to the Holland, Michigan, and Illinois events each year.

The festival will include a lunch serving "saucijzebroodges." This is described as a Dutch meal.

Also in the festival will be two hayrides each to be accompanied by a guide. These will include a ride to the sassafras grove and persimmon grove and a trip through sugar bush to the sugar camp where maple sugar making will be explained. The rides will pass through a woods that has been a public playground for years, has an Indian historical background and has trees of over two feet in diameter.

Should the event prove a success, the Harts will add night hay rides to the abovementioned daylight rides. Their plans even include the possibility of rides on electric show boats on the St. Joe River which borders their farm on the north.

The unusual name of the farm is derived from the first two letters of the Harts' and their two sons' names: Karl, Dorothy, Lavon and Tom.

Mr. Hart is a retired school teacher, having taught 28 years. Mrs. Hart taught for four years. They previously operated a turkey farm.

School Board Approves 50¢ Building Levy

The school board of Riverdale School Corporation has approved a 50-cent building fund levy for the patrons of the three townships included in the consolidation. Thus will be inaugurated a fund to provide for the construction of necessary school facilities to house the increasing number of students attending the grade school at Spencerville and the high school at St. Joe.

There has been no levy made in the past, though initial consolidation began two years ago, because of the conflict in dates of setting up budgets and beginning operations as a consolidation. No appropriations were made by the individual townships in the past to provide a beginning for the building fund.

With a combined assessed valuation of approximately four million dollars for Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, the levy will realize around $20,000 per year. It was approved at a meeting of the board held Monday evening. Additional funds are available through bonding of the school corporation. However, this bonding cannot exceed two percent of the assessed valuation, in this instance netting a sum of approximately $80,000.

Also included in the business of Monday night's meeting was the formulation of a graduated teacher's salary schedule in line with schedules as followed by schools of a size comparable to Riverdale's. A few school patrons were heard at the meeting with complaints concerning the operation of the school.

Churches To Have Guest SpeakersSunday

The St. Joe Church of Christ will present a guest speaker on Sunday morning, April 17.

The guest will be Mr. Edward Fausz, a misionary who is preparing to go to Frankfort, Germany, to pioneer a work called the West German Christian Mission.

Mr. Fausz is a professor in the Great Lakes Bible College at Vestaburg, Michigan. He is an excellent Bible scholar and speaks German fluently. Coming from a Lutheran background, he is a graduate of the Cincinnati Bible Seminary. Married and the father of three children, Mr. Fausz is a kind, energetic person full of Christian zeal.

He will speak at the morning service at 11:00 a.m.

Donald Foust, pastor of the church, has reminded members that this coming Sunday will be the third Sunday of the month and the Building Fund offering will be taken.

Miss Eleanor Lyon, former artist at the Higley Press at Butler, now serving as missionary to her own people, will be at the Mt. Pleasant E. U. B. Church on Sunday evening, April 17, at 8:00 p.m.

Miss Lyon, a very talented, educated and consecrated Navajo girl, gives stirring messages of the spiritual needs of her people who may be rightly called "the first Americans."

She has interesting facts to relate concerning those who are regarded as foreigners in their own land. As time permits, her messages are enhanced by exceptionally good chalk drawings.

Miss Lyon will be traveling with Miss Velma Jones, field secretary of the American Indian Field of the World Gospel Mission.

Friends of the Newville E. U. B. circuit will remember Miss Lyon for her chalk drawings given in the three churches last year.

All are very welcome to attend this missionary program.

There is always much said about the Sunday following Easter. Most churches have a large attendance that Sunday but the Sunday following Easter, there is a great reduction in the number of worshippers in church. My brethren, this ought not so to be. We of the Church of Christ in Newville will be out to "BEAT THE DEVIL" this coming Sunday. Our aim? To have more out Sunday following Easter than we did on Easter Sunday. It is possible. Will each one of you help us? You can, by being present.

The Loyal Gleaners Bible Class will have their April Class meeting at the church on Friday night of this week.

The Official Board of the church will have their April meeting at the parsonage in St. Joe on Tuesday night, April 19.

There were sixty people out for church services last Sunday night which we feel is very good considering the size of our congregation. You good people of the church are doing very good work and we pray that you will continue in this work for Christ. Remember, the church is only as strong as the faithfulness of the church members. Come to church Sunday, morning and evening.

Scholarship Awards For 4-H Winners

Top ranking 4-H'ers among the 135,000 participating in the 4-H Dairy Project will receive recognition in the 1955 National 4-H Dairy award program.

A new national 4-H awards donor, the Larro SureFeed Division of General Mills, will provide the awards on the county, state and national levels. The new donor, a long time supporter of the 4-H movement through educational booklets and related services, has accepted an invitation to join a select list of 45 public spirited organizations and individuals as national 4-H donors.

State winners in the dairy program will receive a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next fall, and six national winners will be presented $300 college scholarships each. Medals will be made available to the four top members in each county.

In the 4-H dairy program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, club members learn by doing. They work with their own animals, feeding and caring for them while learning modern dairy production methods. Looking to the future, 4-H members take part in demonstrations, judging tours, exhibits, public speaking and other related activities which give them a better understanding of the dairy industry.

Often, 4-H Club participation has led to profitable father-son partnerships in the family farming operation, and many of today's successful dairymen got their start with 4-H dairy projects.

Excellent foundation herds have been established by all of the 1954 national winners. One built up a herd of 40 registered cattle in 11 years of club work. Others have set aside profits for a college education or are investing their money in farm equipment or land.

Awards valued at $50,000 are being offered 4-H Club members in the 1955 National 4-H Garden, Canning and Frozen Foods programs.

Of the half-million 4-H'ers who participate in the three projects each year, those with outstanding records will be honored in county, state, sectional and national levels. Much of the foodstuffs grown in the 100,000 arces of 4-H gardens are used fresh, but members also can over six million quarts of food and freeze more than three million pounds annually.

Medals will be offered to four outstanding garden members in each county. State winners in the program will receive trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. The eight top-ranking 4-H'ers among the state winners will get $300 college scholarships each. For the 10th consecutive year, the Tractor Division of Allis-Chalmers is providing the awards for garden winners.

Similar county and state awards are made available to canning winners. The six top state winners will receive $300 scholarships from the Kerr Glass Mfg. Corp., donor of the canning awards, at the National Congress.

In the frozen foods program, medals are provided for two county winners by International Harvester, awards donor. State winners will receive $50 U. S. Savings Bonds. All-expense trips to the National 4-H Club Congress will be given eight sectional winners, representing all parts of the country, and six of the trip winners will be presented $300 scholarships as national winners.

Club members in the programs "learn by doing" while increasing individual and family incomes by reducing the amount of food purchased and providing the family with healthful foods.

4-H Club work is conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, and full information about the programs is available from county extension agents.

REPORT from CONGRESS

U. S. STRIKING POWER—A Senate Appropriations Subcommittee has heard at first hand of the tremendous striking power of United States armed forces.

From Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson came encouraging words as to U. S. defense strength in the face of critical world conditions.

In testifying in regard to the $34 billions defense program for the coming fiscal year, both Secretary Wilson and Admiral Radford, Chief of Staff, stated that the nation must maintain large, mobile forces "in an improved state of readiness' as long as the "Communist" threat hangs over our head." Admiral Radford predicted that this might be for "ten years or it may be 50."

ARMY SNAFU?—The sudden decisions of the Army to deny access to the documents of General MacArthur concerning Yalta has stirred up another controversy.

The American people are entitled to know what the General said. His views on the Yalta conference should be reported. He has indicated that he saw no reason at the time for asking Russian help or making concessions to get the Reds in when we had victory in sight over Japan at the time of meeting of Stalin, FDR and Churchill.

There are no security considerations involved in this matter. The military had down-graded MacArthur's papers from "top-secret" to "restricted" for the benefit of historians. But when a newspaper request to look at them was made, the Army saw fit for some unknown reason to up-grade them again and classify them as "confidential."

The public should know the General's views at the time or what he would have advised had he been consulted.

BERLIN AIRLIFT—According to information coming to the Congress, 28 pages of military papers were deleted from the Yalta papers. These pages include some reference to Berlin where the U. S. got a zone with the Soviets without an entrance or exit. To get in and out we had to resort to the "Berlin airlift." Certainly we should profit from costly mistakes of the past. If the public is informed as to what its leaders are doing at future conferences, we can avoid committing more blunders.

GODLY NATIONS

Lesson for April 24, 1955

We may as well admit that no such thing as a "godly nation" has ever been seen—not if you take the word "godly" at its full meaning. A godly nation, 100 per cent, would be one where every citizen kept God's commands, where every act of Congress (or of Parliament, or decree of king) would be such as God would fully approve. For the matter of that, a hundred percent godly individual is also unheard of. And yet we can speak of godly men and ungodly ones. So we can speak of more or less godly nations, nations whose trend and direction is toward God or away from him.

Is God On Our Side?

We always like to think, especially when we are at war, cold or hot, with other nations, that God is on our side. We like to think that we are God's people and the other side, the enemy, is not. The truth of the business is that no nation is either completely right or completely wrong, no nation fully carries out God's will and no nations wholly defy it. No nation in the world today is composed entirely of Christians, no nation in the world today is without Christians in it. But having said all this, we can still say truly that God is on the side of some people and nations more than he is on others. In the Old Testament we have a good example of a nation that made this mistake of supposing God would be for them whatever they did, and they were dreadfully dismayed when they discovered that they could lose wars and generally "eat bitterness." Many Jews thought God had let them down when such things happened; but the phophets knew better. Azariah, a prophet in King Asa's time, put the truth in a nutshell. "The Lord is with you while you are with him," he said.

Leadership in the Church

King Asa's times, and the times of President Eisenhower and Queen Elizabeth, are not so very far apart after all. What was needed for a godly nation in the days of Asa? The need that the prophet mentions first is "teaching priests." There were plenty of priests who went through the liturgies and made sacrifices, but what the nation needed was teaching priests, religious leaders who could teach the law of God, that is to say, priests who could show the people what religion meant in daily living, in dealings between man and man. So long as religion stays inside the church, so long as religion concerns itself only with the Other World, so long as religion tries to confine itself to what is exclusively spiritual, it will not be Biblical, and it will be powerless to build a godly nation. An officer in a young people's church group once told the writer: "Our bunch really means business. This year we raised the money to extend the chancel two feet." —And that was all they did! One suspects that there was something missing in the parson's sermons, if those young people got the idea that the business of religion mainly has to do with how long or short the chancel is. God's law is not a law for Sunday mornings only. But until and unless there are teaching priests who take the lead in showing us how we can apply God's law —and above all the law of love —to our life as a nation, we shall be godly only on Sunday mornings, if ever. The most church-going city in the south was for years also the city with the highest murder rate; the place lacked teaching priests.

Leadership In the Nation

Preachers and churches will have an uphill time of it, at the best, even when they do see and work for the doing of God's will in everyday social and political and business life. There is too much organized and unorganized selfishness abroad to give the God of Love much chance. So in our time, as in King Asa's long ago, there is need for leaders outside the pulpit. In those days it was the king himself who took the lead. We have no kings in America but we do have leaders, all the way from village mayors up to Congressmen, senators, supreme court justices and the President.

Peggy Koch, Paul Baney Are Honor Students

Ben Simpson, principal of Riverdale High School, announced this week that Peggy Jo Koch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Koch of Spencerville, has achieved the highest scholastic honor of her class, that of valedictorian of the Class of 1955. Paul William Baney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baney of near St. Joe, has been named salutatorian of the class.

Miss Koch gained the coveted recognition through her scholastic efforts resulting in an average of 96.86 for her four years in high school. Mr. Baney's average for the same four year period was 95.14. Both have been active in many of the school's activities with

PAUL BANEY

Miss Koch chosen the Girls' State representative from this community in 1954.

Mr. Simpson also announced that baccalaureate will be held Sunday, May 15, at 2:30 p.m. in the Riverdale High School gym at St. Joe. Rev. Wilmer Ballou of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ will give the address. Other ministers of the community will assist in the services.

President Bill Sible presided and conducted the business session. Election of officers was held with the following results:

President—John Mason.

Vice president—Mrs. Thelma Carper.

Secretary—Mrs. Jay Wallace.

Treasurer—Virgil Smith.

Faster, stronger cranking for cold-weather starts and a "fatter" spark for faultless high-speed operation.

Highest standard compression ratio in its field!
Chevrolet's compression ratio is 8 to 1, to wring every possible ounce of power and extra miles out of every gallon of gas.

Requires only four quarts of oil!
Chevrolet's V8 engines are so efficient they need only four quarts of oil . . . so you save on every change!

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, April 28, 1955 | NUMBER 17

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

It didn't take long for "Red" Tharp to get that stump out where the new fire house will be built. He and his 'dozer made short work of it a couple of weeks ago.

A couple of readers have made their identifications of those old-time photos in the paper here recently, but there seems to be a little difference of opinion in some instances.

Lloyd Yeiser made the following identifications:

April 7 issue—Roscoe Conine, Elevator, J. Y. Davis, Congressman Lewis Fairfield, J. C. Woodcox, Merritt Sechler, Dale Widney and one unknown.

April 14 issue—St. Joe school building, Clarence Woodcox, Malon Baker, Ray Herrick, Harry Kees, Hon. J. D. Leighty and Simeon Maurer.

I received an envelope with more identifications from a St. Joe route reader but there was no name signed and I don't recognize the handwriting the envelope bore, though it's very familiar.

A. Nonie Mouse's identifications were:

April 7th—Roscoe Conine, J. G. Davis, Fairfield (?), Davis (?), C. A. Woodcox, Merritt Sechler, Frank Hart and that building unidentified.

April 14th—that building, it says, is not a St. Joe building, C. C. Woodcox, Mahlon Baker, Ray D. Herrick, Harry Kees, Hon. J. D. Leighty and Sim. Maurer.

At first glance, I thought the building in the April 14 issue was the St. Joe school house—but look again —it's Spencerville's.

And the elevator is also Spencerville's.

As for the others, you'll have to fight it out for yourselves. I never knew 'em—at least not when those pitchers were took.

There'll be more in next week's issue.

Say, I hear there's going to be a pretty good piano player at Ben Ball's Plantation Friday night.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our thanks for the many get-well cards and kind acts of our neighbors and friends during Mr. Snyder's illness.

Band To Appear In New Uniforms Saturday

The first public appearance of the Riverdale High School band attired in their newly acquired grey-and-green uniforms will be made Saturday, April 30, in a parade at Auburn preceding a state-wide contest to select "Miss Majorette of Indiana."

The purchase of the uniforms was made recently following intense efforts by the Band Boosters Club and the Riverdale P. T. A. to raise the necessary funds for that purpose. The outfits are the fruits of such endeavors as the P.T. A. Carnival and the Boosters' Auction, plus a $200 donation from the St. Joe-Spencerville Lions Club.

Miss Betty Boggs, director of the band and head of the music department of the Riverdale schools, will be in charge of the band at its Saturday appearance. There will also be several appearances of the band through the summer months, if present plans are carried out.

Scouts Plant Trees On Game Preserve

Scoutmaster Bud Shockley of the St. Joe Boy Scout Troop 173 reported Saturday afternoon that twelve members of the troop plus five members of the Spencerville Boy Scout Troop 172 had just finished planting evergreens and wildlife cover on the Lavon Brunson farm located north of St. Joe.

Included in the planting were 200 red pine, 200 scotch pine, 1450 multiflora rose and 300 coralberry.

Bill Hudson, scoutmaster of the Spencerville troop, Lyle McMaken, secretary of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club, Stanley Means, county conservation council chairman, John Conrad, county conservation officer and Dale Martin, district representative of the Pitman-Robertson projects, were also present. The project was carried out on a five-acre tract of the Brunson farm designated as a game preserve under the Pitman-Robertson Act.

Following the afternoon's activity, the Conservation Club furnished refreshements for the group. Consumed were 10 pounds of hot dogs, two cases of pop.

Important Club Meeting Thursday

Walter Morr, president of the St. Joe Valley Recreation Club, has called for a special meeting of the club this Thursday evening, April 28, at 8 p.m. in the St. Joe gym.

The recreation club sponsored a church league last year and all churches who wish to enter the league this year are asked to have their managers and players present for a discussion of rules, etc. There will also be other teams active this summer with the little and pony league teams, exhibition games and "ham" competition to fill out the schedule.

Election of officers will also be held at the meeting.

Everyone interested in the operation of the local diamond is asked to be present and to buy a dollar membership for the year. The club has some indebtedness yet on the record and must relieve this obligation through such receipts as the membership fee. Receipts from the operation of the refreshment stand are similarly used to retire the debt.

Wet weather has prevented any extensive work at the diamond this spring. Minor grading will be necessary to fill in where winter has "washed out" portions of the playing area. Complete installation of new bulbs in the high-powered lighting system is planned for the coming season to obtain peak efficiency.

New Pupils To Visit School May 6

On Friday, May 6, the children of the community who will be six years old by October 10, 1955, are invited to visit the Riverdale Grade School at Spencerville. School begins at 8:45 a.m. and dismisses at 4:00 p.m. Lunch will be served in the cafteria for twenty-five cents.

Those who are eligible to attend the first grade when school again opens next fall can come on the visitor's day on the school bus which passes their way in the country. Those living in St. Joe who will attend the school will get transportation by meeting at the high school.

This opportunity to attend a day of "pre-school" is offered the youngsters each year that they may become a bit familiar with school routine and surroundings, thus preventing many tears of apprehension later on when school actually begins. The principal, Mr. Howard Hill, and the primary teachers, Mrs. Guy Platter and Mrs. Merle Guilford, solicit parents' cooperation in making this a worthwhile day for these young people. It is, indeed, like being transported to a new world when you become a part of a much larger family.

Parents are asked to fill in the accompanying blank and send it to school with their child. If he or she is unable to attend the May 6 visitors day, a blank mailed to the Riverdale Grade School at Spencerville would be appreciated.

Birth certificates need not be presented on this day. However, they must be presented at next fall's enrollment.

Cpl. Jack Haas Participates In Maneuvers

Army Home Town News Center at Kansas City reports that Cpl. Jack R. Haas of Spencerville was aboard the transport USS Bayfield when it recovered all 23 persons from the sea after a Pan-American Stratocruiser ditched off the Oregon coast last month.

Corporal Haas, whose aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace P. Graham, reside on the Spencerville route, was returning to Fort Lewis Wash., after Exercise Surf Board, an amphibious maneuver off the coast of California.

Corporal Haas is also among 26,000 soldiers slated to participate in Exercise Apple Jack during May at the Yakima Firing Center, Wash.

Apple Jack will test the efficiency of infantry and support units in montainous and desert terrain. The simulated use of atomic weapons will be one of the conditions of the exercise.

A cook in Company E of the 2d Infantry Division's 38th Regiment, Corporal Haas entered the army in August of 1953. He graduated from Spencerville High School in 1952 and attended Defiance College prior to his induction.

COBURN CORNERS CHURCH NEWS

On Saturday evening, April 16, the wives were the guests of the men as the local Men's Brotherhood entertained the ladies. A banquet was served by the men and dinner music was furnished by Sue Waggoner and her organ. A men's trio sang a welcome chorus to the ladies and another number, "Underneath the Crust of the Old Apple Pie." Ralph Waggoner was chorister for the evening.

Mike Grange, minister from Bluffton, played his guitar and sang several numbers with audience participation. He also played a slide trombone and then preached a brief sermon on "The Three Philosophies of Life."

This was one of the best programs ever presented at Coburn Corners and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

Plans have already been made for Daily Vacation Bible School which will be conducted from May 23 through June 5. This is one of the greatest events of the entire community and all children are invited.

Be watching for an announcement of the special service to be conducted some Sunday evening in June when the minister will be speaking upon the subject, "Henpecked Husbands and Foolish Wives." A section will be reserved for "henpecked husbands." Many great things are in store at the church.

Firemen Plan New Building

The St. Joe Volunteer Fire Department met Monday evening, April 18, at the fire hall for its April business meeting.

Included in the business of the evening was the discussion of the plans for the new fire station construction of which is expected to begin in the near future. The proposed new fire station, actually an addition to the present fire station, will be approximately 38 feet by 50 feet in size. Ten foot doors, three in number, will be used to allow sufficient room for clearance of fire truck cabs and equipment.

Additional space has been necessary for some time with the present housing of the fire truck necessitating a catty-corner parking arrangement to allow closing of the door. With proposed fire protection including township participation and a new truck to be acquired to augment present facilities, construction of new quarters became somewhat of a "must" in the operation of the department.

A committee was appointed to visit other towns having recent construction of fire halls for whatever information and assistance may be available. Chief Roy Bowser placed the town board (D. W. Yeiser, Orville Coburn), Merle Guilford, who drew up the plans as presented Monday evening, and himself on this committee.

With the coming of spring bringing not only warm weather, flowers, etc., but also mosquitoes, Chief Bowser appointed Mr. Coburn, Ray Moore and Jack Bowser to the mosquito-liquidation squad, to be assisted by all others who will give their assistance when called for.

Refreshments of sandwiches and coffee were served following the meeting.

Mrs. Isabella McClellan, the county home demonstration agent, presented the lesson, "Easy Does It." Thirty members responded to roll call with "a rainy day pastime." The secretary's report was read and accepted and project leaders reported.

Doris Yeiser reported on plans being made for National Home Demonstration Week, May 1 to May 7. A program has been scheduled on station WOWO on Saturday, April 30, at 10:30 a.m., she announced.

The group plans to attend the Wooden Shoe Festival at the Karl Hart farm in May.

The meeting closed with the singing of the home demonstration club prayer.

Mrs. Koch and Cora Curie served refreshments.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday-School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: II Chronicles 17—20.

Devotional Reading: Nehemiah 8:1-8.

FAITH AND ACTION

Lesson for May 1, 1955

The church is not the state and the state is not the church. When either one tries to be the other, or to run the other, there is trouble. Church and state are separate; that is a deep-rooted American principle. But that does not mean that a wall should be run up between the state and religion. That does not mean that the state can afford to be indifferent to religion. You are not I and I am not you; but that does not mean there ought to be a stone wall standing high between us. It does not mean that either of us should be indifferent to the other. The church can help the state, and vice versa.

Executive's Religion

Most American churches, including those denominations (both large and small) sponsoring this column, believe that the state ought not to help the church by direct "establishment" of any church by public law. No Presbyterian, Methodist or Baptist, for instance, and still less a Quaker or a Pentecostal Christian, wants his own church given government support by money grants or any other way. Nevertheless, Christians of every label rejoice when a President or other leader professes his faith openly. We all feel, quite rightly, that we shall be better off when our leaders in state and society are genuinely religious men and women. There is an interesting and instructive illustration of this in the Bible. In the course of the history of Judah we come on the administration of a king named Jehoshaphat. He was a good king and he left his country far better than he found it. Now we hear very little about this king's beliefs. He was no more nor less orthodox than kings before or after him. He was not a better king because he could pass a better examination in theology. He was better because he put his beliefs into action. A creed that can't get light and air and exercise turns sour, and it sours those who hold it.

Beginning On the Ground Floor

Now many acts of a high executive may not seem to be religious or to have anything to do with religion and yet they may affect religion strongly. For example, there was Jehoshaphat, a king whose first recorded act was one for the public defense. He fortified his border garrisons and he developed a well-organized and well-equipped army. Religion cannot be upheld on the points of bayonets, that is all true; but the fact remains that in the time of Jehoshaphat there was real danger from invasion, and a successful invasion meant that the true religion would have to go underground. Korean Christians know this today perhaps better than anybody. What South Korean Christians wants the U. N. forces to go home? So, even so seemingly non-religious a business as re-organizing an army for greater effectiveness may have notable religious effects, too.

Getting the Message To the People

Before Billy Graham visited Denmark, it was said, the preachers in that country, who were men of high education, preached so far over the heads of the people that churches had dismally small congregations. It is the people's business to rise to our level, said the preachers, not for us to sink to theirs. Then Billy Graham came along and showed what would happen if preachers really got down where the people are. Since that time, it is reported, the ministers have taken the hint and the churches are getting more people interested. You can put religion in a beatuiful ivory tower, or gothic cathedral for that matter, and people may admire it but that's all. Religion has got to be put within reach of the people. King Jehoshaphat did this by putting his "teaching priests" on the road, taking the Law of God to the people, the Law which had so much to say about everyday living. In our country, on the contrary, though the one place where you can reach all the people is in the public schools and state colleges, the law generally permits any subject at all to be taught—except the Bible, which cannot even be legally read aloud!

YOUTH ESCAPES INJURY

Henry Markle, Jr., of Spencerville experienced a narrow escape from serious injury late last Friday afternoon when his automombile skidded out of control on state road 1 between St. Joe and Spencerville and crashed into a birdge.

The young man was headed north on the highway and rounded the curve at the intersection with the Hicksville Road. Gravel from the cross road lying on the highway at that point caused the skidding and the automobile crashed into the guard posts and bridge.

The driver escaped with bruises and abasions, but the car was a total loss.

Added room?

Hard-to-heat spot in your house?

ELECTRIC HEAT

is the modern low-cost answer!

WALL TYPES—Panel models radiate heat rays. Convection and fan models circulate warm air. Use them for heating a single room or an entire house.

RADIANT CEILING SYSTEMS—Radiate infra-red rays by means of built-in wires or conductive panels. Take no floor space.

Workshop or Playroom
Added Room • Utility Room
Attic Bedroom • Bath • Etc.

Heating that added room is no longer a problem. Now it's easy to warm up that "hard-to-heat" spot in your home when your present heating system is inadequate to do the job. Yes, most of the toughest heating problems (and the commonest) can be licked quickly and economically with electric heating units. And on those chilly, damp days in spring and fall, electric heaters save you the trouble of starting up your central heating plant.

Low cost...Easy to install

Electric units for supplemental heating are popularly priced. They require no costly, difficult piping and are easy to install.

No extra load on present heating system

When you add a radiator or register to a conventional heating system, you often impose on your heating plant a greater load than it can handle. To get heat to the added radiator or register, you may cool down other parts of the house. This can't happen with electric heat. Each unit is independent of your central heating system and separately controlled. And you don't have to wait for heat to "come up." Heat starts in the room at the unit itself at the flip of a switch.

Electric Heat...world's cleanest and most automatic

Lenard Fisher Heads Church League Group

Activity in the Church Softball League got under way on Wednesday evening when the organization elected officers and formulated rules for the coming summer season.

The group met at the News Office, then went to the basement of St. Mark's Lutheran Church to conduct the business meeting.

The election of officers put the following men in office:

Lenard Fisher—president.

Harold Baker — vice-president.

Burgess Walter — secretary-treasurer.

The board of directors will be composed of the managers of the church teams participating in the church softball league.

Following the election, discussion was held of the rules. A few changes were made including a forfeit rule that a full team of nine eligible players must be on the field to qualify the game as a legal contest. Previously teams had been allowed to start a game with seven players.

Six teams were represented at the meeting. There are one or two other teams which have indicated interest in participating in the league. Those having representatives at Wednesday's meeting were Mt. Pleasant, Concord Methodist, St. Joe Church of Christ, Spencerville Methodist, Spencerville Lutheran and St. Joe Lutheran.

It has been planned to begin playing the last two weeks of May. In order to to so, the schedule must be drawn up before that time. A deadline for entries has been set as Monday, May 16, at 5:00 p.m. Teams desiring to participate in the league should notify one of the league officers before that date. On that night a meeting will be held at the president's home including the officers of the organization and the team managers. Time of the meeting is 8:00 p.m.

Seniors Make Trip To Eastern States

The Senior Class of 1955 took a trip to the eastern part of the country last week and visted many points of interest.

A first-hand description of a few of the highlights of the trip are herewith offered by school principal Ben Simpson:

"Riverdale's senior class left Fort Wayne on April 26, 1955, at 6:50 p.m. and started for Washington, D. C. Arriving at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, they boarded a motor coach to start the tour. The Congressional Library, the Supreme Court Building and the Capitol Building were on the morning tour. The afternoon tour took them through the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington Monument, and the Smithsonian Institute. At the Monument all walked the 898 steps to the top except one girl, two boys and one ol' man. In the evening it was dinner at the Casino Royal with a floor show and Bill Haley and His Comets. Before returning to the hotel, there was a tour of the city at night. After a free morning on Thursday, there was a trip through the zoo and Arlington Cemetery then on to Mount Vernon. An evening journey was made to New York. Friday morning there was a yacht trip around Manhattan Island and the Statue of Liberty. Many of the points of interest were pointed out. Most of the group went to see the famous Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall in the afternoon. The evening was spent at the village barn where dinner was served. After dinner a floor show and dancing were enjoyed, then back to the hotel by subway. Saturday morning was free for shopping and sightseeing. The afternoon was spent on a motor tour of Manhattan Island. Places seen were Chinatown, The Bowery, Harlem, Grant's Tomb and Trinity Church. Then after supper we boarded the train, arriving at Fort Wayne at 8:01 a.m. Sunday.

"The conduct of each and every student was a credit to their parents and school. Many compliments were received by the sponsors on the group's conduct."

Clubs Send Students To Vocal Contest

The Ladies Literary Club and the Culture Club entered two local high school students Kathleen Anthony and Mary Wisel, in the DeKalb County Federation of Women's Clubs Vocal Contest held in Auburn on March 25.

Mary Wisel was the DeKalb County winner and as such participated in the District Contest held at LaGrange April 2. The 13 district winners were awarded an expense-free participation in a Music Clinic to be held in July at Indiana University.

This year the contests were based on voice potential. The 1956 contests will be for instruments.

New Pupils To Visit School May 6

On Friday, May 6, the children of the community who will be six years old by October 10, 1955, are invited to visit the Riverdale Grade School at Spencerville. School begins at 8:45 a.m. and dismisses at 4:00 p.m. Lunch will be served in the cafteria for twenty-five cents.

Those who are eligible to attend the first grade when school again opens next fall can come on the visitor's day on the school bus which passes their way in the country. Those living in St. Joe who will attend the school will get transportation by meeting at the high school.

This opportunity to attend a day of "pre-school" is offered the youngsters each year that they may become a bit familiar with school routine and surroundings, thus preventing many tears of apprehension later on when school actually begins. The principal, Mr. Howard Hill, and the primary teachers, Mrs. Guy Platter and Mrs. Merle Guilford, solicit parents' cooperation in making this a worthwhile day for these young people. It is, indeed, like being transported to a new world when you become a part of a much larger family.

Parents are asked to fill in the accompanying blank and send it to school with their child. If he or she is unable to attend the May 6 visitors day, a blank mailed to the Riverdale Grade School at Spencerville would be appreciated.

Birth certificates need not be presented on this day. However, they must be presented at next fall's enrollment.

FINANCING RELIGION

Lesson for May 8, 1955

Some people don't like to hear money mentioned in church. Money and religion, they say, are two different things. Religion is spiritual and money is material and one ought not to be mixed up with the other. This kind of reasoning is partly right, but only partly. It is quite true that faith, hope and love, which are the heart of religion, cannot be paid for. No church can sell you a dollar's worth of faith. The grace of God is not on sale, at any price. It is also true that financing a church, even when well and handsomely done, won't by itself keep religion from dying. The writer knew a church that had been endowed. They never mentioned money in that church, they never took up an offering. No one gave anything, no one had to. There was enough money in the endowment to pay the minister's salary, keep up the building and grounds, and hire a small choir.

Why Giving Is Good for People

But what happened? That church ran down. The preacher preached, the choir sang, the janitor dusted. But nobody came. There were mornings when literally not one soul was there outside parson and choir, and one suspected they would not have been there if it had not been for the pay check. (How would YOU like to preach or sing to an empty church?). People are quite mistaken when they think it would be better if money were never mentioned in church, if people were never asked to give. A church where that happens just runs down. Giving is good for people,—not just any kind of giving, not throwing your money to the nearest beggars, but the kind of giving the church invites and challenges. You never give to the church, not to a good church; you give THROUGH the church, in Christ's name and for purposes which he surely approves. Giving is good for people because money is life—concentrated, portable life-energy. The money you have earned represents work you have done, thoughts you have had, energy you have spent. Now the money is in your hand, or in the bank. The thought, the work, the energy is gone, the time is gone; but the money has come back, it is your life. Now a church that does not challenge us to put our lives into it will in the long run interest no one. Where treasure goes, the heart follows, as Jesus pointed out. Giving ist good for people because not-giving makes them sluggish and selfish.

Where Does the Money Go?

Nobody particularly likes to give in the dark. It doesn't do a lot of good to shout at people, Be Generous!—For what? is a fair question. So the wise church will see to it that all its people know where the money goes after it disappears up front somewhere on Sunday mornings. Our Scripture reading tells of a successful financial campaign carried on by King Josiah. There were points in his scheme that were then and are now sound principles for giving through the church. One is that the people could see exactly why their money was needed. There had been an unsuccessful attempt to collect money for the same purpose, namely repairing the temple; but the collectors had been told to go out and get the money in other cities. That method did not work; one reason was that the collectors were in no rush, and the other was that people living at a distance had no idea of the need for repairs on the Temple. When they came up to Jerusalem, they could see very well that the shrine was about to fall down.

Giving Is a Form of Worship

Another noteworthy feature of King Josiah's success in money-raising was that he got the money from the people who came to worship at the Temple. The first attempt was to approach the citizens at large; this failed. The second was to give the worshippers a chance to give; and they gave, literally till the money-chest ran over. The church can make a strong appeal to those who are dedicated to the Kingdom of Love,—God-conscious folk; but to outsiders, still living by the law of Greed and Grab, nothing the church does or tries to do will seem worth a dime.

Punch-line to the year's hottest power story—

Chevrolet "Turbo-Fire V8"!

This is the engine that's writing a whole new chapter in the book of automobile performance records. This is the engine that has stock car timers doing a "double take" at their stopwatches wherever experts gather to compare the abilities of the 1955 cars.

For example, in the recent NASCAR* stock car competition at Daytona Beach, Florida, Chevrolet literally ran away from every other car in its class—and a raft of others besides. In the one-mile straightaway run for low-priced cars, the first two places—and six of the first ten—went to Chevrolets. And in acceleration runs from a standing start against all comers, the Motoramic Chevrolet beat all other low-priced cars—and every high-priced car except one!

What's behind this blazing performance? A compact honey of a V8 that only the world's leading producer of valve-in-head engines can build. Chevrolet's new "Turbo-Fire V8".

It puts a new kind of fun in your driving life. You're in charge of 162 high-spirited horsepower—or if you're looking for even more excitement, the new "Super Turbo-Fire V8" (optional at extra cost) puts 180 h.p. under your toe!

Pick the one you'd rather have fun with, then come in and get behind the wheel. You'll see why the Motoramic Chevrolet is showing its heels to everyone else on the road!

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, May 12, 1955 | NUMBER 19

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Anyone want some bees?

There's a colony that hangs around the Lutheran Church neighborhood every spring and summer and they're buzzing now at the peak of the stained glass window at the front of the church.

They were confusedly circling about at Russell and Helen Hofer's a couple of weeks ago and now they've crossed the street.

Come and get 'em.

Just about the time it seems that spring is here to stay we run into these cool spells. And the signs that usually mean warm weather is here to stay can't always be relied on. I thought sure the chill was definitely out of the air for keeps here a week ago when Mrs. Church came to town at mail time in shorts.

Forrest Dermott brought in an annual of St. Joe High School - - now, now, just a minute, it's dated "1905" so it WAS St. Joe High School - - with some names that may be familiar to our readers. There is a picture of the school with the words: "This is the St. Joe High School College, Where the Seniors gained their store of Knowledge."

Following pictures include those of B. V. Widney, editor-in-chief, and assistant editors Ethel Berry, Sylva Hollabaugh and Fuchsia Hadsell.

The commencement "programme" was listed for two evenings. On Thursday, May 4th, 1905, the program was:

"Chorus.

Invocation, Rev. H. W. Habey.

Vocal solo, C. A. Woodcox.

Oration, "An Old Violin," Fuchsia Hadsell.

Instrumental solo, Lora Hull.

Oration, "The Girl of the Age," Ethel Berry.

Vocal solo, Maude Baker.

Oration, "The American Girl," Sylva Hollabaugh.

Vocal solo, Emma White.

Oration, "The Boy With a Will," Dale Widney.

Vocal duet, Mrs. Tustison and Mr. Woodcox.

Benediction, H. V. Sharp."

On Friday, May 5th, following the chorus there was the class address by Judge Chas. A. Bowersox, music and presentation of diplomas by Prof. Joe E. Colborn. The Alumni Banquet was held Saturday evening, May 6th.

There were but four mem-

Lions Elect Lynn Fisher

The St. Joe - Spencerville Lions Club met Monday evening at Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville for its regular semi-monthly meeting.

Following the dinner at 6:30 p.m. the program was presented by four members of the club. Claude Laub gave information on the conduct of county business relative to his position as county councilman. Bill Staman reviewed some of the requirements of his office on the county board of review. Derwood Ridgway then outlined the activities of the county liquor board of which he is a member.

Robert Witt then showed colored slides and spoke on the process of raising hybrid seed corn.

During the busines meeting election of officers was held with the following members of the club selected to serve:

President—Lynn Fisher.

1st vice president—Bill Staman.

2nd vice president — Virgil Kimes.

3rd vice president — Ted Haberkorn.

Secretary-treasurer — Cliff Billow.

Tail twister—Fred Stemen.

Lion tamer—Blaine Kimes.

Board members — Frank Sechler and Wallace Graham (2 year term).

Lloyd Dunten and Lloyd Yeiser are the hold-over members of the board of directors having one more year to serve.

Legion To Sponsor Memorial Services

Memorial Day services will be held in St. Joe on Sunday, May 29, the Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post of St. Joe has announced.

The services will begin at 2:00 p.m. with the formation of a parade procession at the Legion home. The high school band under the direction of Miss Betty Boggs will lead the parade to the cemetery with appropriate marching music. At the Riverside Cemetery a half-hour program will be given by the band after which members of the Legion post will conduct short memorial ceremonies.

The local Boy Scout troop and local veterans will form the nucleus of the parade. Any children who wish to march in the parade with them are invited to do so.

In case of inclement weather the program will be presented at the school gym.

Services Held For Local Man

A long-time resident of the St. Joe community died last Thursday at the age of 94 years. Christ Sailer, for many years the operator of a blacksmith shop in St. Joe, died in the Williams Convalescent Home at Butler where he had been taken two weeks previously from his home. Complications of age, including uremic poisoning, resulted in his death.

A native of Fremont, Ohio, where he was born August 6, 1860, Mr. Sailer lived most of his life in St. Joe. He conducted business at his shop until 1948. His first wife preceded him in death as did his second wife who died in 1947.

Survivors include three sons, Zay Sailer of St. Joe, Zone Sailer of California and Zeal Sailer Weaver of Fort Wayne; two daughter, Mrs. Lazerne Keller of St. Joe and Mrs. Zenith Rinkle of Bryan, O.; nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Saturday, May 7, at 10:30 a. m. at the Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. Rev. Philip Barnhart officiated and burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The Workers Not Shirkers Girls' 4-H Club held their meeting May 9 after school.

The meetings are to be held every other Tuesday until August from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m.

Esther Fetters presided and Mrs. Ellen Fetters acted as secretary.

Ruth Washler gave the devotions and Rita Reinhart gave a Health and Safety talk.

Linda Shuff demonstrated how to make oatmeal cookies.

The next meeting will be held May 24 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of the leader.

Scouts Seek Equipment

Members of the recently chartered Boy Scout troop in St. Joe are currently in the process of building up a stock of equipment to be used in pursuit of the activities of the scouting program.

At a meeting of the officials of the local troop, held after the scout meeting Monday evening, a discussion was held of the ways and means of acquiring these items. Some may be purchased by the individual scouts while others can be purchased by the troop treasury to be used in future scouting years by those who will become eligible to join the Boy Scouts.

The officers have requested the assistance of the community in acquiring some of these required items. In particular, it was mentioned that tents used by scout troops in past years, several in number, may yet be in the community in the possession of some of the old scout troop members. It was also mentioned that exservicemen may have shelter halves or pup tents not in use which they might wish to offer for the use of the troop. There are other articles to be needed, such as all types of camping gear, mess kits, etc.

The troop would greatly appreciate any and all gear that may be offered for its use. Those who have such equipment available for the troop are asked to contact the adult officers or members of the troop committee: Bud Shockley, Joe Yaste, Joe Robinson, Dale Collins, Joe Walter, Frank Sechler, Ray Moore, Walter Ervin, Roy Reidenbach, Clayton Baker and Ted Haberkorn; or contact a member of the Boy Scout troop.

Carrier Requests Mail Box Clean-up

John Crothers, rural mail carrier of the St. Joe Post Office, has anounced that the third week in May is designated by the Postal Department as "Rural Mail Box Clean-Up Week."

Rural patrons are asked to take a look at their mail boxes and then ask themselves, "Does that mail box comply with Postal regulations, is it painted, lettered, right height, and can the mail man get up to it, and does it have a signal on it?"

Besides being of practical use in the delivery of mail, it is pointed out that a mail box can add to or detract from the appearance and beauty of a patron's front yard.

Rites Held For Day Old Infant

Short graveside services were held at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yeiser who died Monday just twenty-four hours after his birth Sunday noon.

The baby was born several weeks prematurely and encountered respiratory difficulties as a result. He was placed in an oxygen tent and kept under constant observation at the Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne. These precautions, however, were not enough to compensate for the weakened condition of the baby's heart.

Donald Foust, minister of the St. Joe Church of Christ, officiated at the services for Jeffrey Lynn. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at St. Joe.

Survivors are the parents; a half-sister, Kathryn Yeiser; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Turner of Auburn; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Yeiser of St. Joe; paternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Yeiser of near St. Joe and Mrs. Belle Keesler of near St. Joe; and a maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Ella Harrold of Oakville, Ind.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met Monday evening, May 2, at the home of Marcia Sible.

The meeting was opened by the president, Harriet Baker, with all repeating the club collect. Sully Allison gave devotions and Mildred Hansen gave the history of the song of the month, "All Through the Night."

The project leaders gave reports. The club decided to visit the Wooden Shoe Festival at the Karl Hart farm on Wednesday afternoon, May 4.

Roll call was answered with exchange of plants and seeds. The meeting was closed with all singing the club prayer.

All members present wrote a letter to the home demonstration agent on "What Club has meant to me" or "How I have used the lesson information given to me."

An auction was conducted by Gladys Akey.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Marcia Sible and Anne Beebe.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mildred Hansen.

bers of the class of 1905, named above. The class motto was: "Gradatine" (Step by Step).

The class yell was:

"High-yo! High-yo! Zip-Boom-Bive, St. Joe Seniors, 1905, are we 'it'? well I should smile, we've been it for a deal of a while."

Advertisers in the annual included Sol. Barney "Great Bargain House of DeKalb County"; Woodcox Paper Hanging and Frescoeing; Insurance and Laundry Agent, J. C. Hull; Piano and Organ taught by Miss Lora Hull; C. R. Price, Dentist; Spring Brook Fruit Farms; Miss Fuchsia Hadsell, Violinst, will give lessons on Violin, Terms Reasonable; O. H. A-h-h-h. St. Joe was really a jumping town in '05. Then came the automobile.

Those old photographs in last week's issue brought remarks of recognition from Les Meek, Pluma Hamilton and John Carpenter.

A little boy, a bashful little boy, had a couple of young ladies running around in circles last week at the playground at school. The girls were swinging, then they began riding the merry-go-round when the little boy decided he wanted to ride. They said, "Come on, we'll push you," but, like we said, he's bashful (on occasion) and wouldn't approach the girls' company without an escort. Dad finally got him over to the merry-go-round and the girls began pushing. After a few rounds, the ice had been broken and the bashfulness was gone. The little boy kept on riding and riding and the girls kept on pushing and pushing. As far as he was concerned the situation could have been maintained "status quo" for a long time. But the girls soon ended the fun with their tongues hanging out in exhaustion.

It'll be a long time, maybe, before Corky Loucks and Linda Davis offer THAT little boy a ride on the merry-go-round again.

Give those hard-working pony leaguers from the Holsom Dairy team and manager Ray Moore credit for a good job of improving the ball diamond last Saturday. And Lenard Fisher gave the playing area a good going over with his tractor and drag.

There could have been some fireworks Tuesday when a crane draped over a power line east of town. Fortunately no one got hurt and the line didn't break.

Life is just a process of gains and losses.

We'll miss that familiar figure sitting at the end of the bleachers or standing along the foul line as Old Chris watched the boys practice ball.

Take Your Pick At Festival

The Wooden Shoe Festival of the Kado-Lato Farm at Spencerville will continue through the month of May. In addition to the exhibits of flowers, plants and trees, there are hay rides over the farm on two different routes.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart have provided for one hay ride to the sassafras grove, persimmon grove and various other attractions. The other ride includes a trip through a sugar bush to the sugar camp where maple sugar making is explained and other educational features are shown. A unique lunch is served of saucijzebroodjes and coffee or cold drink.

The farm is located a half-mile east of Spencerville on a black top road. The St. Joe River forms the north boundary of the farm. The soil is sand and gravel, making it possible to offer the above tours even though it may rain or the ground may be wet.

Those who attend the festival may desire purchasing one or more varieties of the flowers and plants exhibited. The plots have been tagged with individual wooden shoes designating the variety and the price of each particular growth. Patrons may take paper and pencil with them to record their choice of purchases, these orders then filled when the patron ends his or her tour of the festival. A wooden shoe carrier may also be taken and fresh plants dug for purchase as the various plantings are observed.

Garden clubs, school groups, home gardeners and organizations of all kinds will find something of interest at the festival. Arrangements can be made for group outings at the farm with a special group rate given for the hay rides.

Over one hundred varieties of tulips, one hundred fifty varieties of perennials, many choice varieties of gladiolus bulbs, beautiful evergreen plantings, geraniums, vegetable and annual flowering plants including petunia, colea, marigold, snapdragon, zinnia, salvia, portulaca, aster and many others are on display.

What is faith? We need not waste words. Faith in Christ is just the same as faith in anything or any one else. I suppose we all know what it is to have faith in any one. We trust him. A father one day was asked by his little girl what faith was. He placed her on the sill of the window, and standing below with his arms open, bade her leap into his arms. She did so at once. She trusted him to catch her in safety. He told he that faith in Christ was just to trust in Christ as she had trusted her father.

This Sunday in our churches is Rural Life Sunday. In most all Protestant Christian Churches there is some observance of our stewardship to God in regards to the "Good Earth" which he has given us. For centuries churches have been observing Rogation Days, which fall on the last three days immediately preceding Ascension Day. This observance is gaining more response every year. In 1954 the publishers of Farm and Ranch magazine suggested to the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts that a wider observance of Soil Stewardship Sunday could bring about a national re-awakening of man's obligation to the land which God has given us. So on this coming Sunday churches throughout this wonderful land of ours will take time to offer humble thanks to God the Creator for the priceless gifts of soil, water, sunshine and plants that make life worth while and enjoyable to all of us.

Genesis 2:15: "And the Lord God took man and put him into the Garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it." Do we recognize our responsibility to God for what he has given us? We can not even have a harvest on our land, regardless of how much work and effort we put forth, unless God chooses to give it to us. For as the poet has said:

"To make one little yellow grain,
Requires the sunshine and the rain
The hoarded riches of the sod-
And God."

STATEMENT ISSUED IN TOLL ROAD CONTROVERSY

Highways and automobiles have become an important part of American life, and with that importance has also come a problem of financing that part. In Indiana in recent months Hoosiers have been deluged with publicity concerning the building of toll roads. Earlier this week the governor of the state won a victory in the toll road controversy when it was voted 2 to 1 by the State Finance Board to transfer 80,000 from the highway fund for additional highway surveys.

This move was favored by Governor George Craig and State Auditor Curtis Rardin but was opposed by State Treasurer John Peters who said it was "spending public funds on something we can never hope to recover."

Rardin reversed a previous stand of opposition to the move to make the victory possible, though he never said flatly that he would vote against the transfer when the board met after an earlier postponement.

Peters felt the issue called for a statement which he issued this week, the contents of which follow:

"I feel that the public is entitled to know the reasons for my decision today in voting against further cash advances from State Highway Department funds to the Toll Road Commission.

"First, I have checked the balance in the Highway Department funds and have found that they are dangerously low. That is proven by the fact that had not the Department received its quarterly distribution of gasoline taxes on April 15, it could not have met its payroll due that date.

"It is also proven by the fact that the department is retrenching in its road building plans. In that respect we all know that it recently announced it will build only two lanes of new highway, instead of four lanes as originally planned, on Road 37 between Indianapolis and Noblesville. That is just one example of its financial condition.

"While only $70,000 was involved in the transfer, I voted against today, the total of such transfers from highway funds to the Toll Road Commission for a north-south toll road will amount to nearly three-quarters of a million dollars. The chuck-holes on our roads will increase in size and number and remain unfilled just that much longer because this is three-quarters of a million that probably never will be repaid.

"I say that because it appears to me no bonds ever will be sold for a north-south toll road. We already know that the Toll Road Commission itself was afraid to proceed with the bond sale on the western route of the north-south road because insufficient feasibility was found. Now, in desperation to build another toll road, funds were transferred today for a survey of the proposed eastern route. I predict that even if feasibility is found in this survey it will be low, not convincing to bond buyers and that the bonds therefore will not sell. If the one route was found not feasible, how can a longer route still in the same general area be found justifiable?

"Second, it is my candid opinion that were we to consider the outstanding contracts that have already been let by the State Highway Department, much of the cash that we now have on hand is already obligated. In addition to construction projects already underway - and the chuck-holes needing to be filled - it will be necessary for the Highway Department to spend more money to build access roads to and from the east-west toll road now under construction across northern Indiana. This will only increase the dilemma our Highway Department is now facing.

"Although the Toll Road Commission has assured the Board of Finance that they will furnish any facts or figures and that they will spend no monies without first receiving the State Board of Finance action, at this meeting today the Board of Finance did approve without my vote a transfer of $10,000.00 for the

TIME TRIALS START AT SPEEDWAY SATURDAY

Time trials for the 39th annual 500-mile race on May 30 will get under way at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday morning, May 14, at 10 o'clock (Central Daylight Time) with most members of the racing fraternity predicting a new track record of more than 142 miles an hour.

Arrangements have been made by the Citizens' Speedway Traffic Committee and Speedway owner Anton (Tony) Hulman, Jr., to handle the largest pre-race crowd in the history of the famous track.

Gates to the grounds will be thrown open at 8 a. m. and admission will be $1. Drivers will be permitted to practice on the track from 8 until 10 o'clock, with the official time trials starting promptly at that hour. Only the fastest 33 cars among the 57 entries will form the starting field on race day.

Jack McGrath of Inglewood, Calif., who holds the present qualifying record of 141.033 miles an hour, will be trying to win the pole position for the second straight year in the Hinkle Special.

Two other California veterans and former record holders, who have set on the pole in recent years—Bill Vukovich of Fresno and Freddie Agabashian of Albany—are included among his most serious challengers. Vukovich, winner of the last two 500-miles Classics, will be in the cockpit of the Hopkins Special; and Agabashian will be driving the new Federal Engineering Special.

A pair of other favorites, Jimmy Daywalt of Indianapolis and Jim Rathman of Miami, Fla., also will share the spotlight in fast cars of radical design. Daywalt, who qualified a new "roadster" at 139.789 miles an hour for the No. 2 starting position last year, will be at the wheel of the new streamlined Sumar Special with its prominent tail fin and enclosed cockpit. Rathman's Belond Miracle Power Special, which Johnnie Parsons qualified at 139.578 miles an hour a year ago, also has been streamlined this year for additional speed.

race and most drivers believe an

Troy Ruttman of Houston, Tex., the 1952 race winner, will pilot the powerful Novi Special with the hope of regaining the track record which was held by that front-wheel-drive creation prior to McGrath's 1954 performance.

Johnny Boyd of Fresno, in the cockpit of the same car Daywalt drove last year, heads the crop of 1955 rookies.

Some predictions concerning Saturday's speed have ranged as high as 143.5 miles an hour as the result of safer tires designed for this year's average of at least 139 miles an hour will be necessary to earn a starting position. Last year, a speed of 137.673 miles an hour was sufficient to get into the race.

Time trials also will be held Sunday, May 15, starting at noon; and on the following Saturday and Sunday, May 21-22, according to the same time schedule as this week-end. Ticket order blanks for the race, showing the price and location of all seats still available, may be obtained by writing to the Speedway office at 729 North Capitol Avenue Indianapolis 4, Ind.

study of the East-West Toll Road in the south. This money surely had been obligated before because a report of the feasibility had previously been made available.

"I feel dedicated to protect the free highway system of Indiana. We must not deplete our funds to the point where they impair the maintenance and construction of our present system.

"If the Toll Road Commission, or whoever presses for more toll roads in Indiana, insists on more toll road expansion, I pray that the good people of Indiana will then resort to our last recourse - the courts - to get the protection they need to stop this rash spending of Highway Department funds.

SCHOOL PATROLS TO BE ENTERTAINED

The annual School Safety Patrol reward party for the schools of DeKalb and Steuben counties will be held Saturday, May 14, at the Waterloo Shelter Park. Party plans were announced by Howard Keuneke, Kendallville branch manager of the Chicago Motor Club. All patrol members of the schools participating have been invited. Attendance is expected to exceed 250 boys and girls.

Co-operating agencies are the St. Joe-Spencerville, Angola, Garrett, Hamilton and Waterloo Lions clubs, the Butler Booster Club, the DeKalb and Steuben County school officials and the Waterloo P. T. A.

Attendance and contest prizes are being donated by the merchants of DeKalb and Steuben counties through the solicitation and cooperation of the Lions clubs and the Booster Club.

Transportation to and from the Waterloo Shelter Park will be furnished by the school officials. Refreshments will be served at the park. Ladies of the Waterloo P.T.A. have graciously volunteered their services in handling the distribution of the refreshments.

Ned McIntosh of the Waterloo Grant Township School will be in charge of the games and contests.

APPLY FOR '56 WHEAT ALLOTMENT NOW

Farmers on land on which no wheat was seeded for grain for any of the years 1953, 1954 and 1955 may apply for a 1956 wheat acreage allotment, according to Ray Miller, chairman of the DeKalb County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

To be considered for an allotment on a farm which had no wheat seeded for grain for any of those years, the farmer must apply in writing to his county ASC committee by June 1, 1955.

Blank application forms are available at the county ASC office for use in filing a request for allotments.

REPORT FROM CONGRESS
E. Ross Adair

COMMUNISTS MORE DANGEROUS — Communist and subversive influences are greater today than ever. This was the warning given Congress by F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Speaking before a House Appropriations subcommittee, the FBI director said that subversive activities by Communists are more dangerous today than the underground activities of Nazi and Fascist enemies during World War II.

With a hard core membership of only 22,663, this group of active Communists has gone underground. Hoover declared that for every actual member of the Communist Party in the United States there are at least 10 fellow travelers or sympathizers who are dedicated and sympathetic to the objective of the Party, which is the overthrow of our government.

INFLATION IS WHIPPED — Americans have goods news today. For the fourth straight month, the cost of living index has been steady. This means that inflation has been whipped, that the American dollar is sound. Achieving this goal has been tough. But under anti-inflation government policies and holding spending in line, the day has dawned. Prospects are good, Congress has learned from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, that this situation wil prevail for the fifth month. This is the longest period since the Bureau was established in 1941, on a monthly basis, without a rise or fall in the index. Even during World War II, when price controls were in effect, there was never a four-month period without change.

FOREIGN AID CUT — During 1954 foreign aid of the United States declined about one-fourth. Moreover, foreign nations repaid more during that year than they received in loans. This does not include grants. Aid to Western Europe was cut about one-fourth while assistance to our Pacific allies showed only a slight decrease. The Mutual Security Act of 1954 also provides for the termination of FOA--the agency formerly headed by Harold Stassen--by June 30 this year.

IRON AND CLAY

Lesson for May 15, 1955

In perhaps the most famous dream mentioned in the Bible, an immense statue appeared, with a head of gold and the rest made of other materials down to the feet which were mixed of iron and clay. That dream points a good many morals; one of which is that such a statue wil soon topple over. An iron foundation is strong but a foundation only partly strong won't do. So the foundations of life, if they are partly strength and partly weakness, will not endure. We have with us today (in this week's Bible study) a man who like that famed dream-image was part iron, part clay. He had his strong points and his weak ones, and he finally toppled.

He Loved the Soil

This man was King Uzziah, one of the better kings of Judah. He was a strong king in many ways. It is true, he was king over a very small territory as we see it today. Dr. Stapp's rocket-sled could cover it end to end in about 20 seconds. It is said by his biographer that his fame extended to the border of Egypt . . . not over 200 miles at most. However, while his kingdom was a tiny one as countries go today, the beauty of the Old Testament is that we have something like very large-scale maps of small areas, blown up so we can see the detail. This King Uzziah succeeded in resisting ruinius invasion by the ever - greedy ruthless countries around him. He strengthened the national defense; he reorganized the army; he introduced (then) modern equipment for his armed forces. He conserved the country's small water supply. He developed farming, both stock-raising and agriculture. He "loved the soil" (II Chr. 26:10.) Best of all, he made a serious effort ("he set himself" as his biographer sas) to keep God's laws. He listened to the prophet Zechariah, he was willing to be "instructed in the fear of God." Altogether, for a large part of his life, he gave the country a wise and strong administration because he was himself wise and strong.

He Grew Proud

Nevertheless, he finally tumbled down. His clay underpinning at last gave way. The inspired biographer puts his finger on the weakness and names it: "He grew proud"—and adds, "to his destruction." Proud men do not think of their pride as a weakness, they consider that strength and pride go together. So they often do, only the pride tears down the strength. What happened to Uzziah has happened to many a dictator since. He thought he could do as he pleased. He scoffed at the laws he had once supported. He came to think of himself as a human exception to God's law. He declined to take advice. He no longer would listen to men of God. It is this ballooning conceit, this unwillingness to listen to any one, this feeling oneself Destiny's child, that trapped Julius Ceasar and Pontius Pilate and Napoleon and Hitler and many another tyrant in history. Pride is always a weakness. It blinds the proud man to his own defects, it blinds him to the wisdom of others. It turns him from a good strong man into a little tin god, from something genuine into something "phony." It isn't only kings of old and dictators of today, it isn't only the famed in history, it can happen to obscure people, too.

He Was False To the Lord

The most serious charge brought against Uzziah is that he was "false to the Lord" (II Chr. 26:16). To put what he did into modern terms, this king-dictator, who had run everything else successfully, at last tried to run the church. The priests took their orders, as they understood it, from God; this brash Uzziah said, in effect: "Now never mind what God has ordered; from now on you will listen to ME." To put it into modern terms again Uzziah wanted to put the Church under the direct control of the State. Against this, the high priest of that day protested, and religious persons will still protest. It may be true that from the standpoint of pure efficiency most churches are not too well run; it is true that with government force back of them churches could get more members—of a sort.

Church League Meets Monday

Managers of church teams which will participate in the local softball church league will meet next Monday, May 16, at the home of Lenard Fisher, president of the league, at 8:00 p.m. Officers of the league will also be present.

Deadline for indicating entry in the league has been set at 5:00 p.m. Monday so that a schedule committee may set up the pattern of competition with action tentatively set to begin on Friday, May 20. Church team representatives must notify Mr. Fisher, Harold Baker or Burgess Walter before Monday's deadline in order to enter the league. The entry fee has not been decided, though there will be a $10 fee from each team for the local recreation club for the use of the lights. In addition to this expense will be the fee for softballs and umpires. Last year's total fee, including the above $10, was $35.

Purpose of the league is to foster inter-church and intra-church, goodfellowship through the medium of sport. Team players are drawn from the members of the individual churches and Sunday Schools. The players are required to attend services on two Sundays of the month prior to each game, with the exception of the first month of competition.

Meet the successor to the C.O.E.

New L.C.F.
(Low Cab Forward)
Chevrolet Task-Force Trucks

Powered by the most modern V8 in any truck . . .
Chevrolet's new Taskmaster V8 engine!

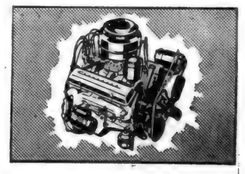
Chevrolet's great new L.C.F. models bring you all the advantages of a C.O.E. —plus a long list of important new advances you won't find anywhere else.

For example, the cab is a full seven inches lower than former C.O.E. models. And it has only two steps instead of the usual three for C.O.E.'s. Just think of the time and effort this will save the driver! Also, the low L.C.F. is handsomer by far than any C.O.E. ever built!

Inside, the L.C.F.'s new Flight-Ride cab has a level floor with plenty of "stretch-out" leg room and offers new driver comfort. The driver has a commanding view of the road—both far ahead and close up front—through the big, broad panoramic windshield.

Quicker, simpler maintenance is another big advantage offered by the new L.C.F. Everything's easier to reach in the roomy engine compartment.

In an L.C.F. you still get the easy maneuverability of a C.O.E. plus—new frames, new suspension, a whole truck-load of modern features!



Shortest Stroke V8 of All! The new Taskmaster V8—the most modern V8 your money can buy—powers the new L.C.F.! With a 12-volt electrical system for faster starting!

Year after year, America's best selling truck! CHEVROLET

Around the Town

With the Editor

There was quite a race going on Friday night in town. Tires squealing, gravel flying and a bent wheel, we hear.

And the same night, evidently, the signs at both ends of town were uprooted.

And Glen Akey's station gets a visit that night.

Yes, there's quite a bit of activity around here occasionally.

Johnnie Baker did his good deed for Saturday when he replaced the above mentioned road markers in their proper places that morning as he proceeded east out of town in quest of a "bar" with his trusty air rifle.

Jessie Sommer and Harvey Hull also have mentioned recognition of those old time photographs run recently.

A few not-so-old cuts were lying around, too. There are just four of them—and maybe a little analyzing can be done from their faces and expressions:

—Just ate a sour pickle??

—Just handed out a sour pickle??

—Slick operator, confidence man??

—Movie star??

Vandals Caught In School

The Riverdale School Board met Monday evening in a public hearing for the purpose of allowing protests to the 50c building fund levy to be heard.

No protest was made against the levy. It now faces final approval by tax commissioners.

The board also called on parents of three young boys to appear at the meeting. One boy's parents could not appear. However, the other two were represented. This call was the result of vandalism at the local school building Sunday evening when they were discovered in the school building defacing school property in the rooms. Principal Ben Simpson had returned to the school late in the evening to check on the public address system which had been used for baccalaureate services. He found the boys in the school and cornered one in the building for the capture. The other two leaped from a window to an adjoining roof and made their getaway. They were later identified and called before the board.

A set of keys that were taken from a desk were returned Wednesday morning.

Band To Lead Memorial Services

Memorial Day services will be held in St. Joe on Sunday, May 29, the Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post of St. Joe has announced.

The services will begin at 2:00 p.m. with the formation of a parade procession at the Legion home. The high school band under the direction of Miss Betty Boggs will lead the parade to the cemetery with appropriate marching music. At the Riverside Cemetery a half-hour program will be given by the band after which members of the Legion post will conduct short memorial ceremonies.

The local Boy Scout troop and local veterans will form the nucleus of the parade. Any children who wish to march in the parade with them are invited to do so.

In case of inclement weather the program will be presented at the school gym.

Pug Robinson found a wrist watch at the ball diamond Tuesday. Some of the ball players better check their wrists to make sure it isn't theirs.

The owner can claim it at the News Office.

Church League Opens Monday With Twin Bill

Lenard Fisher, president of the St. Joe Church League, has anounced that competition in the league will begin next Monday evening with the first game scheduled between Concord Methodist and St. Joe Lutheran. The second game of the twin bill will match Spencerville Methodist and the St. Joe Church of Christ.

On Friday, May 27, Newville E.U.B.-Milford E.U.B. will meet Mt. Pleasant and the Newville Church of Christ plays Spencerville Methodist.

At a meeting held Monday evening, league officers and team managers made final arrangements for the opening of the softball season. Seven teams will participate in this year's league with a new entry from the Newville Church of Christ. Seven teams participated last year, but with the Spencerville Lutheran team unable to be certain of players' availability due to work hours or change of residence to other communities, the total number of teams will remain at seven. There is a possibility of the Spencerville Lutheran team combining with the Spencerville Methodist entry. This will not effect the schedule, however.

The deadline for entry was 5 p.m. Monday. The seven entries are Concord Methodist, Spencerville Methodist, Newville Church of Christ, Newville E.U.B.-Milford E.U.B., Mt. Pleasant E.U.B., St. Joe Church of Christ and St. Joe Lutheran.

The entry fee was set at forty dollars for the season.

Teams should pay entry fees as soon as possible, definitely before their first game, and injury waiver slips should be signed and turned in to the league secretary, Burgess Walter before the start of the season. These slips will be handed out by Mr. Fisher to the managers who will be responsible for their signed return.

Games will be played on Monday and Friday evenings with two games scheduled on each night. The first game begins at 7:30 p.m. with a ten-minute forfeit period. No inning may start after nine p. m. in the first game except in case of a tie.

The second game starts at 9 p.m. or twenty minutes following the first game.

Service Station Burglarized Friday Night

Glen Akey's Spencerville Shell Service Station was entered and ransacked sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning, with the burglars stealing $208 in cash, merchandise valued at $75 and $210.66 in checks.

The burglars broke three doors to gain entrance into the station. Mr. Akey discovered the break-in at 6 a.m. Saturday morning when he opened for business.

The sheriff's department reported that a hole was drilled in the rear door, then the lock punched out. Entering the storeroom, the thieves pried off the bolt of another door, then pried off the bolt of a third door.

The cash and checks were taken from a filing cabinet which was forced open with a bar. A new whitewall tire, 15 to 20 cartons of cigarettes and two boxes of cigars were included in the stolen merchandise.

Part of the cash and checks were property of the Indiana-Michigan Electric Company, for whom the station owner operates a collection agency.

$25 of the cash was in silver dollars.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Dorothy Markle on Thursday, April 28, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting was called to order by the president. All members repeated the club collect.

Devotions were given by Dorothy Markle. History of the song, "Dring To Me Only With Thine Eyes," was read. Then all members joined in singing.

The lesson, "Child Guidance," was given by Gladys Akey and Mary Ellen Beaty. Special leaders gave reports on gardening. Roll call was answered with "a rainy day pastime." The secretary report was read and approved. The club voted to make something worth about $1 and send it on to another club member.

The club adjourned with the singing of the club prayer. The next meeting will be held with Mary Ellen Beaty on May 26 at 7:30 p.m.

St. Joe Bible School Opens Next Week

If transportation is needed, contact Mrs. Frank Shull of St. Joe or either of the pastors.

A staff of nineteen people has been lined up to teach and work in the school which has as its theme this year, "Heroes of the Cross." Those teaching are as follows: three year olds, Mrs. Robert Stiver, Mrs. Philip Barnhart, Becky Arrants; four year olds, Mrs. Ben Simpson, Mrs. Paul Moore; beginners, Mrs. William Sible, Mrs. John Mason, Mrs. Richard Strombeck; first grade, Mrs. Harold Noragon, Mrs. Frank Shull, Mrs. Max Markle; primary, Mrs. Robert Musser, Mrs. Cyrus Gustin; juniors, Mrs. Ted Haberkorn, Mrs. Merle Guilford, Mrs. Robert Dragoo; pianist, Mrs. Donald Foust; superintendents, Pastor Donald Foust and Pastor Philip Barnhart.

The Spencerville Community Bible School will be held in the Riverdale School at Spencerville from May 31 to June 10. Hours will be 9:00 a. m. to 11:00 a.m.

Final plans are in preparation for this Bible School and further details will be available for publication next week from Pastor Wayne Baxter and Pastor Barnhart.

MEDIAN AGE of CONGRESSMEN—What is the average age of the men in Congress The Census Bureau has just come up with the answer.

Comparing the age levels of the first United States Congress with the present one, the Bureau reported that in the first Congress 165 years ago - 1790 - the median age of Senators was 50 and that of House members 46. In the 84th Congress today, the average age for Senators is 56 and of the House 51.

In the first Congress, there were no Senators over 65 and no Representatives over 70, while today 13 per cent of the Senators and 7 per cent of all House members have passed 70.

Rep. Brent Spence of Kentucky is the oldest House member at 80 and Senator Green of Rhode Island at 87 the eldest in that chamber.

TOMB ROPED OFF—Future visitors to Washington who wish to pay tribute at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery will find that something new has been added. The changing of the honor guard at the Tomb is one of the impressive and unforgettable sights in the Capital. But so many visitors to the Tomb, watching the honor guard pace in front of it, have necessitated the erection of a roped off area to prevent the crowds from interfering with the sentries. The rope barrier keeps spectators at least 15 yards from the tomb on the west, north and south sides. Eastward a flight of steps leads downward protecting from that side. The tomb is guarded 24 hours a day, fair weather or foul. Sentries pace north and south on a black rubber tread and every hour on the hour a new sentry is formally changed in a solmen and dignified salute to the Unknown Soldier. Sentries are from the 3d Infantry Regiment of the Army.

PRISONER OF WAR BENEFITS—Are available for certain American citizens who served in military or naval forces of any government allied with the U. S. during World War II, held prisoner of war for any time after December 7, 1941. Claims must be filed on or before August 31, 1955, with Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Washington.

Those trapped by the Japanese at Wake Island, Guam, Midway, and Philippine Islands have until August 31, 1955, the right to claim detention benefits which previously were denied them under Public Law 744.

Repayment of bank accounts of American citizens and members of U.S. Armed Forces seized by Japanese during the occupation of the Philippines has been authorized by the same law.

FORMER DAISIES TRY FOR SEMI-PRO TEAM

With the Fort Wayne Daisy baseball team out of operation this summer and with the Allen Dairy Products independent team facing a player shortage, hardball fans may see something different this summer as two former members of the Daisies, Jo Weaver and Betty Foss, try to make the grade with the semi-pro team.

Red Braden, manager of the semi-pros, says that if the girls make good, it will be the first time in history, as far as he knows, that girls have been carried on the roster of any organized baseball team.

Both Weaver and Foss were among the strongest hitters in the All-American Girls Baseball League with Weaver proving to be the strongest hitter in the league's history. Foss, a first baseman, was primarily noted for her long ball hitting.

Weaver is making a bid for an outfield job while Foss is trying out for first base. Braden wouldn't comment on their chances of making the club but with the forced-retirement of Olin Smith at first base, currently Foss is the only first base candidate.

WATCHING MOVIES
...helps them serve you better

Movies mean entertainment, generally speaking—but I&M employees have been seeing a lot of films lately that are strictly business. The pictures they're viewing are part of I&M's extensive program of employee training. It's a "continuous performance"—all aimed at better electric service for you.

Some films deal with such everyday matters as answering telephone calls, and handling questions about I&M's rates, policies, services. Other films deal with the safer, quicker handling of equipment. Many other subjects are on our list of "coming attractions." Many subjects, but one object: to keep our service good and make it better, in big ways and little ways...in every way we can.

PLOWING CONTEST SEPTEMBER 14-17

What plowman in America can turn the best furrow and still conserve the soil, often called our most precious heritage?

This and other questions will be answered for 100,000 to 125,000 farmers, stockmen and interested city folks at the National Conservation Days and Plowing Contest to be held on some 20 farms eight miles northeast of Wabash, September 14 to 17. It will be one of the big rural sporting events of the nation, with the national corn husking contest about the only thing approaching it in lively farm interest and throngs attending.

Already plans are well underway with local and district committees at Wabash prepared to make the forthcoming event set a new record for the plowing contest, which last year drew 100,000 persons to Richland County, Ill., near the city of Olney.

Along with the plowing contests which will be held each day on level and also contoured land will be a huge educational and promotional display of farm machinery and equipment of all sorts, entertainment of various kinds and a speaking program that will bring together some of the nation's farm leaders. All the leading makers of farm equipment and supplies, the agricultural extension service of Purdue University, the soil conservation service and national press, radio and television networks are cooperating in planning and staging the event.

Every known soil and wildlife practice applicable to the level and rolling lands of the mid-west will be featured in the plowing contest as the various state champions "do their stuff" in competing for the cash prizes to be awarded to those doing the best job of plowing as determined by committees of experienced judges who know all about the business of plowing. They will consider such things as the opening furrow, furrow conformation and uniformity, quality of tilled surface with due consideration for its water holding capacty, the evenness of the land's end left by each contestant, contour adherence and closing furrow, etc. Each contestant will plow a half acre on both level and contoured land.

Fences will be removed from the farms in the contest area to permit easy access for all of the visitors as well as the contestants, and the entire tract will comprise more than 2500 acres. Trees in some of the contest fields were cut down last month and preliminary plans are already beginning to take shape.

Last year twelve state champion plowmen competed and it is expected that this number will be surpassed this year. Arrangements also will be made for entries from other states where preliminary contests are not held, and the largest number of expert plowmen ever gathered is expected for the 1955 contest.

RECONCILIATION

Lesson for May 22, 1955

There are only three possibilities when two persons or groups are lined up on opposite sides of a fence. tI may be a family quarrel, a national crisis, a split in a church, a community fight . . . Whatever be the cause, whatever the "fence" may be, there are really only three ways the two factions can be related to each other. One is the way of hostility. They can cut off all communication; they can refuse to hear any good of each other; they can harp on past wrongs; they can open a shooting war. Another way is that of compromise. They can each agree to something neither of them wants, in order to keep the other one from getting what he does want. One side can yield to the other not because of any friendliness but only because of fear.

Reconciliation

The trouble with both these ways is that either one of them leaves the two parties just where they were. Hostilities (cold or hot) harm both sides. Compromise for selfish reasons actually brings the parties no closer together; they will stay together only so long as selfishness dictates and they will split apart at the next opportunity. There is a better way: the way of reconciliation. Apart from religion, it is doubtful whether true reconciliation ever takes place; for it can be fully done only in the spirit of repentance first of all, and is nourished and strengthened only through the joining of hearts in worship. This, by the way, is why Christian marriages hold together far better than marriages between people of little or no religion. Quarrels occur in most marriages sooner or later, Christain or not. The battle of the sexes is one from which no family is free. But in a couple without religion, little quarrels grow to big ones, husband and wife either become enemies and go separate ways, or stay together only for the sake of appearances, or the money,—not because of love. Without religion repentance is rare. It is only in the family with a common faith that reconciliation is possible. When the day's end comes and it is time for prayers.

It Has Worked

Reconciliation is not a theory; it is a fact. It has actually worked. The Hebrew Book of Chronicle tells of King Hezekiah's experience with his neighbors to the north of him. They had been citizens of a seceding group, no doubt inheriting much of the bitterness that always underlies secession at any time or place in history. To their inherited prejudices against the Kingdom of Judah from which their forefathers had revolted, there was added the sting of poverty and defeat; for the seceding kingdom of Israel had finally gone down in weakness to a final smash-up. The left-behind citizens must have been an embittered lot. But King Hezekiah sent inivtations to all these people, recently his enemies, to come up to the Temple and join in the great Passover festival. Men once enemies were drawn together in a common confession of sin, and in a united worship of their one God. In this spirit broken churches have come together again, in this spirit broken homes have been mended, northerners and southerners in the United States have forgotten their grandfathers' quarrels. It was in this spirit that in 1948, coming out of nations that only three short years before had been at violent war, Christian churches around the world came together for the first time in the World Council of Churches,—born of repentance, cradled in worship.

Never 100 Per Cent

It never works 100 per cent. There were unreconciled Israelites who did not come to the Passover; there are Irishmen today who have never forgotten Cromwell, southerners who cannot forget Sherman, bitterly proud churchmen who refuse to be reconciled with any church but their own. When we attempt reconciliation with others, we may not always succeed. But which is better, to try God's way—for reconciliation is the way he has shown us—even if we do not always succeed, or not to try at all, and end in a dark wilderness of bitter isolation?

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, May 26, 1955 | NUMBER 21

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Leave it to the old man to get in dutch with the little woman when this extra warm weather shows up and it gets to be hair-cut time for the male offspring. Just ask Bob Bishop. He took Danny and little Tommy over to Meek's shop Saturday for a trim. He opened the door at home when the return trip was made and the two young-uns stood on the threshhold. From within came a colorful and descriptive exclamation as Mom got a glimpse—"Oh, NO!!"

—It wasn't that bad. It was more the surprise element involved.

There's a 79 - year - young gentleman staying with the Carl Tustisons at Spencerville and he is trying to trace the background of his family on both sides through whatever links may be located in the cemeteries in this locality.

His name is Charles A. Bliss and he's from Van Buren County, Michigan, near South Haven. At present he makes his permanent home in Tucson with a son.

Mr. Bliss, or "Bert" as he is more widely known in Van Buren County, gave me a bit of the story on the Maynard side of the family he is trying to trace. It all began way back in the 1600's when John Maynard settled in Massachusetts. Bert's been having some trouble in his search because, for instanee, of destroyed cemetery records and apparently non-existent county records.

So, if any of our readers have any knowledge or recollection of Maynards in this vicinity, Bert would be happy to hear about it.

I don't know why I should particularly mention his age; it just sorta seemed appropriate, in a way. You see, as I dropped him off at the Riverside Cemetery in town Tuesday morning where he contined his search, I thought—"He must be doing it with a song in his heart."

For as I pulled away in the car, Bert began whistling. The tune?? —"When I Grow Too Old To Dream — I'll have you to remember."

You can't beat the enthusiasm of Bob Schockley when it comes to sports and hollering for the home team.

With the softball season underway beginning Monday night, he was on hand to root for his team, the Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran combine.

Occasionally he has a bit of advice for the boys as they go through their paces—like the time Monday evening when Pascal Speaks was at bat for Spencerville and, being a bit anxious to get a hit, he had swung at a pitch that could only be reached with a stepladder.

'Bob's voice admonished—"Don't REACH for 'em—it's hard enough when they're in there!"

Evening paper subscribers by now know that David McCann is the new carrier—or at least he's the boss of the job.

Tuesday evening he had Mom driving the family car hauling the papers and sister Sandra helping on the delivery. A teasing remark brought a prompt reply from Sandy—"This is the LAST time!"

Two Services In Memorial Day Observance

Announcement of additional Memorial Day services in the community was made this week with the day to be appropriately observed with services in the morning at 11:30 a.m. in addition to the previously announced American Legion program.

On Sunday morning, May 29, Mr. Ben Simpson, principal of the Riverdale Schools, will deliver the main address at Alton Park Cemetery in services to begin at 11:30 a. m. The Riverdale School Band will play for the program and Bob Wilder will read the roster of dead. Wilmer Ballou, minister of the Coburntown Church of Christ, will conduct the services.

In case of rain the service will be given in the park building.

In the afternoon the Wal-Whitehurst American Legion Post of St. Joe will conduct memorial services at the Riverside Cemetery in St. Joe.

A parade will precede the ceremony with the Riverdale School Band, under the direction of Miss Betty Boggs, leading the procession from the Legion Home at 2:00 p.m.

The parade, including the band, Legion members and any and all boys and girls who wish to take part, will lead the way to the cemetery where a half-hour concert by the band will precede appropriate Memorial Day services by the Legion Post.

Miniature American flags will be given to the marching boys and girls for use in the parade and for their keeping in recognition of their participation in the Memorial Day service.

Bible Schools In Full Swing

The Spencerville Community Bible School will get underway Tuesday, May 31, and continue through Friday, June 10. Classes will be held in the school building at Spencerville from 9:00 a.m. until 11:00 a.m.

Pastors Wayne Baxter of the Spencerville Methodist Church and Philip Barnhart of St. Peter's Lutheran Church announced this week the staff of teachers who will be in charge of the instruction. The two churches are combining efforts to sponsor the one school, as is done in St. Joe by the Church of Christ and St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

"Heroes of the Cross' is the theme of this year's vacation school, and a staff of twenty-one teachers and workers has been obtained to work in the school in presenting the lessons and helping with the handicraft.

The school closes June 10 with a special program presenting the work of the students.

The staff of teachers and helpers includes the following names: Beginners, Mrs. Wayne Baxter, Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman, Miss Shirley Smith; Nursery, Mrs. Philip Barnhart, Mrs. Gaylord Rediger, Mrs. Glenn Moore, Mrs. Merle Furnish; Primary Boys, Mrs. Forrest Brattain, Mrs. Virgil Laux; Primary Girls, Mrs. Bud Shockley, Mrs. Harold Studebaker; Junior Girls, Mrs. Joe Baidinger, Mrs. Bill Hudson; Junior Boys, Rev. Wayne Baxter, Mrs. C. Rediger, Jerry Tremmel, Wayne Akey; Teen-Age, Pastor Philip Barnhart, Kathleen Anthony, Mrs. Lynn Fisher; Pianist, Mrs. Lynn Fisher; General Helpers, Mrs. Wayne Smith, Mrs. Lynn Fisher; Superintendents, Pastor Wayne Baxter and Pastor Philip Barnhart.

The Newville Church of Christ will also begin its Daily Vacation Bible School sessions next week, classes to start on Monday, May 30. The Bible School will continue through Friday, June 10, a period of two weeks.

Every boy and girl in the community is invited to take advantage of this opportunity to attend school. A car will call for and return students to their homes if transportation is not available. Each child will be fully covered by insurance against all sickness or accidents incurred from the time they get into the car to go to the school until they are delivered back to their parents, pastor Glen Hall announced.

Spencerville, Concord Win Church Games

Church Softball League activity began this week with two games played Monday evening at the local diamond.

In the first game Concord won an easy 15-2 game from St. Joe Lutheran. The second contest went to Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran over the St. Joe Church of Christ 10-5.

In the first game the Concord nine kept pecking away inning by inning to roll up a 13-run margin. They scored in every inning of the game, getting 2 runs in the first, second and fifth innings and three in the third, fourth and sixth.

DePew homered in the first for two runs. An error gave them a pair in the second before another error and two walks netted three more. In the fourth Kenny Walters hit one of his specialties, a towering home run blast far beyond the right field light pole. A triple by DuWayne Goings and a homer by Sammy Morr added to the score in the final frames.

St. Joe scored once in the first on two errors and once in the second on a walk, a hit and an error.

Thereafter Goings held them in check and coasted to the win.

Five St. Joe errors contributed heavily to their defeat, though Concord solved the hurling of Donnie Sechler for fifteen safeties.

In the second game a five-run third inning gave the Spencerville Methodist - Lutheran combination the victory.

The inning was started with an error. There followed a single by Webb and a second error, a homer by Markle, a double by Shockley, a double by Dwyer and a single by Junior Akey. In the previous inning Jerry Leonard clouted a tremendous home run drive to just-left-of-center field for three runs.

St. Joe scored once in the first and twice in the second. In the fifth Pete Akey homered for one of two runs in that inning.

On Friday night of this week Newville-Milford E. U. B. will play Mt. Pleasant in the 7:30 p.m. game. Newville Church of Christ faces Spencerville Methodist - Lutheran in the second tilt.

On Monday, May 30, Newville Church of Christ meets Mt. Pleasant in the 7:30 game and Concord Methodist faces Newville-Milford E. U. B.

The games for Friday, June 3, are:

St. Joe Lutheran vs. St. Joe Church of Christ, 7:30; Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran vs. Mt. Pleasant.

Free Movies By Conservation Club Begin June 7

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club will again sponsor free outdoor movies this year to be shown at the club grounds west of St. Joe.

Forrest Brattain of Spencerville has again been contracted to show the weekly movie.

The first showing will be on Tuesday, June 7, with the feature, "Federal Agent At Large" starring Kent Taylor.

The shows will continue on through the summer on every Tuesday evening.

The show is financed by the Conservation Club by sale of advertising time offered during the shows. Businessmen and merchants underwrite the movies through their support.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Devotional Reading: Psalm 124.

Background Scripture: II Chronicles 31—32; Isaiah 36—39.

RESOURCES OF GOD
Lesson for May 29, 1955

A crippled American carrier after the battle of Leyte was zig-zagging its way to what looked like certain death. Faster Japanese craft were after it, their shots were coming closer. The only hope any one on board could have was that by shifting course and speeding again and again, they might be able to put off the inevitable end. Finally in mid-afternoon, just when drowning seemed closer than ever, for some reason the Americans never understood, the enemy ships gave up the chase and pulled away. The chaplain gathered the men on deck and there read the 124th Psalm (our devotional reading for the week) as if it had been written for the occasion: "If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us, then they would have swallowed us up quick . . . then the waters had overwhelmed us."

The Resources of God

God (said Napoleon) is on the side with the largest battalions. Napoleon was not acquainted with God or he would hardly have said that. There have been too many occasions when the biggest battalions, the best military material (sic), the ablest generalship, did not turn the trick. God has sometimes appeared to be on the side of very small battalions. Sometimes it's a kind of mystery how it's done. But history carries the record. There was the time when the Hebrew slaves left Egypt in spite of the best army in the world. There was the time described in the Bible reading this week, when the God-fearing King Hezekiah and his people, —a much smaller little country than many another that had fallen to defeat by mighty Assyria,—was saved by a miracle. There was the time later in Hebrew history (between the Old and the New Testaments) when the little army of the Maccabees stood off the great armies of the Seleucid kings; the astonishing day when the "invincible" Armada, the enormous naval expedition of Spain, which could never have been beaten by English arms at that time, was smashed by a hurricane on the rocky coasts of the islands the Spaniards intended to enslave. Say what you please, some victories cannot be explained unless you can see "God within the shadows, keeping watch above his own."

Victories of the Spirit

There have been victories of the spirit, too, which can hardly be explained unless you can bee God in the picture. When John Woolman was born, slavery was taken for granted everywhere in the civilized world. You would not have thought Mr. Woolman could make a dent in so well-established a custom. He had no money, no prestige, not much education. But the Lord laid on his soul a burden, and he went from one Quaker meeting to another, sharing his burden of concern for slaves; and out of his one-man crusade came the Quaker opposition to slavery and the gradual awakening of the Christian conscience everywhere. So, nearer our times, when Walter Rauschenbusch was a boy, religion was generally supposed to have to do only with a man's soul, not with his business or his politics or anything outside his church and home. Rauschenbusch became a new sort of prophet—attacked, of course, as prophets are; but what seemed to be heresy in his day is preached today in all churches, that the Christian religion is concerned with every side and every interest and relationship of life, public and private, too.

Not the Lazy

It is a serious mistake to suppose that God always rewards the weak, or that he will do for us what we are expected to do ourselves. The story of Hezekiah brings this out. He felt, and the whole country felt, that God had saved them in their time of need; and this was true. But it should be noted that Hezekiah, faced with invasion, took intelligent (and expensive) measures for defense. He secured a reliable water supply for use in case of siege, he diverted water away from the places where the besieging army was sure to be. He built up the army, he manufactured new equipment. If he had radar screens he would have used them.

Guest Church Speaker Sunday

Donald Foust, pastor of the St. Joe Church of Christ, has announced that a guest speaker will appear at worship services Sunday morning, May 29.

L. Francis Scheffler, presently of Ziegler, Ill., will address the congregation of the Church of Christ Pentecost Sunday. He is a graduate of the Cincinnati Bible Seminary in the year 1951. Mr. Scheffler plans to go to Edmonton, Canada, this coming December and continue the work of the recently established church of Christ. The opportunities of the new northern frontier have so challenged this man that he feels led to work there for the Lord, Mr. Foust said.

"His real concern in coming to St. Joe is to tell the people about victories and the challenging opportunities waiting to be taken advantage of in Canada. He feels that it will touch you as it has touched him. Welcome to church next Lord's Day," Mr. Foust concluded.

The Spencerville Methodist W.S.C.S. Ladies will hold a bake sale in the Fred High building at Spencerville Saturday, May 28.

Services Held For Victim Of Drowning

Funeral services were conducted Sunday for fifteen year old Kenneth Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Miller of Spencerville.

The Miller youth drowned in the St. Joe River south of Spencerville Thursday afternoon of last week. He screamed for help and then slipped out of sight under the cold surface of the river as his two teen-aged brothers watched helplessly.

The three boys had gone to the river swimming hole at about 3:30 p.m. The pool is three miles south of Spencerville in a part of the river deepened by the new impounding dam five miles down stream. The brothers said Kenneth dived into the river first, came to the surface, yelled for help and then disappeared. One of the brothers ran for help. Neither was good enough at swimming to attempt rescue.

An unidentified volunteer found the boy's body in the swirling pool. Efforts to revive him were futile. Heart stimulation at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne was in vain.

Survivors include the parents; three brothers, Kermit, Max and Donald; a sister, Mary Lou; and grandparents, Mrs. Amos Miller of Grabill and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Delegrange of Woodburn.

Burial was in Yaggy Cemetery near Grabill.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club met Thursday evening, May 12, at 7:30 p.m. The club entertained the Garrett Homemakers in the basement of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ. The president, Lois Fisher, called the meeting to order. The club collect was led by Alice Kagey. Devotions were given by Eleanor Crothers. Since the last meeting the club enjoyed an afternoon at the Wooden Shoe Festival. Mrs. Hart is a member of the club, and the club thanks her for a fine time.

One of the club members, Marjorie Howey, has a baby girl.

After the business meeting the program committee, Grace Laub, Ellen Hart and Lois Fisher, had charge of the program. Judy Cook sang a solo accompanied by Alice Kagey. Mildred Grogg, county literary leader, gave a book review of "Forty Acres and No Mule," enjoyed by all. Then games and contests planned by the committee were enjoyed.

The hostess, Eulula Ballou, and her committee, Gladys Hart, Dorothy Kimes and Lois Fisher, prepared a lunch consisting of angel food cake, ice cream topped with strawberries, mints and coffee.

Twenty-four members and sixteen guests answered roll call with an interesting incident concerning Mother's Day.

Maxine Kelley had the recipe of the month, pecan balls and a sample which was very tasty.

On the '500'

Unfortunately, it seems, the process of "construction" in all walks of life involves a previous process of "destruction, as for instance the death of one of the Indianapolis Speedway's most prominent figures in this year's Memorial Day 500-mile race.

At such an instance of a fatality in competitive professional sport, it is only natural to begin thinking in terms of limitations of some sort. The only limitation in the racing profession which would appear to have any possible effect on the future number of fatalities would be one on speed. But before such a limitation is put in force, it must be realized that it is the spirit of competition which brings these dangers into existence, and the moment we begin limiting competition we limit freedom, whether it be racing, business or what have you.

The men who compete each year in automobile racing, including the Hoosier 500-mile classic, know that there is danger involved. They know that at every moment of every race death is a possibility. They know that their desire to compete with others in man's conquest of speed barriers is not without its drawbacks. But that desire to do better than the other fellow, come what may, is part of the very backbone of this country that has made it such a shining star. Doing better in the 500-mile race involves to some extent the efficiency of the pit crews as the cars pull in for replacements and repairs. But the major item of "doing better" is contained in just one word - speed. The car that maintains the highest average speed through the race reaches the pinnacle of success. Cars which cannot remain through the grueling hours of the usually hot day in May fail because of mechanical difficulties. Ironing out the failures brings the improvements in automotive engineering which are passed on to industry in general. There are sacrifices made which are not so major as to cost a life in most instances. Time, money, effort often go "down the drain" for many in the racing profession as various failures occur. These we do not think of too seriously, as it is thought, "If that's what they want to do, that's their own business." When we reach the other end of the scale and find life itself involved, it may seem cold-blooded to think the same thought. We may be inclined to say that this or that limitation ought to be put into effect "for their own good." Doing this could well be the end of the process of "construction" we mentioned previously. For the imposition of limitations of any sort ends the process of testing under maximum conditions which might occur in an emergency.

If anything is indicated by the accidents which occur on a race track, including the 500 mile race, it is that the limitation already imposed on cars and drivers itself is contributing to the degree of danger. That limitation is the size of the track. When cars are built to reach speeds of 170 and 180 miles per hour, speeds we understand attained on the straightaway in the "500," it would appear that they are getting "to big for their britches." Reducing speed for the turns and the accompanying skidding factor enter the picture, both under the heading of results of limitations. The question might then be asked, "Why not make more room for the cars and drivers instead of making limitations?"

There must be some value to the results of automobile racing insofar as automombile engineering is concerned. Or are there? That depends on the part of "engineering" under consideration. The primary concern in racing is speed. Efficiency is also important. A third factor is that of safety for the driver. Racing cars are built to give protection to the driver. Even in smaller race events, it is a requirement to have overhead bracing in order to reduce the hazards of the sport. In this respect automobile racing is more safety minded than the commercial producers of automobiles who sell to the general public for everyday driving. More hazards are faced in that everyday driving than in the racing on the speedway track, but it is questionable whether they are considered in the designing of the commercial automombile of today. Of greater importance to the industry is the matter of power, of being able to brag of "greatest horsepower in automotive history." One need only to read the advertisements to be aware of that fact.

In designing for the construction of the racing car, driver comfort is not of major importance. Yes, there is allowance made for the amount of room needed, but of more importance is the necessity of keeping that space to a minimum in order to keep the overall size to a minimum or to make room for a larger part or to make room for some other device needed in testing. In this respect the automobile industry has taken a cue, in particular in the last year with the innovation of the "wrap-around" windshield. No greater device for passenger discomfort could have been found than the designer's monstrosity which extends the windshield of the family car directly into the path of getting into or out of said car. The claim of greater visibility and thus greater safety through this designing quirk is a direct opposite to the true result. When racing car design proves defective, it is removed. We have yet to see if the same procedure will be followed in the commercial industry with respect to the "wrap-around" windshield.

It is to be understood that the need for greater power is important in racing, because power, among other things, brings greater speeds. It is to be understood that the need for greater safety is important in racing, because it is that safety which makes possible the testing of greater power and speed. To put limitations on such an event as the 500-mile race would be putting limitations on the testing of limitations.

THE COMMUNIST BLUEPRINT

During the conflict between Joseph Stalin and Leon Trotsky for control of the Communist machine in Russia in 1924, a blueprint of world conquest was drafted by the Stalinites. Stalin wrested control from Trotsky and later had him murdered. This blueprint of conquest, according to Dr. Fred Schwarz, the noted Australian scholar on Communism, calls for the conquering of Asia first, then Africa, then Western Europe, then "to isolate, degenerate and, if necessary, devastate the United States."

International Communism today is following this blueprint, Dr. Schwarz said. He spoke at the 16th Freedom Forum, conducted by the National Education program at Searcy, Arkansas. He said the Communists use five steps in their technique of conquering, and that they are concentrating at the present time in Asia. The steps are:

1. Conquest of the minds of the youth by use of Communist-prepared or Communist-infiltrated books.

2. Organization of the intelligentsia of those youth into the Communist party.

3. Scienific survey of what that particular country wants; then promise it to them. (For instance, the Chinese coolies and the socialist intellectuals wanted land to be redistributed; the Communists promised agrarian reform.)

4. Conquest, war and revolution.

5. Scientifically imposed control by the dictatorship of the proletariat. (This is accomplished by destruction of those who oppose the Party. Our U. S. Government investigators have estimated that 30,000,000 Chinese have been murdered since the Reds took over China.)

Dr. Schwarz believes that to successfully combat Communism, which has grown from 17 people in 1903 to iron control of 900,000,000 today, the U. S. A. must conduct a positive educational and propaganda program among the youth of the world, clearly showing and dramatizing the advantages of private ownership of property, self-reliance, constitutional government and, above all, faith in God.

The Communists are spending billions on a massive literature barrage which is being concentrated today on Asia, India and Africa. These are the areas toward which the Red masters are aiming their conquest at the moment. It is authentically estimated that they are spending $300,000,000 a year in America on books, pamphlets and projects to infiltrate America's mass media of communication. Every written or spoken line in this vast thought-shaping campaign is shrewdly calculated to engender hate against America and the American capitalistic system.

"There is being built up towards this country - cold-bloodily, scientifically, efficiently - a terrible body of deadly, burning and malignant hatred that at the will of its creators may be unleashed as an avalanche of the greatest murdering force the world has ever seen," said Dr. Schwarz.

"If there is one priority more desperately urgent than any other, it is books - clean books, well-printed books, books that tell the truth about your country, about its wonderful record, about its love of freedom, about its peaceful heart. They should be made available to the students of Asia and the world as well, at as small a cost as those provided by the Communists. No man's judgment is any better than his information, and facts do not speak; it's only when those facts are known that they speak.

". " You have every right to be proud because you're citizens of a country with a record of freedom, prosperity, brotherliness and generosity, both internally and externally, that no other land can equal. The facts are superlative. But they're not known. Your story should be spread around the world. Instead, the people of the world are hearing the Communist version which presents the lie as truth, and creates a vicious burning, malignant hatred."

Yes, we are engaged in a titanic battle for men's minds. And in the minds of our youth the tide of battle will turn. Not only is it necessary to spread world-wide the truth about America, it is even more urgently necessary that our own youth know these facts and thrill to their incomparable advantages under the stars and stripes

Dr. George S. Benson

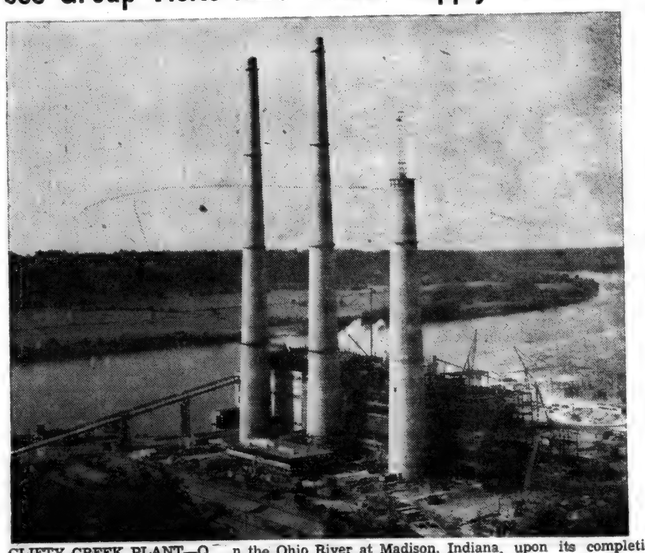
Press Group Visits AEC Power Supply Plant



CLIFTY CREEK PLANT—O n the Ohio River at Madison, Indiana, upon its completion will be the largest electric ge nerating station ever built by private enterprise. The 1,290,- 000 kilowatt plant is being er ected by Indiana-Kentucky Electric Corporation, a subsidiary of the Ohio Valley Electric Co rporation at an estimated cost of $175,000,000.00.

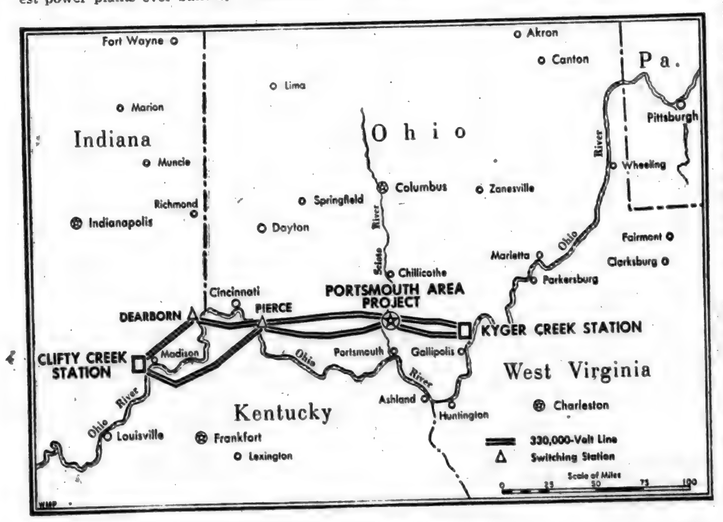
The editor of this paper was among seven hundred persons gathered at two points along the Ohio River Friday, May 20, for a full scale "press-preview" at the two giant power plants of the Ohio Valley Electric Corporation.

The gates at Clifty Creek Plant, Madison, Ind., and Kyger Creek Plant, near Gallipolis, O., were thrown open to several hundred representatives of local and national newspapers, magazines and radio-television networks and stations. They were guests of the management of OVEC and its 15 sponsors, all private electric utility companies of the Ohio Valley region.

Clifty Creek and Kyger Creek, which will be the largest power plants ever built by private industry when completed early in 1956, are being constructed by OVEC to supply all the tremendous electric power requirements of the Atomic Energy Commission's new Portsmouth (Ohio) Area Project.

The day's program at Clifty Creek included a guided tour of the plant and grounds and a luncheon at Madison High School, attended by about 250. At Kyger Creek the tour was followed by dinner at Washington High School, Gallipolis, attended by about 450. Speakers at the luncheon and dinner were S. R. Sapirie, manager of the AEC's Oak Ridge Operations; Kenneth Dunbar, manager of the AEC's Portsmouth Area; and Philip Sporn, OVEC president. A brief press conference followed their talks.

The trip began Thursday afternoon for the Indiana-Michigan delegation which met at the Fort Wayne office before starting the trip to southern Indiana. Mr. Frank Korsmeyer of the Butler office and the editor of The News represented the Butler area for the conference. The group which met at Fort Wayne with other area newspapers, radio stations and television stations represented, left Thursday afternoon for Cincinnati where a dinner was served at the Terrace Plaza Hotel. The following morning, Friday, May 20, the group proceeded to the Clifty Creek plant for its guided tour.



At Clifty Creek the newsmen saw two 215,000-kilowatt generating units in operation and four more of the same size under construction -- adding up to a total capacity of 1,290,000 kw upon completion. And, at Kyger, they inspected one unit of 215,000-kw capacity in operation and four more being built -- a total of 1,075,000kw on completion. These two plants not only are the largest power plants ever built by private industry, they also are the two most efficient plants ever built -- each capable of producing one kilowatthour of electricity on about .7 of a pound of coal.

The great coal storage yards were seen, these feeding 7 1-2 million tons a year into the two plants' boiler furnaces. At Clifty Creek two of the plant's three poured-concrete stacks were completed to their full height of 682 feet -- tallest stacks in the world. Also of interest was the 330,000-volt switchyard where begins the transmission of electricity via the nation's highest voltage lines to the AEC project in southern Ohio.

The two power-producing plants are the result of free-enterprise at work. The OVEC (Ohio Valley Electric Corporation) and IKEC (Indiana-Kentucky Electric Corporation) were born in late 1952. This was the result of a call from the Atomic Energy Commission to the private electric industry to provide the tremendous power requirements of the then-projected Portsmouth Area Project. IKEC is a subsidiary of OVEC, both organized on October 1, 1952.

Fifteen private electric companies of the Ohio Valley region teamed together to form OVEC, pooling their talents and resources to create a new electric utility which would be able to meet the AEC power requirements. The job was to provide more power than ever before required by a single customer and under three basic but difficult conditions: in a hurry, under extremely high dependability standards and at lowest possible cost.

The 25-year power agreement between OVEC and AEC was signed October 15, 1952. It called for 1,800,000 kilowatts round the clock upon completion of OVEC's generating facilities. In terms of energy this was the equivalent of 15-billion kilowatthours a year. By comparison the entire highly-industriallized state of Ohio used 26.5 billion kwh in 1953; Indiana 14.2 billion kwh; West Virginia 12.7 billion; Kentucky 8.4 billion.

To provide this power OVEC began construction at once of two major steam-electric stations and a major high-voltage transmission system. One of the plants, Kyger Creek, is in Ohio, the other, Clifty Creek, in Indiana, with a total capacity of 2,200,000 kw. Later events proved that the plants' 11 generating units would be capable of producing more than 200,000 kw each. Thus their ratings were revised to 215,000 kw, or 2,365,000 kw for both plants. It was this additional capacity with which OVEC was able to meet the AEC's increased needs.

Ground was broken in December of 1952 for both power stations, with tight construction schedules calling for the first unit at the Indiana plant to go in operation in January of 1955, and the first unit at the Ohio plant in March of 1955, an unusually short interim for a major power project.

Just 25 months later, in January of 1955, the first unit at each of the plants was in operation. All will be in service by early 1956.

Cost of the Clifty Creek plant is expected to be about $175,000,000. The Kyger Creek plant will cost approximately $150,000,000. Not one cent of government money will be used in the OVEC-IKEC project. Its multi-million-dollar cost is being underwitten entirely by private investment.

Physical dimensions of the plant facilties are interesting to note, for instance, the huge coal yards which have capacities of 1,400,000 tons (Clifty Creek) and 1,100,000 tons (Kyger Creek). The tonnage burned by the two plants in a year would fill a string of railroad cars 1,420 miles long. Coal will be burned at the rate of 20,500 tons a day. Five major coal companies share 15-year contracts to supply $27,000,000 of coal per year. All coal is delivered by river barge, which costs another $5,900,000 a year. From the barges it is carried by conveyor belt to the plant's storage yard or directly into the plant. In the latter giant pulverizers grind the coal to face-powder fineness for use in the boiler furnaces.

At both plants one boiler serves each unit. The boilers are as tall as an 11-story building and each contains about 150 miles of tubing. In some of these tubes, water under a pressure of 2,000 pounds per square inch which has been preheated to about 500 degrees temperature is transformed into steam at about 650 degrees. The steam temperature is then raised by the boiler's superheater system to 1,050 degrees for use in the turbine.

The turbo-generators, cross-compound in design, are the world's most efficent. They also are the largest high-pressure units in operation anywhere. Steam at 1,050 degrees and 2,000 pounds pressure first is utilized by the high-pressure turbine section of the unit. It then is returned to the boiler where it is reheated to 1,050 degrees for use in the immediate pressure and low-pressure sections. It is then converted back to water in the condenser and pumped back through pre-heaters to the boiler for re-use.

The generators produce electricity at 15,500 volts, which is stepped up by giant transformers to 330,000 volts for highly efficent transmission to the

AEC project in Pike County, Ohio, between Portsmouth and Chillicothe. A single generator with a capacity of 215,000 kw theoretically is capable of supplying enough electricity for every home in a city of more than 1,000,000 people.

Approximately 1.4 billion gallons of river water are circulated daily through Clifty Creek's steam condensers; more than 1.1 billion gallons are used at Kyger Creek. This does not include the comparatively small amount of water, completely purified, which is used for steam-making purposes. By comparison the largest city in the world—New York—averages 1 billion gallons daily for all purposes. Condensing water at both plants is 12 degrees warmer upon its return to the river.

A total of 4,260,000 cubic yards of earth was excavated and moved at the 800-acre Clifty Creek site. That's enough to fill a 3-by-6-foot ditch more than 1,200 miles long. At the 800-acre Kyger Creek site, 3,845,000 cubic yards were moved.

More than 210,000 cubic yards of concrete will have been poured in the construction of Clifty Creek and well over 160,000 cubic yards in the Kyger Creek plant. In neither case does this include concrete for the plant stacks.

Clifty Creek's three stacks are the tallest in the world—682 feet above ground level. Those at Kyger Creek, 538 feet, are the tallest in Ohio. They are constructed of reinforced poured concrete. Control rooms for each of the units and a bomb shelter are located in the stack bases.

At the peak of construction Clifty Creek is employing 3,000 workers and Kyger Creek 2,600. Operation of the two plants upon their completion will require a total of 500 employees, with Clifty employing slightly more than half of this total.

A major high-voltage transmission system was erected to deliver the great blocks of power from the two plants to the AEC project. This system also interconnects with the transmission systems of the 15 sponsor companies, providing additional power capacity if and when needed by the AEC.

OVEC's transmission system —which at 330,000 volts is the highest voltage in use in the United States—totals 388 miles of double-circuit lines, or 776 miles of lines in all. Four double-circuit lines feed power to the AEC plant, two from each of the power stations. Two major switching stations also are part of the transmission system.

The entire system, lines and switching stations, cost approximately $42,000,000.

The system has a total of 1,558 steel towers, averaging 158 feet in height and 15 tons in weight. The tallest tower, 385 feet high, is at the Clifty Creek river crossing. The towers, on the average, are spaced four to the mile.

Toll Road To Be Opened In '56

Thousands of week-end sightsee'ers are swarming into St. Joseph, Elkhart, LaGrange and Steuben counties to view the biggest road-building job in Indiana's history. Those are the four counties in which heavy construction is in full swing on the Northern Indiana toll road and over which an aerial inspection tour was made by the Indiana Toll Road Commission on May 18.

Lesser activity is also attracting crowds in LaPorte and Porter counties while Lake County is still the scene of land-buying for right-of-way and some preliminary construction work such as clearing, grubbing and grading.

To date 146.6 miles of the 156-mile road is either under contract for construction or bids have been received on it. Only seven road contracts remain to be let, all of them in Lake County.

A total of 10,113,301 cubic yards of dirt have been moved in excavations along the right of way.

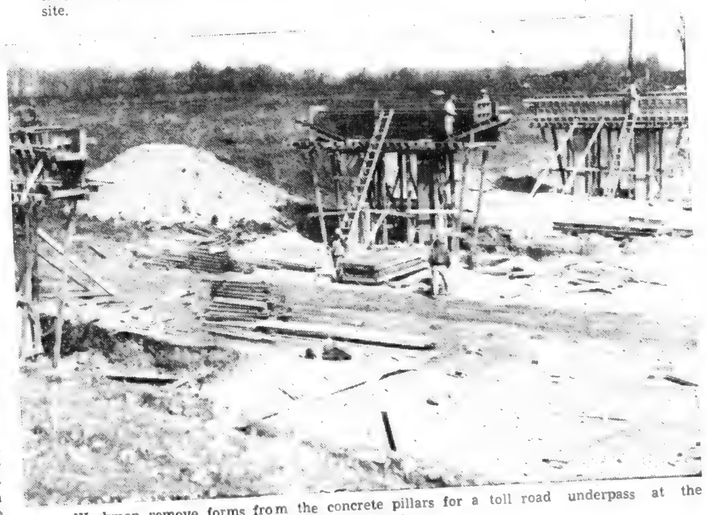
Reinforcing and structural steel to the tune of 3,589 tons has been used in the road so far. There is a possibility that the 49.5 mile section between the Ohio state line and the Indiana 13 interchange near Middlebury in Elkhart County may be opened by early summer in 1956. The scheduled completion date for the entire road is November 15, 1956.

The road will absorb a traffic load of 12,000 vehicles per day which will begin entry into Indiana late this year from the Ohio Turnpike. The Ohio and Indiana roads will make a direct connection near the community of Metz in Steuben County.

From that point west to Hammond and the Calumet area motorists will be afforded travel over Indiana's ultra-modern highway. A 56-foot wide sod dividing strip will run between the dual lanes of traffic. A gradually sloping curve at least every two miles will help prevent drivers from dozing or having what is commonly referred to as "highway hypnosis." There will be a minimum sight distance of 900 feet.

Other features will include: maximum horizontal curves of 3 degrees and in all cases and wherever practical not over 2 1-2 degrees; maximum upgrade of 2 percent and maximum downgrade of 4 percent; no stoplights, no railroad crossings and no intersections with other roads at grade level. All roads, streets and railroads will be either overpassed or underpassed.

With the steel beams in place, a toll road overpass above Ind. Route 9 north of Howe in LaGrange County nears completion. An interchange will be located just west of this site.



Workmen remove forms from the concrete pillars for a toll road underpass at the Burlingame Road near Orland in Steuben County.

These giant concrete piers will support the Lake James overpass above the toll road in Steuben County.

ABOUT REPENTANCE
Lesson for June 5, 1955

It is easy to talk about large groups of people, even so large as to include millions of persons, as if they were one single person. We talk about "Russia" as if it were one big bandit. We talk about "America" as if the nation lived under one hat. We speak about General Motors or the Church in the singular; "It" does so and so or says this or that. Evangelists call on "America" to repent, as if America could walk down the aisle and shake the evangelist's hand and join the church. Now if there is one thing Christianity stands for it is the responsibility of individuals, by themselves, before God. And yet there is some meaning in all the talk of immense aggregations of people as if they were single persons.

Seducing the People

In olden times, so olden that most people have forgotten all about them, there lived a king, not well-known to fame, named Manasseh. In his time a king could "be" the country in ways that no king now enjoys. Kings in those days had absolute power. The smart ones did not push their people too hard; they only held out the carrot, so to speak, in front of them. But a king, especially when his country was a small one like Manasseh's Judah, could just about make his country do what he wanted it to do. If the king was bad, the people were bad; if the king repented, the people repented with him. The days of such kings are over, nearly everywhere. And yet, without the title, there are men today whose desires, notions, ideals, prejudices, ambitions, hatreds and loves can be so communicated to others that they can deliver the vote, if they need to, of millions who follow their lead. It is said that King Manasseh "seduced the people." He did this without benefit of radio, TV or advertising in slick magazines. Nowadays how easy it is to seduce the millions! One "spot" on one radio station can reach a hundred thousand people. Pictures can be made so lifelike that they can deceive almost anybody that is not smart. Seducing the people is simple, if you have the money.

Half-gods Arrive

"When half-gods go, the God's arrive," sings a poet. You can turn that around and still be right. When God goes, half-gods will swarm in. When bad Manasseh ruled his land, for a long time he would have nothing to do with the true God. But he was not an theist, oh not by any means. He put up altars all over the place, even in the courts of the Lord, you could hardly get out of sight of some place of worship in Jerusalem. He dealt with mediums and with wizards. All sorts of bad religions and silly superstitions flourished under his majesty's patronage. You may be sure he was no lone idolator. You can hear them saying down on the farms and out in the little villages, "Well, if it's good enough for King Manasseh, it's good enough for me." So it is still and always. There have been times when religion "declined" as the quaint phrase puts it, here in American as in ancient Judah. But that was only the declining of the true religion. Other religions and cults and superstitions flock in to take Christianity's place. People simply will not live in a religious vacuum. They would rather be idolators than atheists.

A High-Flyer Humbled

This King Manasseh lost a war. For some time he was a prisoner in an enemy country. When he came back home again he was a changed man. Prison had given him leisure to think. Things were different in Judah after that. He did his best to undo the evils he had set the example in doing. He went to church, as we would say, and he listened to men of God. It was a little too late, for his son Amon had already gone too far in the ways of evil to turn back. But still it was well that he repented, for many of his subjects served the true God thereafter, as he did. Suppose America — that is to say, millions of Americans, leading men and women in every walk of life—repented this year of even one of our national sins — say drunkenness. It would be good to repent . . . but would that bring back all the lost week-ends?

Around the Town

With the Editor

Mae Smith of Portsmouth, O., is probably wondering what happened to an item she sent a few weeks ago; that makes two of us. It would have passed unnoticed if Anne Sechler hadn't called an item in which was the same item Mae sent when she renewed a gift subscription. It must have got lost in the shuffle. Here 'tis:

Erna Huffman, who resided here in years past working for Hattie Widney, recently married William Kerch of South Whitley, and the couple now resides on a farm near that town. Mrs. Kerch lived in Ft. Wayne until recently and her acquaintances in this area perhaps did not know of her new residence.

Some more birthdays during the past week we hear for Barbara Bishop, Harvey Hull and Louise Church.

Darlene, Tondalaya and Cynthia will participate in the acrobatic dancing act, with little Cynthia featured as contortionist.

The Wisler sisters have made several personal appearances at lodges and American Legion posts in the Fort Wayne area.

Residents of this community are invited to attend Sunday night's revue with advice to come early for a good seat. There is no admission charge.

Coburntown Closes Bible School Sessions

The closing program of Coburn Corners Church of Christ Daily Vacation Bible School was held , Sunday evening, June 5, at 8:00 p.m. with 240 people in attendance. The students demonstrated some of the things which they had learned during the past two weeks and their hand-work was on display for all to see and enjoy.

The course taught this year followed the theme, "Heroes of the Cross," and was well-received by the students. Wilmer W. Ballou, minister of the congregation, directed the school which had an average attendance of 85 for the two weeks. The pre-school age group was directed by Berniece Wilder.

Teachers of the pre-school group were Ruth Wilmot, Maxine Goldsmith and Bonnie Witt. They were assisted by Berniece Jones, Helen Wynkoop, Mrs. Frank Warstler, Wanda Fredericks, Darlene Hook and Judy Koch.

The Juniors were taught by Lois Strong assisted by Mabel Hook.

Primary teachers were Bobette Rediger and Alice Kagey, assisted by Hazel Littlefield, Tommy Hook and Marilyn Hart.

Teen-agers were taught by Eulala Balou. Norma Troutt and Wilmer Ballou were her assistants.

Awards were made to Judy Inlow, Ronnie Smith and Bob Jarrett for enrolling the most in the Bible School. David Boylan was given an award for having the best workbook of the Teen-age group.

The closing day of the school the youngsters were thrilled by an ex-chaplain in uniform, Mr. Robert Hargrave, of Defiance, O., as he challenged them to be heroes of the cross. On this day also a picnic was enjoyed at Alton Park which fittingly closed the school.

The Present Debt

There will soon be a request from the secretary of the treasury of the United States that the national debt limit be raised from its present level of $275,000,000,000.00.

Take another look at that figure - $275.-000,000,000.00. Don't all those zeros frighten you a bit? They ought to. They should be a sobering brake upon the outlays of optimism prevailing today about the prosperity now being enjoyed and the promise of a continuing high level of business.

Oh, now, don't take this as a cloud of gloom sent to dispell any joy that may have come to this country in past years. This is not a warning of bad things to come relative to business, income, possessions, in the sense in which we are thinking today - how are things shaping up for "me"? It is a warning sounded by others before which goes unheeded because of the high time Americans are enjoying now. It is a warning that someday a disastrous end will come to this false prosperity, an end that will bring suffering to another generation which will have no hand in the selfish pranks of the present generations who give no thought but to themselves.

Wouldn't it be fine if we could furnish our families with all that they want, buying and buying, charging and charging, with no concern for paying for those improvements? Wouldn't it be fine if we found ourselves with personal incomes exceeding those made in the past but able to exceed that income in expenditures because no one would make an effort to stop the process? It's an impossible picture to paint because it cannot happen; someone will not let it happen. Somewhere in that rosy picture someone appears with a raised hand to put an end to the situation. And it is well they do or the result would be simply chaos and destruction.

But for some reason it is different when it comes to government. What the reason is cannot be exactly explained. Our interpretation of the reason that no one comes out with point blank but which lurks in the background, nevertheless, is this:

American people have become unappreciative of the gains they have made. They are goaded into dissatisfaction in some instances by the cry that they ought to have more. They have, in fact, so much in their possession in this year of 1955 that they don't even know how to enjoy themselves. And with this has been the act of shoving into the background the obligations incurred in supposedly fighting to preserve "the American way of life." They have forgotten that part of the American way of life includes paying for it.

It is a shame that at the present high level of income this country is doing nothing to get itself back on its feet. "Whadaya mean back on its feet" a voice says, "we're on our feet now. Look at the national income." Yes, look at the national income. Also look at the federal income and outgo. The outgo exceeds income yet as it has for so many immediate past years and none of the outgo is reducing the national debt.

There will be arguments that we cannot reduce the debt because we need that money elsewhere. There will be arguments that the expenditures now made are necessary and to cut them would be to hinder the national welfare. There will be arguments that it is necessary to spend a major part of the government's income for military purposes or we will weaken ourselves. But what is not included in the arguments is the ultimate difference between a nation's failing because of its own economic plight and failing because of another nation's military might. Failure is failure. The end will be the same. Also not included in the arguments for high military expenditures is why we are told reductions in appropriations will hinder the various departments, yet in foreign countries we have such things as military and civilian installations and accommodations of near luxurious proportions. And for ourselves, individually, the question is unanswered as to why we demand expanding social benefits from the government when other obligations go on unpaid for, why we expect each one individually to stay on the "pay as you go" plan but as far as government programs are concerned we accept them with an attitude of "pay but don't bother me with 'where does it come from'."

The American dollar is at an inflationary level. It's a cheap dollar. There are a lot of them making the rounds. This is the time to be taking advantage of that situation and reducing the national debt. Of immediate importance is that our citizens prevent a raising of the national debt limit now and begin "putting the pressure" on their representatives in Congress by word of mouth if possible and by letter to tighten the purse strings all the way around to bring the financial picture of the government on a more business-like basis.

An honest appraisal of the situation brings two conclusions: the national debt must be paid and now is the time to be reducing it as much as possible.

Laws of Men

The state highway department has installed one thousand signs on the state highways presenting the warning that a one-hundred dollar fine awaits those who detract from the beauty of the countryside by throwing refuse along the roads.

It is quite noticeable not only on state and national highways but also on the country side roads of the state that it takes a threat to make some people behave. Whether or not a threat will do any good only time will tell. But it appears doubtful since the state legislature every year finds increasing numbers of laws proposed, a good portion of which are merely threats of punishment by fine or imprisonment for acts which ought to be punished through shame.

This vast amount of proposed legislation each year - and it isn't just confined to the state level - merely shows how we forget that laws are no good unless they are enforced. The roads will be no cleaner and neater than at present unless enforcement agencies are able to haul offenders into court in great numbers and begin meting out the hundred dollar touches.

How much better we would be thinking this way - "Don't throw it out; it messes up the road" - than this way - "If they catch you, it'll cost you a hundred bucks."

How much better to assume a personal responsibility than to pass the buck by saying, "There oughta be a law—."

There is a law - or rather, there are laws. Ten of them, in fact.

Yugoslavia's Tito is no less a Communist than any of Soviet Russia's leaders and if we are sincerely opposed to Communism, we ought to be opposed to him. Any quarrel he has with Russia is not over principle, but over Russian and Yugoslavian self-interests. Like any smart Communist, he is aware that he occupies a position in between two opposing forces that are courting him—and he will play that position for all it is worth, balancing one side against the other. The situation is pretty much like the one that existed in Chicago back in the Prohibition era when one bloody gang was fighting another such gang for a district supremacy. Between Roger Touhy's gang and Al Capone's gang, who could make an intelligent choice.

It will always be on the American conscience that we threw to the wolves and to his death Mikhailovitch, the man who was on the side of the free world in Yugoslavia, then played ball with the man whose name amounts to an abbreviation of "the Third Internationalist Terrorists Organization."

You can reasonably depend upon it that Tito is innately more sympathetic to the Russian leaders than he is to American, English or French leaders. Fundamentally, they are his own kind of people. Furthermore, they are on his doorstep and we are not.

This is an age of propaganda and readers of press dispatches out of Yugoslavia should watch out for it. The stories about the cold-shoulder treatment of the Russian leaders by Tito ought to be taken with the well-known grain of salt. If Tito truly gave the Russian leaders the cold-shoulder treatment, it was for his own sake and not for the sake of the so-called free world, because Yugoslavia is not part of the free world. It is part of the slave world, the same as Russia.

Right now, the United States is continuing its policy of tightwire walking. Expediency, rather than principle, is our working slogan, and some understanding of that fact is necessary. It's pretty difficult to get yourself involved all over the world on the basis of expediency and suddenly adopt a policy based on principle only.

The American esteem was artificially created, I am sure, by the same subversive liberals who were behind a lot of our other weird and fantastic excursions into world chaos. These same men would have welcomed a Spanish equivalent of Tito, if Franco could have been cast in the role of Mikhailovitch which was impossible.

Our State Department would be wise to keep in mind constantly the great possibility of a Tito double-cross at any time, because the double-cross is the symbol of Communism anywhere. When you are doing business with a burglar, don't forget for a second that he is a burglar.

The only possible cause for satisfaction now is that Communism has expanded so greatly that it is having trouble within itself that does not directly involve ourselves and we ought to stay out of it. When thieves fall out among themselves, policemen ought to start looking the other way when a fight breaks out among them.

Beware those who are trying hard to make a hero out of Tito. He is just another Communist double-crosser.

—"Good Evening," Clifford B. Ward.

Rain Slows Church League

Rain cancelled church league games Monday evening of this week. However, two games were played Friday evening of last week with Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran defeating Mt. Pleasant 9-6 and St. Joe Church of Christ trouncing St. Joe Lutheran 13-2.

The first game rolled along for two and one-half innings with Mt. Pleasant holding a slim 1-0 lead. In the Spencerville half of the third Mt. Pleasant ran into trouble after getting two outs. Two singles and a hit batsman were followed by three consecutive walks, another hit batsman, a walk and a single. Seven runs scored in the half inning.

Mt. Pleasant scored four in the fifth and one in the sixth for their six-run total. Spencerville scored one more in the fourth and another in the final frame.

Carper allowed but four hits but was troubled by that third inning streak of wildness. Leonard was effective except in the fifth allowing five hits in that inning.

The second game was an easy win for the St. Joe Church of Christ as they were aided by untimely Lutheran errors. They scored twice in the first inning, four more times in the second and ended up with five in the fifth. Meawhile the Lutheran nine found the slow pitching of Pete Akey difficult to solve for the first five innings, getting only two hits in that span. They scored two runs in the sixth on four hits and went runless in the last inning though getting two hits.

Games this Friday evening will match Newville-Milford E.U.B and St. Joe Lutheran in the 7:30 contest and Concord Methodist and Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran in the second game.

Monday's games match Mt. Pleasant and Spencerville at 7:30 and Newville-Milford E. U. B. and St. Joe Church of Christ in the second of two contests.

Holsom Dairy Wins 1-Hitter

The Holsom Pony Leaguers came up with another masterful pitching job, this one by Jim Moore, to defeat Leo at the local diamond last Wednesday by a score of 2 to 1.

Leo could get but one hit as the St. Joe hurler fanned 14 batters walking none. Willets, the Leo pitcher, gave up only four hits, but they were good for two runs and the win. He struck out 5 and walked 3.

The team was rained out Wednesday. They face Central Friday evening away from home.

An English dictionary should help us to understand the commonly accepted meaning of any word in every-day use; but if we mean to be correctly informed as to what conversion is in God's employment of that term, we must turn to the usage of the word by those holy men of God who spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit."

Don't argue with this baby!

All Chevrolet's competitors and most of the high-priced cars tried it recently in official NASCAR* trials—and took a licking!

Meet the champ! The new Chevrolet "Turbo-Fire V8"—the most modern V8 on the road today. Here's what happened—

Daytona Beach. NASCAR Acceleration Tests Over Measured Mile From Standing Start. Chevrolet captured the 4 top positions in its class! 8 of the first 11! And on a time basis Chevrolet beat every high-priced car, too—but one! But wait!—this is just the beginning!

Daytona Beach. NASCAR Straightaway Running. Open to cars delivered in Florida for $2,500 or less. Chevrolet captured the first two places, 7 out of the first 11 places!

Daytona Beach. NASCAR 2-Way Straightaway Running Over Measured Mile. Open to cars from 250 to 299 cu. in. displacement. Chevrolet captured 3 of the first 5 places!

Columbia, S. C. NASCAR 100-Mile Race on half-mile track. Very tight turns. Chevrolet finished first!

Fayetteville, N. C. NASCAR Late Model Event. Chevrolet again finished first. Because of even tighter turns the driver chose to run the entire 150 laps in second gear! Yet no overheating or pit stops!

These facts you can't laugh off. Sales leader. Road leader. A crowning achievement of Chevrolet and General Motors. Try a Chevrolet . . . and live in a land of going-away where you win all the arguments! Soon, maybe?

TEEN-AGE FAITH

Lesson for June 12, 1955

We do not expect teen-agers to have the same outlook on life, or the same kind of clothes, or looks, or digestion, or habits, or occupations, as their grandmothers. Why should we expect them to have the same kind of religion? This is not saying that young people should have one religion and old people another. It is saying rather that the way a teen-ager thinks and acts is enough different from the way his elders think and act, so that we might reasonably expect that he will take the same religion with a different slant. Not all grown-up Christians are made in the same mold; and certainly it is a mistake to try to force the religious expression and ideas and beliefs of growing boys and girls into the precise pattern of Grandma, let alone St. Paul.

Teen-Agers Make Top-Notch Christians

Most people who are converted are converted in their teens. Most young people who have been brought up in Christian homes and have since childhood never thought of themselves as anything else but Christians, join the church (or are confirmed) during their teens. Most ministers first felt the call to the ministry before they were 20 years old. Most missionaries first thought of being missionaries during their teens. The fact is, the teens are just the time when religious reception is good. Just as there are days when radio reception is good and other days when it is bad, so it is with what we can call religious reception; there are times in life when it is better than at other times. As the teen-age is the waking-up time all along the line, so it should not be surprising that the heart of boys and girls, just at the time when they begin not to be boys and girls any more, but men and women, should be especially open to the vision and the voice of God. Teen-agers can make top-notch Christians.

But They Need Help

We have a case in point, in the story of the young king Josiah. He was eight years old when he came to the throne. His father, King Amon, had been a bad man and a bad king, so bad that his own servants had a palace revolution and killed him. There must been something promising about little Josiah, because we read that the people of the land "made him king," — as we would say, elected him. This was remarkable, because in the ancient Near East it was just as it is in some of our neighboring countries today: if a king or a president is assassinated, one of the plotters is generally the next king. But the people picked out little Josiah and made him king. Boy-like, he did nothing particularly worth mentioning for eight years. Then, when he was 16 years old, he "began to seek after the God of David." Now whenever a boy with worthless parents turns out to be a fine character with a sincere faith, it is safe to guess that some one has been there influencing the boy for good. Boys and girls seldom develop into mature Christians without help. Later we read that Josiah was acquainted with the best and most God-fearing man of his time, and we can be reasonably sure that this young king's wise and steady leadership, his growth in faith, his constructive reforms, were "sparked" by some of these priests and prophets who were his closest friends.

Teen-Agers Are the Church of Tomorrow

Whenever a boy or a girl who has been confirmed or "joined the church" stops going to church and perhaps slips down from good to bad and from bad to worse, thoughtful persons will ask, "Who's to blame?" The fault may very well be in the church, not in the young people. Boys and girls need wise help from older Christians. Young people coming into the church are always "commended to the fellowship" of the church or words to that effect. But how much fellowship do they get? An officer in a church once complained that his church paid too much attention to young people. "Young folks don't contribute," he said. Not in money, of course! But don't teen-agers contribute anything?

Wendell Cook Seriously Injured In Collision

Wendell Cook of St. Joe was seriously injured Tuesday afternoon at 3:40 p.m. when he crashed into an automobile while operating a motorcycle.

The accident occurred at the north edge of Spencerville at a curve. Cook was headed north and the Buick involved in the crash, driven by Mrs. Barbara Jean Keller of Fort Wayne, south. Cook was in the act of passing another car on the curve when he met the Keller car. The latter swerved to avoid collision, but the motorcycle struck a glancing blow on the left front fender and tossed the cyclist over 50 ft. down the highway from his machine. One report stated that Cook was thrown into the air as high as telephone wires along the right-of-way. The sheriff's office reported that the impact was so sudden and forceful that the cyclist's shoes remained with the vehicle as he was tossed off.

Cook sustained a probable skull fracture, cuts, bruises and shock. He remains in serious condition at the Souder Hospital in Auburn.

Damage to the Buick convertible was estimated at $600 while the motorcycle, a 1941 Harley Davidson, was a total loss. Mrs. Keller was not injured though her car skided into the ditch after the impact.

RHC Observes 42nd Anniversary

Special numbers were given by Mrs. Inez Hadsell and Mrs. Leona Mason. Mrs. Hadsell was welcomed back after her many months of illness.

Mrs. Lela Northrup, a former member, was a guest.

The response at roll call was relating an interesting incident we enjoyed in the past years.

The hostess served a lunch consisting of angel food cake, ice cream topped with strawberries, mints and coffee.

The July meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Eulala Ballou.

Who Cares?

One of the most difficult, yet one of the most necessary, realizations that a person or a group of persons must eventually recognize is that accomplishment in a particular field of endeavor necessitates continued effort, or else the immediate gain will become but a temporary gain. It matters not in what sphere of living we gaze, the goals that are a part of life itself, a worthwhile life that is, though they may be reached by intensive effort which may seem to justify sitting back to "coast" for a while, only present further goals to be gained to continue the usefulness that is the ultimate result of any achievement.

The breadwinner of the family cannot come home at the end of the week with the paycheck and say, "Well, that's over with for a while. I guess I'll sit back and enjoy myself for a week or so and then start working again." Though some of the demands of organized labor may on some fronts seem to be heading in such a direction, it still remains that there is no economic system yet devised that can stand the test of time with its participants taking a hit-or-miss attitude as to their consistency in effort. As things now stand the breadwinner must face the next week with the challenge of meeting his obligations through another week of effort rewarded by another paycheck.

Likewise the housewife cannot clean house and expect one day's work to last for seven whole days of family living. Nor can the grass in the yard be expected to stay at the same height for weeks at a time after a cutting job nor the weeds to stop growing just because they have been "gone over" a time or two. All of these jobs are perpetual and whether we like it or not they must be done time and time again.

In line with this thought, we can bring a local situation into the picture to make another example of the necessity of continuing effort in order to preserve an initial gain. In this instance let us pick out, or perhaps a more correct phrase would be "pick on," the local lighted ball diamond. A few years ago a group of citizens of the community organized a club to install lights for a recreational facility as a help in presenting to the community a means of keeping many of the people in the area interested not just in sports but interested also in the people who were to participate in those sports. Though in relation to the community there were comparatively few who worked at the tasks that were performed in accomplishing the erection of light poles and the installation of the lights and the grading work preceding, there still was a general feeling that the project was a "good" thing for the community and that it certainly could be counted as a gain in the community record.

Participation in the various leagues which use the diamond and the use by the young women of the community still shows that there is considerable interest in the diamond. But unfortunately that interest only goes, generally speaking, as far as going to a game and then going home, either as a spectator or as a player with no concern as to how the ball park looks or how or by whom it is being operated. Having been a strong supporter for the lighted diamond when it was undertaken, we are greatly disappointed at the lack of pride that is shown by those who use it. There have been too many who have forgotten that it can operate only by a great deal of ready-and-willing effort when that effort is required in the various needs that must be taken care of such as operating the concession stand, plus volunteer help FROM EVERYONE in such departments as keeping the park clean. More important is the necessity for everyone to be careful to keep the park safe for both participants and spectators. The number of broken pop bottles now lying on the field represents a safety hazard to anyone who is present at the diamond.

There is a general disrespect for the effort and expense that has gone into putting the diamond in operation even by those who use its facilities. The concession stand which houses not only the refreshment items and the public address system also serves to house the other materials used, such as the bases, the umpires' equipment, the diamond marking devices, scorebooks, etc. Members of the teams which use the diamond have broken open the side windows to get the bases, for instance. Others have broken the door lock. Still others have deliberately burned one of three barrels placed at the diamond, used for the deposit of waste paper to keep it from littering the field. Pop bottle cases litter the diamond just because somebody thinks more of their own desire to sit down than they do of the fact that the case is used in the operation of the concession stand in raising money to keep the diamond in operation. That burning barrel even set fire to one of the light poles themselves, but fortunately this was noticed in time to prevent a loss of the pole.

There are other things, too, such as abuse of the wire backstop, breaking of wire barriers, and so on. It would be better if there were someone who had charge of keeping the field in repair and presentable in appearance, but there isn't; and so the job falls to Everyman. It would be quite a task for one person, too, when there isn't even enough collective effort by persons at ball games to keep things in some degree of order and to see that even the most basic of the rules of conduct are followed.

It's a pity that we must insult the intelligence of the community by sticking a sign in its face at every turn, but from the results so far, that seems to be the action called for. Visitors from other communities which compete with our teams will have a high opinion of St. Joe (if they don't have it already) if they gaze upon such as these - "Do not break pop bottles" - "Do not hang on the backstop" - "Do not burn waste paper containers" - "Do not break down this fence" - "Do not break into this stand for equipment; get the key" - "Do not conduct spitting contests" - "Do not set fire to light poles" - etc.

Perhaps in view of the misuse and misconduct of the local diamond it would be wise to place huge signs all around the field saying, "KEEP OUT by order of Who Cares, caretaker."

OH, DADDY!
(Dad's Day)

"Oh, DADDY!" - "What is it son?"
"The kids are goin' to have some fun,
A picnic - each will pay a share,
We think that way is always fair.
How much? about two bucks will do it,
Gee thanks dad, I know you'll never rue it."

"Oh, DADDY!" "Why yes my dear?-"
"You know the time is coming near
When school is out and my old dress
Is looking like a wreck, no less.
How much? The one I want's twelve ninety-five,
Oh, thanks dad, you're the greatest guy alive!"

"Oh, DADDY! Could I use the car,
I have a date, it's just too far
To walk. Huh? You did intend to use it?
Well thanks dad, I knew you'd not refuse it."

So, Buddy gets his picnic trips
While sister gets her gowns and slips,
And Junior drives where he would go,
That gasoline sure takes the dough.
And Mother says "I need some clothes,
I DON'T see where the money goes!"

When dad goes out he shines his shoes,
He seldom ever sings the blues,
His collar's frayed, his suit's worn bare,
But you'd not know he had a care.

We hope that on that far off morn
When mightly Gabriel blows his horn,
When heaven's gates are opened wide
So all the saints may go inside,
There'll come from heaven's vaulted dome,
A voice - "Oh DADDY! WELCOME HOME!"

—Gertrude Borthwick

Davy Crockett came to town the other day and the town went crazy. If the original Davy had returned from the dead a year ago he would not have caused so much commotion.

Such is the command position of the TV revival of an old hero that one youngster met him and started to bawl. "Oh, Davy, Davy," he said to the actor Fess Parker. "Why did you have to go and get killed at the Alamo."

But I am not going to knock this current hysteria which I think is about the healtiest sign to appear on the horizon in a long time. If I had some kids I think I could be a little happier about their fixation for coonskin caps than for the paraphernalia of the space cadets and Mars dwellers or the zoot suit uniforms of the jive-happy set. Coonskin cap wearers are too corny to kill anything but Injuns and b'ars and there aren't many of either easily available.

Until Walt Disney brought a little intelligence to television—as he brought skill, humor, decency and taste to everything he ever touched, thereby being slightly unique—I had wondered why, why, the great lack of juvenile interest in the most exciting epoch of our time? I was weaned on the Dan Boones and Kit Carsons and Davy Crocketts and find them fascinating today as a slightly seedy adult with two sore feet.

I just re-read "The Saga of Andy Burnett" by one of the Whites—Stewart Edward, I think—and on the heels of that one I read the same story of the mountain men on the way West. They have more guts and glamour for me than all the new contrived stuff.

There was a wonderful naturalist named Ernest Thompson Seton who wrote two memorable books for boys, "Rolf In the Woods" and "Two Little Savages," as well as a book about individual animals called "Wild Animals I Have Known." Bald and surly as I be, I can still find tremendous magic as well as relaxation from tedium by sitting down with any of the three.

I am not lonely in this seeming naivete. I have written six books, a great many magaziners, and the good Lord only knows how many words for newspapers. But about one million persons think the best writing I will ever do was in a simple series called "The Old Man and the Boy," which runs in Field and Stream Magazine. The format on this one is simple to extreme—it merely treats with a man's remembrance of the good days when he was a kid and some adults took the trouble to be nice to him in the woods and on the waters.

Yet there is a bridge here for explaining the man in terms of the child and the other way round—something that is not possible in the blood-and-thunders and the complete implausibles. An Indian is simple and so is a fish or a Bob White quail. So is fixing fire for a camp. So is sliding down a back Southern river with a rod in your hand. So is pitching a tent or cutting firewood.

These things as a focus for excitement can be shared by man and boy alike, as Davy Crockett proves, as Daniel Boone still lives on in proof. The urge of modern man to live out of doors, as proven by suburban housing, with Pa burning off his hands on the barbeque and chopping off thumbs trying to do it himself, tells me something nice about the American people, who got lost a little bit in frivol a while back.

Let us briefly be thankful for Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier. He's a better hero than Superman or one of the crazier mixed-up comic book prototypes. There is really nothing unhealthy about wrestling hand-to-hand with a grizzly b'ar.

Spencerville, Concord Win Church Games

Friday night's church league games went to St. Joe Lutheran on a forfeit from Newville-Milford E.U.B. and Concord Methodist over Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran 8 to 7.

After a practice game took the place of the 7:30 forfeit, Concord started off with the appearances of making a rout of it as they scored eight runs in the first three innings. Five of the eight came in the first inning, topped off by a tremendous home run blast from the bat of Corbin. The ball bounced off the left fielder's glove and over the fence for a poke of some 345 feet.

Two more scored in the second on another homer, this time by Kenny Walters who picked on his favorite spot in the Holsom Dairy lot as a landing place for the ball.

One run in the third completed the scoring for Concord.

Meanwhile Spencerville was picking away at the Concord lead taking advantage of several enemy errors to score their runs. They scored two in the second, third and sixth innings and one in the seventh.

On Monday night Spencerville exploded for eight runs in the 8th inning of an overtime contest to win 12-6 from Mt. Pleasant. The score was tied at 4-all at the end of the regulation seven innings.

Despite many errors in the first seven innings the score was held down to a minimum. Mt. Pleasant tallied three in the second on no hits, two walks and three errors, one in the sixth on a double by Carper and a single by Surface and two in the extra inning on a single by Brummel Walter and three errors.

Spencerville scored in the fourth on Markle's double and two errors netting one run. Singles by Shockley and Markle and a walk in the fifth scored two more. Two errors in the sixth brought in the fourth run.

Carper's wildness aided the Spencerville cause in the extra inning as he walked four and hit one batter. Four hits, including a triple and single by Kimes and singles by Butler and Conley scored eight runs.

Mt. Pleasant got their own rally going in the last half of the inning after two were out, but fell far short of the mark. Three errors a hit and a walk caused what damage occurred in scoring two runs.

The second game Monday was forfeited to St. Joe Church of Christ by Newville-Milford E.U.B.

Games on Friday night of this week are: Newville Church of Christ vs. St. Joe Lutheran, 7:30; Concord Methodist vs. Mt. Pleasant.

On Monday night Newville Church of Christ meets Newville-Milford E.U.B. and Spencerville Meth.-Luth. faces Concord Methodist.

GENERAL TELEPHONE INVESTMENT NOW OVER $500 MILLION

General Telephone System now has a telephone plant investment in excess of $500,000,000, according to President Donald C. Power of New York.

This milestone was reached during April of this year. It is estimated now that by the end of the year the total investment will reach $538,800,000, or an increase of $51,600,000 over the close of 1954.

During 1955, it is estimated that the construction and expansion budget for General Telephone System will be at an all-time high, and $78,700,000 has been budgeted for that program. This amount is $7,800,000 more than was spent for expansion during 1954, is 45 per cent higher than in 1950, and 1,174 per cent higher than 1945.

Along with this announcement came word from Lafayette, headquarters of General Telephone of Indiana, that April telephone installations broke all monthly records for the Hoosier company. A total of 1,237 telephones were added to the Hoosier utility's network in 9 exchanges in the northern two-thirds of the state.

The Indiana company now serves 133,285 telephones for more than 100,000 subscribers.

To assist in General Telephone's sales programs, local newspaper advertising this year will be directed at four main subjects: (1) increased use of extension or extra telephones, (2) wider use of long distance telephoning both for business and residence subscribers, (3) enlarged sale of advertising space in the yellow page section of telephone directories, and (4) broader use of toll credit cards, particularly by business men who are frequently away from their offices.

General Telephone of Indiana is staging open houses in 10 of its exchanges this year in celebration of its 25th anniversary. The Hoosier utility was formed in 1930 with the merger of 11 operating companies serving 41,000 telephones.

General Telephone of Indiana is planning to spend a total of $4,347,000 this year to extend and improve telephone service in its 69 exchanges. Each of the 69 exchanges will benefit from company plans over the next five years.

Current plans call for the conversion to dial operation of all the utility's 13 magneto or hand-crank telephone exchanges. These are located at Mentone, Shirley, Orland, Cicero, Wanatah, Westfield, Bourbon, Bippus, Windfall, Wheeler, Bristol, Mooreland and Etna Green.

4-H'ers WORK TO REDUE MACHINERY COSTS AND REPAIRS

The tractor has become the modern symbol of American agricultural progress, signifying the swing to more efficient production methods on the nation's farms. And 4-H club members participating in the National 4-H Tractor Program are constantly working to increase production efficiency.

Fuel wasted each year by tractors and other farm engines due to improper carburetor adjustment would fill a train of tank cars 350 miles long. More millions of dollars are lost in repair bills which could be saved with proper tractor and machine care. During the past 12 years, 440,000 4-H members and leaders have received training through the program which helps them combat these unnecessary losses.

In the program, 4-H'ers learn how to adjust the carburetor, properly lubricate tractors and other machinery, service the air cleaner, care for ignition and cooling systems and many other steps designed to give longer, more efficient use of tractors and machinery. In short, it is a program of "Care, Not Repair."

Safe operating practices are also taught members while they learn about care of farm equipment. In fact, tractor safety is the first lesson in the program and it is stressed throughout. In addition, members develop qualities of leadership, helpfulness, initiative and thrift.

Funds for leader training, literature helps and awards for members are provided the 4-H Tractor Program by the Standard Oil Foundation, Inc., Chicago. Medals of honor are offered to four winners in each county who do outstanding work. The state winner will receive an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 27-December 1, and at the Congress 12 state winners will receive national awards of $300 scholarships.

NEW SPEED ZONE IN COUNTY

DeKalb County motorists will find a new speed zone posted on the four-mile highway stretch between Auburn and Waterloo. A 55-miles-per-hour speed limit has been put into effect on orders from the state highway commission.

The new speed zone was ordered several months ago but signs were not available until recently. The state-wide 65-miles-per-hour speed limit has been superceded by the new limit in an effort to reduce accidents on the highway between the two towns. It is marked by sweeping curves and carries one of the heaviest traffic burdens in the Hoosier state.

The question of not whether a doctrine is beautiful, but whether it is true. When we want to go to a place, we don't ask whether the road leads through a pretty country, but whether it is the right road, the road pointed out by authority, the turnpike road. Such a road is marked out in the New Testament. Jesus said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life." Follow Him and you will be safe.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Devotional Reading: Psalm 122.

BEFORE WORSHIP

Lesson for June 19, 1955

"I don't seem to get much out of church." You can hear that complaint too often. Maybe you have made it yourself. Let's leave the question of the sermon out of the picture. The sermon isn't all you go to church for. The object of that meeting, on Sunday morning or whenever it is, is to bring you closer to God, to make God real to you, to send you back into your every-day life with a radiant heart and a mind at peace. The object of your going to church is, in one word, Worship. Hymns, prayers, offering, meditation, sermon,—all of it ought to blend into one blessed experience of worship, that is to say, an experience in which you and others with you meet with God. Why doesn't this always happen? Maybe the fault is with the people, not with the minister alone. One good preacher can't make a good service all by himself.

Encouraging the Minister

In the Bible story of Josiah and his great Passover, there are some valuable suggestions that even after all these years and all these changes can help us, too. The Passover was the great festival of worship among the ancient Jews; it was observed every year. But the chronicler reports about this one of King Josiah's that there had not been one like it since the days of Samuel; or in other words, it was the best Passover in about 400 years. What made this one so special? Three points stand out. One is that Josiah "encouraged the priests in their service." Put into modern terms, that means the people encouraging the minister. You always see the minister at the door after the service, shaking hands with the people. They may tell him they enjoyed the sermon; but how many who tell him that helped him beforehand? How many of them prayed for him, not while he was preaching but long before, when he was working on his sermon? When a religious chicken-farmer is taking his poultry to market, he doesn't pray that they will be good chickens. The time to pray for that is back when the eggs are hatching, when they are in the baby chick stage, while he is selecting the feed, and so on. By the time the chickens are ready for market it's a little late to begin praying about it. So the time to begin praying for your minister and encouraging him is while his sermons are hatching so to speak; before, not only after, the service.

"Prepare Yourselves"

We read also that King Josiah said to the Levites, "Prepare yourselves." The Protestant Christian belief is that all believers are priests. A service of worship, as we understand it, is not a kind of performance in which the minister up there behind the pulpit does it all while we just sit and watch him. One reason why we get so little out of church is that we put so little into it. If you had an interview with the President of the United States, wouldn't you make some preparation for it? You don't just "drop in" to see a man as important as that. And yet people will go to the house of God without the least preparation. They may be well dressed, but their minds are only half-dressed and their souls are more than half asleep. You have a right to come before God with a burdened heart; he welcomes the heavy-laden. But you have no right to expect much from a so-called worship service which you enter with a mind cluttered with workaday botherations you won't let go, with a heart hardened by pride, with a spirit almost of defiance, as if you said to the minister, "I dare you to interest me!"

"Prepare For Your Brethren"

Josiah also told the Levites to prepare for their brothers who were coming to worship. True worship in a church is not an individual affair, as if each person present were sitting in a separate cell listening in by ear-phones. There is no point in "public" worship unless there is some sharing, some fellowship, some opening of the heart. A service of "worship" from which the people stream homeward without speaking to one another, or praying for and with one another, is a poor affair.

GI TRAINING BENEFITS TO END—For most World War II veterans July 25 will mark the end of the benefits they may receive under the GI training bill.

The only veterans exempt from this deadline are those who enlisted under the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act between October 6, 1945, and October 5, 1946. The 1955 deadline applies only to World War II trainees and does not cover veterans training under the Korean GI Bill.

More than 7.8 million veterans -- more than half the number who served in World War II -- received some form of training under this War II bill.

WHITE HOUSE HOUSEKEEPING—Congress has had a look at the housekeeping chores at the White House. When funds were requested to keep the President's home clean and bright for the next fiscal year, it was discovered that it costs $366,200 to keep the White House domestic staff of 72 busy on a full-time basis. This includes maids, butlers, cooks, gardeners, maintenance men and others grooming the Executive Mansion and its 18 acres.

By the way, nearly a million persons visited the White House last year. And in the Executive Mansion are seven elevators, two dumbwaiters, and more than 26,000 items of property that have to be inventoried regularly. These include 18,742 pieces of glassware, china and silverware, 2,630 items of furniture and 2,200 table linens.

BIPARTISAN SECURITY SYSTEM INQUIRY—Congress has under consideration a bipartisan commission to investigate the entire federal security system which affects 10 million federal and defense personnel. If this plan is adoptd, it will attempt to end the alleged abuses and contradictions in the various programs covering this broad field of government workers.

Softball Near Halfway Mark In League Play

Spencerville Methodist- Lutheran and Concord Methodist continue to dominate play in the St. Joe Church League each having lost but one game thus far in the season. However, Spencerville leads in the over-all standings having won five games as compared to four wins for Concord.

Play last week-end included a win for Newville Church of Christ over St. Joe Lutheran, 14-6, on Friday evening. The second game was won by Concord defeating Mt. Pleasant, 14-11.

Newville Church of Christ scored seven runs in the second inning of the first game to get off to a good start. They were aided by several Lutheran errors. Four more runs were plated in the third, with two runs scoring in the 4th and a lone tally in the fifth.

St. Joe meanwhile was having their usual light-hitting difficulties, getting a total of but five hits during the entire game. One of these was a home run by Frank Sechler.

The Lutherans scored three runs in the first inning and three more in the fourth.

Scoring came in bunches in the second game between Mt. Pleasant and Concord. Mt. Pleasant held a 5-0 lead going into the last of the fourth, but three hits, three walks and a hit batsman netted Concord six runs. Mt. Pleasant then came back to score four in the top of the fifth before Concord again splurged for eight runs in their half of the inning. A sixth inning rally for Mt. Pleasant gave them two runs making the final 14-11 score.

Dave Walters and Kenny Walters blasted out long homers for Concord while Burmell Walter hit a round-tripper for Mt. Pleasant.

Following a forfeit by the Newville-Milford E.U.B. team to the Newville Church of Christ Monday evening, Concord and Spencerville tangled in the best game of the season with Spencerville getting two runs in the last of the sixth breaking a 2-all tie for the game. Kenny Akey and DuWayne Goings hooked up in a pitcher's battle the former allowing but three hits while Goings gave up eight safeties.

Spencerville scored one run in the first inning on singles by Markle and Kimes. The run held the lead until the top of the fifth when Concord tallied twice on a walk, a single by Dixon and two errors.

In the last of the fifth Spencerville scored their second run on singles by Speaks and Markle and an error. After Concord went down in order in their half of the sixth inning, Spencerville scored the winning runs as Junior Akey singled, Dwyer walked and Conley tripled. The first two Concord batters in the final inning were retired. Then Akey walked Dixon and Goings, but the rally was stopped short on an easy roller to the pitcher.

Friday night's games will be between Concord Methodist and St. Joe Church of Christ at 7:30 and Mt. Pleasant and St. Joe Lutheran in the second game.

The first half of the season will come to a close with the first game Monday evening between Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran and Newville-Milford E.U.B. at 7:30 p.m. The second game at approximately 9:00 p.m. between Mt. Pleasant and St. Joe Church of Christ will open the second half of the Church League schedule.

Is your home uncomfortable? Why not get a Harvester Air Conditioner and be comfortable? To quickly introduce Harvester comfort in this area we will install the first five Harvester units for as little as $200.00 complete and operating. Then to make the deal more attractive to responsible people we ask no down payment and only $12.11 per month. No you haven't read it all yet. We also give one week's free trial after the free installation with no obligations.

Really, Harvester Air Conditioners don't cost — THEY PAY!

Here is a short list of how they save:

No window screens to buy.

No screen doors to buy.

No fans to buy.

No dust and dirt from open doors and windows - less laundry . .

Watch TV at home instead of renting seats in an AIR-CONDITIONED THEATER.

Harvester units filter the air - from either outdoor or indoor as you may desire - and remove the dust and pollen - less hay fever doctor bills.

No evening drives to escape a hot house. One such drive each week with the incidental extra expenses will cost enough to have made the small payments necessary to have a comfortable home.

The foregoing are only a few of the many incidental expenses necessary to keeping your home the most important place in the world — UNCOMFORTABLE.

We have a demonstrator unit in our home 1 3-4 miles west of St. Joe. This unit is doing a good job on our entire first floor area of 1366 square feet. Please drive out and help us enjoy it.

Comparatively it costs only a small fraction as much to keep a home comfortably cool in summer as it costs to keep it comfortably warm in the winter.

Anyhow, just let us set you in a Harvester Air Conditioner and if you are worried over the slight cost just imagine how nice it will be to worry in comfort.

MOTORISTS WARNED OF HITCHHIKER THREAT

Many motorists on the road everyday fall prey to hold-up men. In spite of warning news stories, the list of victims grows longer each day.

The main reason is carelessness, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club. He issued a warning to drivers that it can happen to them unless certain precautions are taken to guard against it.

"Motorists should be aware that they can easily fall victim to robbery," Hayes said, "unless they keep a few rules in mind. Alertness may keep a driver not only from losing money in an auto, but also from losing his life."

These suggestions are offered:

1. Pace your driving so that you reach an intersection just about when the light turns green. This eliminates a stop and can easily be done at night when traffic is light.

2. Use your rear view mirror to decide if someone is following you too diligently. Call the police if you have cause for alarm.

3. Don't take short-cuts at night through unfamiliar areas --remain on well - traveled streets.

4. Keep doors locked and windows rolled high so that no one can leap into your car when you have to stop, especially at intersections.

5. Never pick up hitchhikers. Remember that two out of every five thumbs begging for a ride are on file with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. And remember, you can't judge character by appearance.

6. Avoid traffic disputes for they can lead to assault as well as robbery.

BOTH HANDS FOR HOUSEHOLD CHORES

You can use both hands in many household jobs to save time and energy, but it takes practice to develop this skill, according to Mrs. Isabella F. McClellan, home demonstration agent of DeKalb County.

With dusting cloths or mitts on both hands, you can dust large areas in less time than one-hand dusting. Using both hands also is an advantage when you are dusting tedious items, such as carved legs of chairs and tables or the many stairway posts supporting the banister.

When you first try to dust with both hands it may seem a little awkward, but as you continue it will become easier. When you develop rhythm, your left hand will do a better job. Moving your hands toward or away from each other is an easier motion than moving them in the same direction.

In ironing, make both hands work. One hand can position work while the other guides the iron. Likewise, this method will take practice. When you are ironing, change hands on the iron and continue with the left hand. This shares the work with both hands and, by using more body muscles, distributes the fatigue.

GOD AND NATIONS

Lesson for June 26, 1955

God is not an American citizen. He is not even Americanized. He is not and never has been a citizen of any country in the world. And yet, strange as it seems, all down through history he has been thought of as if he belonged to one particular race or nation. A Scotch woman, in the era when France and the United Kingdom were more or less always at war, was reminded by her pastor that maybe there were God-fearing French women who were praying for victory for their nation, too. "Oh," said the old lady, "who could understand those jabbering bodies?" The simple truth is that God is the God of all nations. The Bible is as clear on this as it can be.

God Controls

Three mistakes are commonly made at this point. One is that God is not interested in nations, only in individuals; that He cares a great deal what individuals do, but is quite indifferent to the doings of nations. The truth is that God is as much interested and concerned about what men do by the million as what they do one by one. He is as much concerned with acts of Congress as he is with acts of congressmen; as much concerned with honesty in treaties as with honesty in personal contracts. Another mistake is to think of God as wanting to control the affairs of nations but not being able to do so, almost as if he read the headlines with as much alarm as you and I do. Another mistake, just the opposite, is to think that God controls nations the way a checker-player controls his men. They move when and where he moves them, they have no choice. Now the truth is that God does control nations, or else the Bible is all wrong. He does not dictate all their actions, for God is never the author of sin. But when we read what is going on in the world, we must not read with despair, for God never lets nations out of his control.

God Judges

If God literally dictated and brought to pass every happening in history, then God could be the judge only of himself. But he does judge the nations, as he judges individuals, for what nations do of their own free will and consent. Nations, as nations, can make right choices or they can make wrong ones. It has been often remarked that the mortality rate among nations is 100 per cent. As the Bible sees it, the death of a nation is the judgment of God upon it. Now the point so often overlooked, indeed the point the average citizen of ancient Israel and Judah conveniently overlooked, is that God judges all nations alike. He is not like a referee who calls fouls on one team and never sees a foul if his favorite team makes them. He is not like a parent who brings some of the children up carefully and spoils his favorites. No person can be just, and God cannot be just, if his justice is only for some and not for all. We all know what to think of a judge who "fixes tickets" for his friends who violate traffic regulations. God, the Judge of nations, never fixes anybody's ticket. Let us put this into plain English in terms of our own American situation. If an act of another nation is "bad," really bad in the sight of God, then the same kind of act on America's part is just exactly as bad, maybe worse if (as we claim) we know God's will better than anybody. Or if what our nation does at any time is "good," really good in God's eyes, then the same act done by another nation is good, too, and we ought not to resent it.

God Rewards

The prophet Zephaniah says what all the other prophets write in their own way, namely that God rewards nations that follow his laws. God does not, of course, reward nations in heaven, as he does people one by one. The reward of a nation is continuing peace and happiness — and sometimes power—on this planet. The reward of nations is to become the safe home of men and women who know and love and serve God. The reward of nations is to be the living evidence of the justice of a God who loves justice.

Around the Town

With the Editor

A few weeks ago a stroll along the walk in front of the Harris home was a very pleasant occasion - not that it's ever unpleasant. But at that time the big catalpa trees were blooming and their fragrance filled the air. The falling blossoms are a little dangerous, though, as mail-driver Leo Gaff can testify. He slid on his heel one morning when there was a little rain left on the petal-strewn walk. He looked back evidently expecting to find a banana peel or something, but all there was was those purty little white flowers.

This sounds like something that might happen at the Vincent residence—

Momma Vincent: "Be sure you wash your arms before you put on a clean shirt."

Jerry: "Shall I wash them for long or short sleeves?"

The Lions Club had an informal version of "This Is Your Life" at their meeting Monday night at Margaret Chaney's restaurant. Those present gave a short resume of their life history, where they were born, where they went to school, how they met their wives, how they got into their present jobs or businesses, etc. Some of them threw in a story as the situation warranted and Ben Simpson was one of them. He told of the time when he was working at a dairy and had set his alarm for 3 a.m. as he went to bed the afternoon before to catch up on some shut-eye. He awoke without benefit of alarm and glanced at the clock. It said seven o'clock - well-l-l-l, it didn't really SAY seven o'clock - I just said that. The hands of the clock showed that the time was seven o'clock. He dressed in two minutes, tore out the door, went to the dairy and started loading milk. The boss, seeing Ben hurriedly loading half-pint bottles in the truck asked if a certain factory had run out resulting in a special run for Ben. Ben said no, then asked if the other fellows weren't going to work that day as he noticed the other trucks unattended. Just then the church bells began ringing for the evening service, and Ben said, "I thought I was going nuts!"

He had slept only a few hours when he awoke and the evening twilight seemed like the first rays of dawn.

The gals who went on the trip to Purdue last week for the home demonstration conference got a big laugh over the little woman's misadventure on a one-way street down there - the wrong way, of course. Some of them didn't know, however, that she did it again when beginning the trip back home.

But the best part came last Sunday morning - in church!

Pastor Barnhart presents a short sermonette for the children attending church each Sunday. He addressed the congregation by saying something like, "I'd like to talk to the children this morning for a few minutes about - one-way streets."

The Haberkorn family almost ruined the day for the preacher as they glanced from one to another with knowing smiles on their faces and maybe snickered a little bit.

The sermonette pointed out that we must live according to the laws, just as on a one-way street you go in one direction and can't go in the opposite direction. At this point Mike whispered, "Mom does!"

The program was given as follows:

Just a Song of Welcome, by Newville Club members.

Welcome, Kathryn Krieg, president.

Devotions, Irene Emenhiser.

History of the Newville club, Hazel Roberts, a charter member.

Guest roll call was answered by the following guests:

A skit entitled "This Is Your Life," was presented by the club members. "Auld Lang Syne" was sung by all present.

Following the program the guests were invited to the beautifully decorated tea table. Blen Moore, Daisy Roberts and Sadie Washler, the three remaining charter members of the club, poured for the tea.

Over sixty club members and guests were present to help celebrate the happy occasion.

The history of the club indicates that on April 9, 1930, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stimon (county agent) met with some of the ladies of Newville Township for the purpose of organizing a home bureau club. Officers for the year 1930 were elected as follows: president, Mrs. C. Priest; vice president, Mrs. R. H. Conine; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Kling; treasurer, Mrs. Lester Pierman; chorister, Mrs. Blen Moore; pianist, Mrs. Lena Pierman; news reporter, Mrs. Mildred Ling. The above and Mrs. Sada Washler, Mrs. Bertha Klise, Mrs. Guy Roberts, Mrs. Millie Enzor and Mrs. Daisy Roberts were members in 1930. Of these members Sada Washler, Blen Moore and Daisy Roberts are still active members of this club.

The object of this club was to further material and social interests of its members in particular, their farms and homes and the community in general.

The Fourth and Faith

Important days in history are marked by proper observance. Of the most importance in American History is the date July 4, 1776. It is not necessary to remind one of the date's significance. General schooling implants the accompanying title, "Declaration of Independence," in our thoughts.

But as time passes by, it is only natural that, unless an effort is made each year to renew the recognition of the importance of a certain historical date, the importance to succeeding generations is forgotten. The significance of the phrase, "Declaration of Independence," can be forgotten quite easily because the comforts of modernism transport the sacrifices, agony, suffering and death in history far from realization. Indeed, even those who speak words of tribute to America, those who are selected and elected to public office, forget in their actions some of the very principles which were the motivating force behind such an important document as the Declaration of Independence.

It is disappointing to hear flowery words tossed about in exhibitions of "flag-waving" by orators who use such acts only for their own advantage. There will be many words spoken over the coming week end and, to be sure, they will be words of truth. They will be words of truth as far as historical fact is concerned; there need be no falsifying the bravery and foresight of important men in history. But the disappointment enters when these orators and each and every American fail to look at their participation in government and in society to judge their own merits according to the qualification: "Is this according to basic American principle?"

We hear many times that we must "have faith." That is a true statement: we must have faith. However, faith, whether it be in oneself or in one's country or even in God, does not mean that a mere feeling of assurance and confidence is an indication of having "faith." There is more to the word than just mental comfort. To have faith one must be confident, certainly; but there must also be action according to that confidence. A Christian (supposedly) who says, "I have faith in God," and does nothing to show confidence in the rightness of God-like living has an incomplete interpretation of the word "faith." Likewise an American who says, "I have faith in America," but does nothing to preserve American principles must be considered a failure. Faith means more than acknowledging the existence of someone or something; it also requires living and doing according to the rules which have made that someone or something ideal, to be copied.

How can one be "American" when there are so many instances of "un-American" institutions now entered upon our lives? It is difficult, certainly. There is always the fact that some of these institutions have made living "easier," or at least we think so. It is offending to many to say that government supervised social security is not a good thing, or that the withholding tax is not a good thing, or that government power projects are not a good thing, or that universal military training is not a good thing. Yet those who are offended are American enough to agree when this statement is made, "The more you do for yourself, the better off you are." Where does the difficulty come in? Well, they do not have "faith" - the kind of faith that makes something really work - in what they profess to believe in - American principle.

It is agreed that sometimes you must do something you do not want to do in order to exist. In fact, that is one secret of a successful life, being able to adjust to circumstances and do what is not always according to desire. But a successful life never compromises when it comes to principle. We can do things which are not what we want without losing sight of certain fundamentals. It is possible for us to associate, for instance, with Communists and to seek some manner of co-existence. But we must not lose sight of right and wrong. We cannot be snobs, and we must not back down from our basic beliefs, our principles, our recognition of right and wrong. Communists are God-less. The only faith they have is in a system of existence which gives value to nothing. That is not for Americans, for they have given value to all things.

It is possible to use military force when necessary, though we do not want to do so. It is necessary in some instances in order that we exist. But it is not necessary to bow to militarism - contrary to American principle - by resorting to universal military training, giving to every man a taint of destruction. We call it a means of preserving our security, but actually, in the final analysis, it is but instruction in destruction. How can we reconcile preparedness in destruction with "preservation." How can we preserve by relying on methods of destruction?

If we have faith in our American principles - which are basically Christian principles - which is but another way of saying, "If we have faith in God," we will face every problem with definite standards with which to govern our actions. If we have faith in those standards, we will not have far to look for the answers to our problems.

July 4, 1776 - the Declaration of Independence - the "Faith of Our Fathers."

July 4, 1955 - is that faith forgotten?

Brickbats To Bouquets

Ordinarily, when a commodity goes up in price, the reaction is not complimentary.

While we are not reacting in an approving manner with this writing in response to the raise in the resident rates for local telephone users, we do want to comment in an affirmative manner on the improvement in telephone facilities.

A few years back we voiced public disapproval of the first of several raises which have gone into effect. At that time the voice of dissention was justified since we were yet using the old "crankers" that hung on the walls in most cases and the results obtained from the equipment in general did not merit the price paid for service. However, since that time the General Telephone Company has installed new equipment and the contrast in the intervening few years is now quite remarkable. It has not been just that company's efforts that have made our telephones more useful, however. The telephone industry in general has made great strides in improving the public service which they perform.

It is possible to make long-distance calls in a matter of seconds with the present system and the clarity of conversation over the long-distance wires leaves little to be desired. There are some instances when it is necessary to strain the ear to hear, even on some comparatively near-by calls, but that is to be expected due to the many exchanges operated by different companies which may not have the same type of equipment or may not have made as many improvements as yet.

The forty-cent raise in the resident rate, though small, may make it impractical for some to keep service in their homes. That is a matter for the individual to decide since it is a matter of use which determines whether or not a telephone is needed. The business rate is "high," too, or perhaps even "too high" as some may think. But then it is not the telephone company which has the final say in determining the rate, but the Indiana Public Service Commission. If the commission gives an "ok" to a raise, then it must mean that the raise is justified though we consumers may not think so.

At any rate (and that is not intended to be a pun) we offer a compliment to the telephone industry and the General Telephone Company for their improved facilities and service.

The guaranteed annual wage scheme and the unemployment and social security taxes on employers are violations of the constitutional rights and human dignity of the very people who think they are getting something for nothing. The individual workman has a manly duty to save a portion of hs earnings for rainy days and for his old age. He maintains noisily that he is a man, as good as any other man. But the union insists—and Ford and General Motors agree—that he is not man enough to discipline himself and live up to his own responsibilities.

There are fakers in the political union movement and sociological quacks among the employers who insist that the inherent clash of the interests of labor and management is a repudiated bogey of the past. They are talking a mixture of Socialism and Facism. If they had the honesty to say that they want Socialism and Facism we who believe in the Constitution could join the issue and oppose them more effectively. Under Mussolini, Italian labor, as a political entity, was a phase of the state. Capital, or management, was another phase of the same state. We are imitating facist Italy now in many important fields as any honest mind will perceive after comparison of that system with ours.

The real theory behind the so-called guaranteed annual wage is that the individual Amercan worker is so irresponsible and improvident that he cannot be trusted to abstain from luxuries beyond his earning capacity. So he finds himself broke when he is laid off or fired. The luxuries are automobiles, booze, bets, entertainment, expensive vacations at resorts, days of idleness taken because he is lazy, because he wants to hunt or fish or because he has a hangover from boozing on liquor bought with money which he should have saved. Airlines invite the worker to travel now and pay later. He wants to be a little Vanderbilt. He shoots the works and when the lay-off or illness comes he applies to the "state" to pay his doctor bills and hospital bills. Or he looks to the union which has been hijacking employers for "contributions" to "welfare" insurance policies, written, as often as not, by crooked companies in collusion with crooked union bosses. It is argued that the employer has a voice in "welfare" policies but actually the employer is helpless so he keeps his mouth shut about the crooked "welfare" deal and thus seems to be a willing and active party.

Does anyone believe that Ford gave in willingly to the same union which drenched

Michigan with the blood of workers in the civil war waged under the patronage of Roosevelt to drive the workers into the union? Does anyone believe that General Motors gave in as an act of good citizenship and good management? G. M. has many cans of 16 MM. film shot from factory windows showing bloody riots waged by this same union under the same executives with whom it recently shook hands.

Management takes a great deal unto itself in submitting to these great grabs. Management is actually giving up rights which belong to the whole people of these 48 states. It does so at gun-point to escape strikes which would give one company great advantage over others. Management is less at fault, however, than the governments of the United States and of the several states, individually. These combined governments have given a few union bosses a monopoly of labor. By this monopoly power, these bosses have been able to threaten these great auto concerns with disastrous strikes. The executives of the companies are great personal rivals. They will yield almost anything to the labor monopolists rather than be struck and come to the end of a year trailing a rival company by hundreds of thousands of cars and millions of dollars of sales. But, in submitting to Reuther's demands, they sacrifice rights which do not belong to them nor to their companies nor, exclusively, to their own employees.

These submissions are going to be built into the prices of their products and the whole public foots the bill. Management is shifting a new burden onto the state unemployment funds which are a tax on millions of small employers. They are chaining the worker to his job lest he sacrifice his "seniority" and "status." Thus they impair his freedom of action. They chain a worker to one particular industry.

The guaranteed annual wage will cause inflation and send up the prices of automobiles which, for a long time, were coming into the market at lower and lower prices. There is no cheap car now but there is a cheap dollar. The automobile industry and Reuther have a power over all of us which no combination ever held before.

If the workman's pay is not enough to permit saving, the proper way would have been to raise his pay, and make him meet his own responsibilities—like the man he professes to be.

—Westbrook Pegler.

It is very difficult for many persons to remain calm when Walter Reuther's name is mentioned, but some of his most ardent critics have done him a favor by overstating the victory he won in his GM and Ford negotiations.

In fact, Reuther must be laughing at the manner in which his enemies are building him up. Reuther announced more than a year ago that he was going after a guaranteed annual wage in the automobile industry and that nohing would stop him. He did not get an annual guaranteed wage and he did take less than what he said he was going to demand, yet his critics say he got it, undermining any criticism that might come from his own ranks for his having failed to attain his objective.

Mr. Reuther did not get an annual guaranteed wage. What he got was an employer-paid supplement to state compensation benefits for a 26-week period, these supplemental benefits to be paid, if needed, a year from now and on a basis related to the amount of unemployment benefits in the respective states and to "credit weeks" for each affected employe.

The critics of Reuther say, "Nuts, it's all the same thing: he's got his foot in the door and next year or the year after, he will get the guaranteed annual wage that he has been talking about." That kind of talk is exactly what builds up Reuther even more than he is already built up.

It covers up his limited victory by saying it was a complete victory and if he is going to get his guaranteed annual wage in a year or so, it must follow that he hasn't got it yet. You don't cut down a labor leader's reputation by saying that he is invincible or by saying that he has scored a knockout when he only threw a glancing left punch off the shoulder.

The net gain that Reuther made in his supplementary unemployment benefits is that he got Ford and GM to agree to pay benefits directly to their employes in addition to the benefits which they have been paying indirectly through the states. Unemployment benefits in this state, as elsewhere, are levied directly on employers and collected from them by the states, and are then paid out by the states.

The principle of unemployment compensation, whether right or wrong, sound or unsound, was accepted when the states set up unemployment benefit funds. But the money paid in by employers to state unemployment reserves is money which is construed by them as labor costs and represents money which would be available for wages directly, if not earmarked by the state.

The manner in which Reuther's critics are building him up is certain to backfire on them because it is hard to contend now that Reuther has won his guaranteed annual wage plan and then look forward to saying that he is about to win it next year or three years from now. These critics should be factual. They should confine themselves to saying that at this time, Reuther has gained for those he represents only a supplementary unemployment benefits plan. If you overstate your case, you frequently lose it and that is what many critics of Reuther are doing. What the future holds no one knows, but it is not to say that Reuther is going to take over the country. If he does, it will be because his most ardent enemies built him up.

"Good Evening," Clifford B. Ward.

The U. S. Government is belly-deep in the food business. I've traveled thousands of miles to take a look. It's been an eyeful—seven billion dollars' worth of surplus wheat, corn, rice, butter, cheese and dry milk stored away safe from the open market.

Who pays for these surplus foods? You and I and every American taxpayer. Do we get to eat them? No. A huge and unprofitable Government organization called the Commodity Credit Corp. keeps these foodstuffs out of circulation to protect favored sections of our agriculture from price competition. CCC functions as our price-support bank.

My secretary recently complained about the high price of bread and breakfast cereals for her family: she thought we had been raising bumper crops of wheat. I asked her whether she knew about CCC. "No," she said, "but doesn't it have something to do with gambling on the stock exchange?"

The CCC is not concerned with gambling. On the contrary, it is trying to take the gambling out of much of American agriculture. The CCC offers an insatiable market for those crops covered by the farm price-support program, buying up all the surplus beyond what the free market can absorb at prices considered fair to farmers. It withholds these surpluses from sale to keep the price up, and may dispose of them only at times and in ways that won't depress the market. This guarantees farmers a fair return, but also encourages them to pile up ever more unmanageable surpluses.

Today this colossal food corporation has over seven billion dollars invested in surplus commodities or in commodity loans. It owns or has under loan 1.2 billion bushels of wheat —enough to take care of all our people and all our animals, plus what we need for export, for two full years. It owns enough butter to supply our total population for two months, enough cheese to feed us for three months. The next freight train you see may be loaded with surplus food routed safely away from your supermarket. Hungry people please look the other way.

In the Fulton Market Cold Storage Co. in Chicago, H. C. Burrus, plant superintendent, showed me 14 million pounds of Government butter stored in below-zero rooms. Packed in 60-pound cubes, it has been there for almost two years.

In the same building Burrus showed me nearly two million pounds of surplus Cheddar cheese, in 75-pound cylindrical hoops. Some of the cheese has been there since 1953. This storage plant is only one of hundreds the CCC has filled in our great milk-producing areas.

Our Government is in the rice business, too. Stashed away in warehouses in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, CCC owns 10,500,000 100-pound bags of rice. In Crowley, western Louisiana, a town that calls itself the rice capital of the world, warehouses were bulging with rice no one wants to buy now that Oriental markets have been shut off. But the farmers go right on planting. As a result, more warehouses are needed. Six new storage bins are being built on the edge of town.

I asked one of the best-informed men in the area why they keep planting rice in face of mounting surpluses. Why don't they turn their land to raising marketable cattle? "Because they've been rice planters all their lives and don't intend to change," he said.

A reluctance to adjust to consumer demands is typical of farmers all over our fertile land. For example, although we as a nation are using less tobacco, and although synthetic fabrics are crowding cotton, tobacco planters and cotton growers are among God's chillun when it comes to price supports. CCC has more than two million pounds of surplus tobacco on its hands and well over a billion dollars' worth of cotton.

But the investment alone is only part of the surplus story. Just to store these foods costs American citizens $700,000 every day in the year. By law, CCC must use commercial elevators and warehouses for surplus when space is available. The Norris Elevator in South Chicago is typical of the 15,000 commercial elevators that have signed a uniform grain-storage agreement with CCC. The main tower and its 58 great storage tanks rise near Lake Michigan. Cups on an endless belt lift grain from barges into bins where it is weighed and then routed on conveyors into the storage tanks. Every day more barges come up the Illinois River from the corn fields. Superintendent J. T. Goetzinger told me his elevator held 700,000 bushels of corn belonging to CCC, but only 200,000 bushels privately owned.

One of the largest grain elevators on the Great Lakes is at Superior, Wis., operated by the Farmers Union Grain Terminal Assn. Its cluster of white concrete tanks holds 12,- 500,000 bushels—nearly eight million of them belonging to CCC. At the FUGTA plants in Minneapolis, 65 percent of the grain is owned by CCC. The St. Paul terminal is 60 percent filled with CCC grain.

Because there is not enough commercial space, CCC has to find other hideaways for its surplus. So the Government has gone into the storage business and erected bins in 28 states.

Throughout grain-producing areas CCC bins dominate the small towns. The new ones are made of corrugated steel, take up to 40,000 bushels, and can hold grain off the market as long as six years. The little farm community of Peotone in northeastern Illinois has 40 of these steel bins set up in rows at the edge of town. At Fairmont in the rolling Minnesota countryside the traveler sees more of these bins near green fields of corn and soybeans.

This summer as you and your family drive through the lush grain country and gaze at these dome-shaped bins mushrooming near little towns, remember that the federal government has spent nearly 200 million dollars to build 185,000 of them, and is spending $200,000 a day to keep them in operation.

But it takes more than commercial warehouses and CCC bins to hold our rising tide of surplus grain. We also have nearly two million tons stored in ships at a cost of $25,000 a day. CCC has wheat in 112 Reserve Fleet ships on the James River in Virginia, and in 130 ships at two Pacific Coast points. At Jones Point on the Hudson River, 40 miles from New York, 450,000 tons of wheat lie in the holds of 70 ships left over from World War II.

David J. Ryan, grain supervisor for the Hudson River fleet, and I climbed aboard the ghostly Lord Delaware which, like its 69 sister grain ships, has been stripped of all navigating gear, lifeboats and lines. Down in the dark hold lay a lake of wheat. Five men crawled over the grain, inserting long thermometers and pulling up samples to check for insect infestation. They make this inspection at least once every two weeks. When necessary, the grain is fumigated.

During the winter an electric-fan system circulates cold air through the holds, chilling the wheat so thoroughly it stays cool all summer. Ryan says that with constant vigilance his grain may remain in good condition for four to five years. I tried to figure how many loaves of bread could be made from the 40 million dollars' worth of wheat squirreled away in this Hudson River fleet.

The Government has made an effort to slow down the relentless wheat combines. It cut parity from 90 percent to 82 1-2 percent this year under the flexible price-support program. That's a dip from $2.24 to $2.06 a bushel. But political pressure is massing against flexible supports.

Congress has also cut our 1955 national wheat-acreage allotment to 55 million acres. But scientific research now makes it possible to grow more wheat per acre than ever before. We don't need 55 million acres to produce our normal supply of wheat. With our present surplus, we need only 19 million.

So overproduction goes on. No one in Washington has enough public backing to dam the mounting flood. Many of our four million politically strong farmers seem to believe in free enterprise only for non-agricultural producers.

CCC tries desperately to get rid of some of the millions of tons of stored food. Between July 1 and December 31 of last year we donated to schools, charitable institutions and needy persons 243 million pounds of food worth 83 million dollars. During the same six-month period we gave away nearly 66 million dollars' worth of food to the people of 41 nations overseas.

The United States is also selling food to Turkey, Yugoslavia, Japan and other friendly countries at fire-sale rates. CCC is authorized to lose up to 700 million dollars over three years on this venture and get its money back from the treasury.

It would be cheaper to destroy all our surplus foods. Moral considerations block that thrifty course. The Administration's philosophy is to get as much as possible of these foods into human stomachs—free, at bargain prices or by barter. But if surpluses are disposed of in this country, merchants are outraged; dumped abroad they depress foreign economies. Besides, shipment of any quantities abroad would be both costly and impractical. The law provides that 50 percent of these shipmens must go in American bottoms. As CARE points out in its booklet, "Feast and Famine," to move our surplus food overseas would require the dispatch of ten freighters every day for a year; even to move the food to our port cities would require 100 freight trains a day for that period.

It is time we took a critical look at our agricultural policy. It's out of date. Today we live in the beef-steak era. Our consumption of wheat and other cereals has been dropping steadily. But we go right on spending billions to keep the agricultrual clock turned back.

In a country that boasts of its free enterprise, our federal government operates one of the most unprofitable food corporations in the world. It is profligate in its efforts to shield farmers from the risks of free competition. By keeping food prices high, it works against the taxpayers who support it.

This Mad Hatter situation sits down at every man's dinner table. It touches the pocketbook of every taxpayer. Sooner or later we must ask ourselves, "What Price Too Much Food?"

—Gaynor Maddix, Food and Markets Editor, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

G. K. Chesterton once said that the meanest fear is the fear of sentimentality. How often it robs life of grace and sweetness! Because we are afraid people will think us "soft" we hide our tenderness under a cloak of sophistication. We say "Thanks," when we mean, "God bless you," and "So long," when we mean "I'll be lonely without you." Too many of us condemn true sentiment along with sentimentality, and so live on the surface of things when we really want to speak and act from the heart.

Who does not remember moments when warm and loving words struggled for utterance and were caught back and replaced by something meaningless? We think we are sophisticated when we are casual and unsentimental, but the truth is that trying to live without sentiment is like trying to live in a world without flowers or music or the warmth of a fire.

Sentiment, says Mr. Webster, is "tender susceptibility." Stop and think how much of what is lovely in life begins in the graces of that tender feeling. And it is sentiment which sends us to friends and neighbors with outstretched hands so that we steadily widen the circle of the human beings we know and care about. And it is sentiment which makes a marriage and a family. For sentiment is to a marriage what good will is to a business—the intangible factor, worth more than every "practical" consideration. No marriage was ever destroyed by it; hundreds have been shattered by the matter-of-factness which is its converse.

Who is there so wise, so strong, that he does not need tenderness?

"We are all lonely under the stars," writes Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' Church in Washington. "All strangers and sojourners here on earth." If then we can each of us make for the other a space of warmth and comfort, is that so litle a thing?

There is a story of John Carmichael, the Scottish minister, who came to his first church very young and frightened. He felt that he was doing badly and that his people were looking at him with pity and contempt. And then, one day, to his terror, the stern elders of his Scottish kirk filed solemnly into the vestry.

But they had not come to reprove him. They had come to tell him not to be afraid. "Next Sabbath before you begin to speak," they said, "we ask you to say to yourself, 'They're all loving me.' And it will be true. From the oldest to the youngest, we will all be loving you very much."

A few years ago a group of young medical students were training in the children's ward of a large western hospital. One particular student seemed to be especially loved by the children. They always greeted him with joy. The others could not understand why. Finally they detailed one of their number to follow him and find out what it was about him that attracted the children.

The observer detected nothing until night, when the young medic made his last round. Then the mystery was solved. He kissed every child good night.

In the end, civilization may be more grateful to its lovers and poets than to its statesmen, for it is they who keep alive what is truly human. And it is this gentle human individual thing which can reach out to bind people together across the barriers of race and tongue and ancient resentment.

In the last years of his life, Robert Louis Stevenson lived on the island of Samoa. When his friend Mataafa, the Samoan chieftain, was put in prison by European authorities, Stevenson, though he was then ill and tired, went again and again to visit him. Always he brought some little gift.

Deeply moved by this kindness, the Samoans labored long hours to build a road for Stevenson. And when he died they buried him high on a hilltop and made a rule that no firearms should ever be used on the hill, because they wanted him to sleep in peace.

Back of nearly every humanitarian advance is somebody's sentimental motivation. When Dr. Fredrick Banting, discoverer of insulin, was a small boy on a Canadian farm, he had a beloved playmate named Janie, who played hockey and baseball with him, skated, ran races and climbed trees. Then one summer Janie suddenly could do none of these things. She died, of "sugar in the blood." Frederick Banting never forgot. Later, moved to service, he went on into medicine. And today millions of diabetics live because he cared about Janie.

Only little people fear to display true sentiment. The great are at home with it as they are with the beauty and wonder of life. Ralph Waldo Emerson lovingly visited the grave of his young wife every day for two years; and though he was one of the great intellects of his time, ordinary people in lecture audiences felt at home with him. "We are simple folk here," a Lexington woman said, "but we understand Mr. Emerson because he speaks directly to our hearts."

Once Eleanor Roosevelt asked Bernard Baruch for advice on a problem that was troubling her. "My mind tells me to do it," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "but my heart tells me not to do it."

"When in doubt, follow your heart and not your mind," was Baruch's counsel. "When you make a mistake of the heart, you don't feel so bad."

If great people are not afraid of sentiment, then why are we? I think it is because we have been brought up to live our lives in compartments. Sentiment does not belong in business, we say. It does not belong in science, or it does not belong even in our thinking about ourselves.

The trouble is that the habits of mind which deprive us of the grace of sentiment grow more constricting every year. "No child is born with a really cold heart," wrote Lin Yutang. This unpleasant trait is so thoroughly an adult fault that we often confuse coldness with maturity.

What a sorry comment on our wisdom that we should deliberately choke down what is warmest and best in us! And the rewards of our sophistication are meager, for lack of sentiment does not so much make us objective and wise as cold of heart, insensitive and fearful of life.

How can we keep sentiment alive, especially as we grow older? How can we restore the grace of sentiment once it seems to have fled?

Our first project should be one of personal inventory. There are many hidden motivations behind our fear of sentiment. The next time you discard a warm and generous "sentimental impulse," ask yourself: "From what am I protecting myself and why? Was it honesty that impelled me, or the wish to pose as a sophisticate? Or the fear of being misunderstood?"

Once these questions have been honestly answered, we will shed some of our false fears. To be sure, it is important not to "gush," not to say what we do not mean. But it is even more important to reject shrewdness and suspicion and respond to the sweet and moving things of life.

Perhaps our greatest obstacle is the lack of leisure. Sentiment cannot live in an atmosphere of clock watching and getting ahead. Nothing indeed can gentle and sweeten our lives more than the deliberate setting aside of time for those things which have no "foreseeable practical value." It is in the little things that sentiment is at its best—in the unexpected letter of appreciation we write to a friend whom we saw only yesterday; in the gift given simply because "this reminds me of you."

Just as they have the heart for sentiment, great people always somehow have the time as well. Ernie Pyle, the beloved war correspondent, never was too busy or to harried with columns and deadlines to sit down and listen to the woes of a lonely soldier, or to write letters home for wounded boys.

Surely the time is there. It is how we use it that counts. Once in one of my father's little country pastorates, a farmer's wife died, a plain good woman who had brought up a fine family of sons and daughters. They had all grown and gone away and after she had struggled on alone for a few years with the silent, gnarled man who was her husband, she simply collapsed over the washtub one day. At the funeral, her husband did not weep; and he made no sign of grief as he plodded to the grave.

But when the ceremony was over he lingered behind to talk to his pastor. He had a small shabby book in his hand and now he held it out. "It's poems," he said numbly. "She liked them. Would you read one for her now? She always wanted us to read them together. But I never had time. Every day on a farm they was always things to do. But I got to thinking, nobody's doing them today, and it don't seem to matter. I guess you don't get it into your head what time's for until it's too late."

He was right. It is a matter of priorities—of what we are willing to pay for the gentle ties which we know in our hearts we would not forfeit for any amount of money. In our terrifying and impersonal world, what fools we are if we do not keep alive the little candles, the lovely light of sentiment!

To Our Friends and Neighbors Everywhere
Our Company's plan of furnishing a new automobile to each employee every year has made available a number of low mileage 1955 Cstom V-8 Ford Sedans, both 2-door and 4-door models, some with Fordomatic. These cars are like new and priced very reasonable. The plan in selling them to our friends and neighbors has worked so well for the past year that we have decided to continue the same plan instead of selling them to automobile dealers.
Your present car will be accepted in exchange.
We like to think of our payment plan as "terms with a heart." Up to 36 months will be considered. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our cooperation in case an extension of a payment is needed. We do not sell your note.

The Bible Speaks

Background Scripture: Jeremiah 22:36; II Kings 23:31—24:7.

Devotional Reading: Jeremiah 1:14-19.

PATRIOTISM

Lesson for July 3, 1955

Is a man subversive if he—has an international outlook?

fails to conform to popular styles of patriotism?
will not promise to support every war in which his country engages?
speaks out against his nation's sins?

In this year of grace 1955, men who fill the above qualifications are cried down as subversive. Perhaps it has always been so. But in the sight of God, some such men have been honored above their stone-throwing fellow-citizens. One such person of record had what most people would call a "bad" record. He had been accused of subversive activities. He had predicted defeat for his nation while at war, and had publicly advised surrender. He had a record of jail sentences. He just missed being executed, several times; and finally died, as tradition says, at the hands of a lynching party. Nevertheless he was one of God's great prophets. His name was Jeremiah.

Professional Patriots

Jeremiah's chief enemies were also called prophets by their contemporaries. History calls them false prophets, though to the "man in the street" of that time they seemed to be the true ones. The false prophets did not really have a word from the Lord. Their words were suggested by what the people wanted to hear. Their sermons were suggested by their wish for a good income. Not long ago an American organization, professedly patriotic, was selling mottoes to put on automobiles, reading "The only good Ism is Americanism," or some such phrase. The decals with that motto were selling like hot cakes, for people did not like to seem unpatriotic by refusing to buy and carry a slogan like that. But the mayor of the city investigated and as a result the sale of the things was stopped. He discovered that an advertising agency was getting 75 percent of the money and the "patriotic" organization 25 per cent. The real promoters were not patriots, they were profiteers. They would have sold any motto at all for a 75 percent rake-off. Not every one who hollers for his country is a patriot.

Justice For All

Nevertheless, just as glass "diamonds" don't make real diamonds impossible, so false prophets do not destroy the truth of real prophets, and false patriotism does not do away with true love of one's country. That man Jeremiah was a real patriot. This is to say, he had a real love for his people and his land. (Incidentally, he was one of the first persons to call mistreatment of the soil a sin.) The word "prosperity" has a magic sound for most minds. Jeremiah was tough enough to ask questions about the prosperity some people had in his time. He threw pitiless light on the fact that some few were getting rich at the expense of the many. He had what seemed a strange idea, though it turned out to be true, that the very wealth which was piled up in the palaces of Jerusalem was an unhealthy sign, for to use modern language, the wealth was badly distributed. Most of his fellow-countrymen were underpaid, many of them were slaves, while the king and his court were rolling in luxury. True patriotism asks as Jeremiah did: What is happening to the people, all the people? and not simply: Am I getting ahead?

Leadership

Jeremiah preached to the people, but some of his most important messages were directed to the leaders of his nation, the king, the princes, the priest. He knew that the men at the top make the policies which affect the masses. Jeremiah's preaching failed to stave off the end which he predicted for the men at the top did not change their ways. The success or failure of a nation depends on the stamina and character of the people, but especially of the leaders. No one can consider himself patriotic who votes for a second-rate candidate for public office if a first-rate candidate is available.

Chevrolet's special hill-flatteners!

180 H.P. V8

See that fine fat mountain yonder?

You can iron it out, flat as a flounder . . . and easy as whistling!

Just point one of Chevrolet's special hill-flatteners at it (either the 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire V8" or the 180-h.p. "Super Turbo-Fire"*) . . . and pull the trigger!

Barr-r-r-r-o-o-O-O-OOM! Mister, you got you a flat mountain!

. . . At least it feels flat. For here are engines that sing as sweetly as a dynamo . . . built to pour out a torrent of pure, vibrationless power. Big-bore V8's with the shortest stroke in the industry.

So most of the time they loaf. Even at the speed limit they just dream along, purring out a fraction of their strength.

An engineer can understand why they are so hyper-efficient. But you don't have to be an engineer to know that these are the sweetest running V8's you ever piloted. Just come in and try one out!

*Optional at extra cost.

VOLUME LXX | ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, July 7, 1955 | NUMBER 27

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, whadaya know.

One day last week with the radio turned on to WOWO the man (Bob Sievers or Cal Stewart) said "-- Mrs. Simpson."

I pricked my ears up to hear her select Mrs. Paul Moore as her "good neighbor" for the station program of the same name.

I don't think Mrs. Moore knew the answer to the jackpot question but she got a prize anyhow.

—Just like Mrs. Amstutz "never wins anything." When in Chicago recently at a furniture show, she registered for a drawing. Today came a letter informing her that she had won a kitchen stool.

Must be something wrong with my ears. Everybody else says that commotion Ford Jackson and our neighbors have been raising in the little house on the corner across from ours is noise from hammers, saws, nails, etc. It doesn't sound like noise to me at all. It sounds more like bells—wedding bells.

"Oh, dear," said Edith to Glen, "I wish you wouldn't tinker with things you don't understand. Ever since you fixed the clock the cuckoo backs out and asks, 'What time is it?' "

Bruce Baker hauled off and threw a haymaker in a letter to yours truly from the Far East. He has some rather frank observations about Marine life and enclosed a poem which he wanted published in the paper. Like I said, it's pretty frank —too point-blank, maybe, to put in print here even though it voices someone's opinion.

If you want to read it, stop in at the News Office—it's on the bulletin board.

Bruce says he is receiving letters from several of the girls from home—something he requested in a previous letter. He also wonders "How is the traffic in St. Joe now that us wild drivers are in the service?"

—That poem is a lulu!

—Good to see "Toad" Laux percolatin' again.

The honeymoon's really over when he phones that he'll be late for dinner—and she's already left a note that it's in the refrigerator.

Band Enters State Fair Competition

Riverdale High School has officially entered the 1955 Indiana State Fair band parade and contest to be held at the fairgrounds in front of the grandstand September 1. The contest will begin at 9:00 a.m. CST.

The band will be No. 73 in the parade and will be under the direction of Miss Betty Boggs. Bands are given a parade number according to the post mark of their entry.

Riverdale will be trying for a part of the $600 in cash awards given to the top 20 bands. All bands taking part in the contest will receive a beautiful Participation Certificate, according to State Fair Publicity Director John Schermerhorn.

On the official entry blank signed by the band director and principal Ben Simpson, the number of band members was given as 30. They also listed a drum major and two baton twirlers and a color guard.

Anyone who attends the fair on Thursday, September 1, may watch the parade and contest from a free seat in the grandstand. There is room for 14,000 people to see the parade from a good seat.

The 1954 contest, with 64 participating bands, was won by Jasper High School with Franklin, Central of Muncie and Noblesville second, third and fourth respectively.

Services Held For Aletha Kinsey

Final rites were conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Johnson Funeral Home in Butler for Mrs. Aletha J. Kinsey, 83, a lifelong resident of the St. Joe community.

The mother of Mrs. Catherine Bowser, also of St. Joe, Mrs. Kinsey died Sunday morning at 9:05 in the home of another daughter, Mrs. John Willit, of Woodburn. She had been ill for three years and died of senility. She was taken to the Woodburn residence nine weeks ago.

Mrs. Kinsey was born in Concord Township on December 26, 1871, the daughter of the late Charles and Laurinda Johnson Jenkins. She married George Kinsey in Spencerville on July 10, 1891. Her husband preceded her in death.

Survivors include two other daughters, Mrs. Velma Mahoney of New Philadelphia, O., and Mrs. Inez Girardot of Fort Wayne; two sons, Walter Kinsey of Jackson, Mich., and Harry Kinsey of Wolcottville; 12 grandchildren; 19 great-grandchildren; and two brothers, Harry Jenkins of Fort Wayne and Fred Jenkins of Roanoke.

Mrs. Kinsey was a member of the Methodist Church at St. Joe.

Donald Foust officiated at Wednesday's services and burial was in Riverside Cemetery at St. Joe.

FAIR TICKETS ON SALE

Just as the first crocus heralds the coming of spring, the display of State Fair advance tickets on store counters throughout Indiana this week was a good sign that Hoosierland's Greatest Show was near.

More than 240 locations began sale of 250,000 bargain tickets this week to the 1955 Indiana State Fair, August 31 through September 9.

Purchasers of the advance tickets will save one-third the regular admission price of 60 cents with the purchase of the 40-cent ticket. The advance ticket is good for one car or one person to enter the fairgrounds. Tickets will be on sale until August 30.

The advance sale of admission tickets at a reduced price has several advantages to the person who buys the ticket and to the State Fair. Ticket buyers save 20 cents on each admission and the advance ticket helps speed up their entry into the fairgrounds since no change must be made.

The advance ticket sale acts as a barometer to show the interest in the fair and the sale of tickets acts as rain insurance against bad weather.

Youth, 24, Dies Of Heart Attack

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. for Charles LaVerne Freeburn, 24, son of Mrs. Emma Freeburn of St. Joe and Glenwood Freeburn, Sr., of Colorado Springs, Colo.

The young man was found early Saturday morning slumped in the front seat of an automobile parked in front of his home. Death has been unofficially attributed to a heart attack.

The deceased and his brother, Richard, had driven to Butler Friday evening and visited taverns there. At approximately 11:45 p.m. they entered Rex's Tavern and sat down with two couples and each was served two beers. While at the tavern a discussion concerning baseball led to an argument between the heart attack victim and one of the men at the table. A scuffle outside the tavern resulted but no blows were reported struck.

The brothers returned to their car shortly after midnight. Charles remained in the car, then, as Richard returned briefly to the tavern. Richard drove home. He said his brother did not complain of illness but was drowsy and slept part of the way.

At about 1:30 a.m. the boys arrived in St. Joe. Richard went into the house while Charles remained in the car, saying he would be in shortly. This he had done on previous occasions. Richard went to bed and was not aware that his brother had not come into the house until 6 a.m. Saturday when his mother inquired as to Charles' whereabouts. She found his body in the car.

The sheriff's office reported Thursday that a blood sample sent to the state police for analysis showed alcoholic content of .22 percent. Standards set up by police for enforcement purposes indicate anyfigure over .15 percent means the person is under the influence of alcohol.

There were no marks on the body except slight abrasions on the right ankle and right elbow, indicating that Charles might have fallen Friday night or sometime earlier.

Dr. Perry Reynolds, county coroner, set the time of death at sometime between 3 a.m. and 4 a.m. Saturday. Extensive investigation by the sheriff's department and the examination by the coroner have disclosed no evidence other than that pointing to death through natural causes. There have been rumors of a "fight" at the tavern following the baseball argument, but statements by six witnesses given to the sheriff's department state that no blows were struck or seen struck and the "fight" was but a slight scuffle.

Charles had not been ill and had worked as usual as his job Friday at International Harvester in Fort Wayne.

Rev. Philip Barnhart officiated at the services Tuesday at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in St. Joe. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

The deceased was born in St. Joe and lived in the community all his life. He served in the U. S. Navy and was a member of the American Legion. He was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church at St. Joe.

Survivors besides the parents and the brother include another brother, Glenwood, Jr. of St. Joe; two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Haverstock of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Effiebel McCann of St. Joe; and his grandmother, Mrs. Charles Freeburn of Fort Wayne.

Lodge Installs Kenneth Coburn In State Office

Pythian Lodges, Pythian Sister temples, Dokeys, Nomads of Avrudaka and Pythian Sunshine Girls from all parts of Indiana participated in the parade.

Otto R. Shuman of Waterloo, supreme outer guard, was the installing officer.

Lenard Dickinson, Madison County farmer and fraternalist, was installed as grand chancellor of the order.

W. S. C. S.

The Methodist W.S.C.S. met at the home of Gladys Wasson on the afternoon of June 22.

Ruth Brewer served as cohostess.

After the business meeting the group enjoyed an illustrated talk by Miss Bonnie Witt, who works and teaches in the Mountain Mission Home and School at Grundy, Va. With Miss Witt was Norma Trout, a student at the school. She sang their school song and told what the home means to unfortunate children.

A large group enjoyed the summer day and the delicious refreshments.

Background Scripture: Habakkuk.

Devotional Reading: Habakkuk 3:2-4, 17-19.

GOD IN DARK DAYS

Lesson for July 10, 1955

Sometimes we envy the serene faith of the prophets of old. If so, it shows we have not read the prophets carefully, for some of them had a faith that was anything but serene. Jeremiah was one of those. Habakkuk was another. Habakkuk lived during the dark days at the end of the time of the little kingdom of Judah. Reading his opening lines, one might think he had been reading our morning papers in 1955. "Why dost thou make me see wrongs and look upon trouble? Destruction and violence are before me; strife and contention arise. So law is slacked and justice never goes forth. . . ." Why does God let such things go on?

This Is Hard To Believe

Habakkuk asked the same question; and got an answer from God that the Lord told him he would hardly believe. Not only was the local scene, in Jerusalem and Judea, dark with violence and injustice, but the farther horizon was darker still. Out of the east the newly resurgent Babylonian empire was rising. Now empires seldom rise peacefully. They come to power with the uproar and the agonies of war. Empires arise by crushing smaller kingdoms, and Babylon was no exception. If you had asked any wide-awake Hebrew of Habakkuk's time, "What is the greatest national danger you see threatening your country?," he would probably have said, "The imperial ambitions of Babylon." Most Hebrews would have said that the Babylonians, or Chaldeans as they are often called, were the enemies of God's people. But Habakkuk is told something God says is hard to believe: "I am rousing the Chaldeans." That bitter, hasty, terrible, violent, godless nation, whose only god was their own might,—God was arousing that nation to punish Judah for Judah's sins. What was God going to do about the violence and injustice in Judah? He was going to wipe it out, wipe it off the face of the ground . . . and use the Chaldeans to do it with.

Is The Remedy Worse Than The Disease?

We can see from reading the second part of Habakkuk's first chapter that he could not understand, at first, how God could do such a thing as arousing the Chaldeans. How can God use devilish men to accomplish divine purposes? Is it conceivable that a God who is the Holy One, who cannot look on wrong,—is it conceivable that such a God would be silent while the ruthless and cruel armies of the invaders were capturing men and treasure, cities and villages, as a fisherman takes everything in his net? Nevertheless, it has often been true that God's good purpose has been set forward by men who did not know nor obey him. When Joseph's brothers sold him into Egypt as a slave, they intended no good by it. Their only motives were greed, cruelty, jealousy and revenge. But God brought good out of it. War is a terrible thing; but as Lincoln suggested, it is quite possible to believe that the horrors of a civil war are God's way of punishing a nation for the injustice of slavery. If a nation will not listen to its true prophets and repent, God can use sterner measures.

Faith Endures

Habakkuk, pursuing bravely his questioning of God, comes out at last to two illuminating thoughts which the Lord gave him. (It may be noted in passing that sometimes the questioning mind gets answered when the unquestioning mind does not.) One is that in dark days, when God is not to be seen, the man of faith must wait. "God does not settle all his accounts in October." The answer to life's riddles is not always given immediately. God's signature can be seen at the end, though not always do we recognize his handwriting at first. The other thought was this: The man of faith must not give up his faith. For faith has the power of enduring life. God may use a "bitter and hasty nation" to punish another sinful one. But God judges all nations, Chaldea and Judea, alike. Seen in the light of history, we can perceive as a fact what Habakkuk could see only with his inward eye: that the God-defying conquering Chaldean nation would vanish soon, with a trace, while the little conquered people of the Hebrews would survive, because in them was the undying seed of faith.

COUNTY CHORUS WINS $50 AND RECOGNITION

The DeKalb County Home Demonstration chorus will receive a special certificate of recognition and $50 for its treasury when it appears as one of eight county choruses at the 1955 Indiana State Fair under sponsorship of the Indiana Farmers Guide.

In sponsoring the appearances of the eight county choruses, the Farmers Guide pays tribute to the contribution Indiana's singing homemakers make to rural community life. The individual chorus performance will be in addition to the appearance of the combined Indiana Home Demonstration Chorus under the direction of Purdue's Albert P. Stewart at the State Fair on Sunday, September 4.

The long week-end holiday took its toll from our records in Bible School and Church last Lord's Day, but we are urging all our folk to be back in their place this coming Sunday. All of you that missed last Sunday missed something and we all missed you. God missed you and so did your Lord Jesus Christ.

Good hearers are as necessary as good preachers. The great apostle Paul said: "We ought to give the more earnest heed to the things that were heard, lest haply we drift away from them" (Heb. 2:1).

To Our Friends and Neighbors Everywhere

Our Company's plan of furnishing a new automobile to each employee every year has made available a number of low mileage 1955 Cstom V-8 Ford Sedans, both 2-door and 4-door models, some with Fordomatic. These cars are like new and priced very reasonable. The plan in selling them to our friends and neighbors has worked so well for the past year that we have decided to continue the same plan instead of selling them to automobile dealers.

Your present car will be accepted in exchange.

We like to think of our payment plan as "terms with a heart." Up to 36 months will be considered. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our cooperation in case an extension of a payment is needed. We do not sell your note.

FIVE STARS ENTER LPGA TOURNEY AT FT. WAYNE JULY 14-17

Five of the top women golf stars in the country have already entered the National Ladies Professional Golf Association Tournament, which will be contested at Orchard Ridge Country Club at Fort Wayne July 14 through July 17.

Two-time National Open Champ Louise Suggs, defending champ Marilynn Smith from last year's open, veteran Betty Hicks whose idea has become a reality with this first annual LPGA test, and the fabulous Bauer sisters, Marlene and Alice Bauer Hagge, are the first gal pros with their entries in.

The tournament, which rates in prestige with the Women's National Open, will be unique in style. The first three days will be medal play, with 18 holes being played each day. The two top finishers in the 54 hole test will then determine the LPGA Champion with 36 holes of match play on Sunday.

Miss Suggs is the only one of the above group who did not appear in last year's open. Miss Smith won the 1954 tourney with a 54 hole total of 216, shooting a course record of 68 in the process.

Ponies Lose 1-0, Win 2-1

The local pony leaguers split a pair during the past week as they dropped a 1-0 decision to Leo Wednesday, June 29, despite a one-hit pitching performance by pitcher Jim Moore.

The Holsom Dairy team had a total of five hits on their side of the ledger but could not produce in the all-important run column.

Moore struck out an even dozen enemy batsmen while Willets, the Leo pitcher, fanned five.

On Wednesday evening of this week the Holsom team appeared to have a 1-0 win in their pockets going into the last half of the seventh and final inning. Ralph Noragon had allowed but one hit in the first six innings, that a scratch infield grounder off the pitcher's glove in the fourth.

In Woodburn's half of the seventh, Closson led off with a double. Noragon then fanned the next two batters. Then in an attempt to pick off the base runner, the St Joe pitcher turned and threw to second, but no one was ready to cover on the throw and it rolled into the outfield allowing the tying run to score. The third out was registered on another strike out.

The wining run scored in the ninth when Jim Moore hit one between the left fielder and center fielder for a homer. Moore also pitched two innings of relief, coming in in the fifth to throw one pitch, a strike, for the third strike of the third out, and again in the eighth when Noragon allowed a walk, fanned the next batter and gave up a single.

Noragon fanned 14 and his reliefer 4 in the extra inning contest. Six walks were allowed, five by Noragon and one by Moore.

The other Holsom run was scored in the seventh when Gerald Lothamer led off with a triple and was squeezed home on a bunt by Noragon.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club held its meeting at the home of Winifred Hart with Marjie Dwyer as co-hostess. The club collect was led by Eleanor Crothers after which Lois Fisher gave the devotions.

The lesson on "Decorating With Color" was given by Grace Laub and Marie Crothers.

The president, Lois Fisher, called the meeting to order. Roll call was answered by fifteen members and two children, Linda Fisher and Nancy Brown.

The song of the month, "Comin' Thro' the Rye," was sung. Helen Reason read the story of the song and Valda Brown was the pianist.

The response to roll call was "what I do when I do what I please." Some very interesting answers were given.

For the social hour each brought wedding pictures. They were passed around. It was a unique idea enjoyed by all present.

The committee served a delicious lunch.

The recipe of the month was given by Helen Reason on chocolate angel food cake. All enjoyed a portion with the lunch.

The next meeting will be at the home of Irma Allen with Maxine Kelley as co-hostess.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Say, hasn't the weatherman been good to us the past week—warm enough, or hot enough, to make you sweat like you oughta during the day and cool enough to let you sleep like you want to at night.

Ned Shull: "I don't know whether to marry a woman ten years older than myself or one that's ten years younger."

Walt Fetters: "That depends on whether you want to be mothered or smothered."

That's a lotta miles John Crothers has put in on the local mail route. It makes something like fourteen or fifteen times around the world—but it's just around St. Joe.

You might say John's a well-traveled man who doesn't get around much.

What's new?

Well, for one thing, the Holsom Dairy Bar. The Kline's have their fountain all rigged up now and can serve you your favorite ice cream dish.

It took a long time to get the thing going but they finally made it. But it was worth it.

—Ah, those choc'lit sodys!

Never underestimate the power of mental-telepathy.

I was just about to say some thing in this here column about not hearing from the Billows, Bill and Doris, in Japan, and here comes a letter sent to many of their friends in and around St. Joe.

"Tokyo, Japan
June, 1955

"Dear Friends:

"Spring in Tokyo is an unpredictable season. When it's clear it's beautiful. The other days are also exciting; cloudy with always threatening rain. Rainy season is near and promises to be an every day affair. We who are now living at Hyakunin Machi house have spent the last few weeks' spare time in repairing a lawn and flower garden - enjoying the chance to be out of doors on the nice days.

"During the first week of April we and the other new missionaries toured the places of work of our U. L. C. A. missionaires in Japan. If you have a map you can trace our trip - from Tokyo to Nagoya, Kyoto, Isahaya, Kumamoto, Fukuoka, Ichikawa and Chiba. There are several places we didn't have time to see. The "growing edge" of Christ's Church is the vital area. We came home much encouraged by the work of missionaires all around. 'Where two or three are gathered in My name, there I shall be in the midst of them,' said Jesus Christ. Nearly every congregation here has had such a beginning. A Christian can have no room for discouragement.

"Our missionary status is still that of learning the language. At "sokai" the convention of the Japan Evangelical Lutheran Church, we heard more Japanese that we didn't understand than what we did. However, we recalled that last year we understood nothing and are very encouraged. Next year at this time we will be assigned to our place of work in Japan. Until then - study!!

" We have had the pleasure of meeting one young man and helping him to begin studying about Jesus Christ. He is attending Bible class at the Lutheran Student Center now every week and comes to visit us every other week.

"Our Tokyo University group invited us to the University May Festival (open house) May 28. They are really proud of their University and don't let anyone forget it.

"For six weeks we'll be away from home for a vacation. We're planning to go to Lake Nojiri, a mountain lake, 150 miles north of Tokyo. From what we hear it is very beautiful and restful after the wear and tear of work and language study.

"Doris is constantly busy making our apartment more like 'home.' We have curtains all around, and other little 'what-nots' which we have collected while travelling about. Making our home has been a most agreeable task. Japan itself is no longer strange. The unexpected things which happen have become a part of our own lives. With the language barrier slightly broken we can move more freely and feel at home most everywhere.

"We are well and happy. Your personal letters have come in such abundance that we haven't got them answered yet. I hope our short notes with these letters will for the most part be acceptable answers. Please feel free to ask us any questions about missionaries, the work here, about Japan.

"Until next we write, we remain

Very sincerely,
Bill and Doris"

CARD OF THANKS

Rural Mail Carrier Begins 35th Year

Rural mail patrons of the St. Joe Post Office may not realize at first how familiar a face is that of their mail carrier. That may be explained in some cases because some of the patrons may not have yet come into the world when John Crothers, local mail carrier began his career with the Post Office Department, and have become accustomed to his daily appearance without being conscious of it.

Mr. Crothers walked into the News Office Monday morning, July 11, 1955, with the declaration that he had just begun his thirty-fifth year of rural delivery. It was on July 11, 1921, that Mr. Crothers began serving the route in his 1921 Model T Ford. The late Sam Armstrong was the St. Joe Postmaster at that time.

Since 1921 John estimates he has used 29 or 30 cars in the pursuit of his profession and also had need for the first four or five winters of a horse-drawn mail wagon. The St. Joe rural route in 1921 covered 26 miles. It now covers 51.02 miles, which figures out to some 361,000 miles (using an average for the 34 years of 34 miles per day).

Gladys Ross Wins 2nd In Judging Contest

One hundred forty 4-H girls judged in the DeKalb County judging contest Friday, July 8. The winners of this contest will enter the district contest to be held in Wabash July 14.

Carol Royal of Ashley won the Grand Champion ribbon for having the highest score in the entire judging contest, a total of 549. Judy Till of Waterloo was reserve champion with 545 points. The two top-ranking girls in each contest will judge at the district contest.

Gladys Ross of St. Joe won second place honors in the division of food preparation with a total of 475 points. Ilene Dickerhoff of Waterloo was the winner with 514 points.

Clothing winners were Carol Royal with 549 points, Judy Till with 545 points and Karen Walker of Butler with 520 points. Since Carol Royal was winner of the demonstration contest she can not enter the district judging contest. In the event Karen Walker can not enter the contest (since Karen is entered in a state musical contest) an alternate, Darlene Makovicka of Waterloo, 505 points, was selected to go in her place.

Food preservation winners were Faith Getts, Garrett, 462 points, and Donna Smith, Butler Township, 379 points.

Baking winners were Dixie Phillips, Ashley, 516 points, and Darlene Sutherland, Fairfield, 493 points.

Judy Till and Nancy Kleeman, Auburn, winner of the junior judging contest, were both awarded free trips to 4-H camp.

The following 4-H leaders assisted with the contest: Carolyn Miller, Lois Fisher, Dora Lautzenhiser, Dorothy Shugart, Paline Metz, Mary Shadinger, Ruth Butler, JoAnne Scattergood, Mildred Wappes, Hazel Sutherland, Vivian Johnson, Esther Porter, Madge Ault, Carol Pugsley, county 4-H leader, and Isabella McClellan.

'Services Under Stars' Series Begins July 31

Once again the three sponsoring churches of Christ in this area, St. Joe, Coburn Corners and Newville, are announcing the "Under the Stars" services held in Alton Park on State Road 101, two miles east of St. Joe, that proved so popular in August of 1954.

Six services are included on this year's series beginning on Sunday evening, July 31, and concluding on Sunday evening, September 4.

Programing this year will be done as was done last year. One church will provide the speaker, another the leadership of congregational singing and the other the special music features, alternating service to service.

The three churches extend an invitation to all to come out and worship God in the evening "Under the Stars." Services begin at 8:00 p.m. each Sunday evening.

A complete program will appear at a future date in this paper.

SOCIAL THURSDAY

Concord Methodist Church is the scene of an ice cream social Thursday, July 14.

The menu will include ice cream made from pasteurized milk, ham, chicken and weiner sandwiches, cake, pie, coffee, chocolate milk and orange ade.

Serving begins at 5:30.

OBEY GOD'S LAWS

Lesson for July 17, 1955

Laws are of various kinds. Some laws are arbitrary, some are made by the nature of things, or rather express the nature of things. To take an example of an arbitrary law: What is the fine, where you live, for exceeding the speed limit or for parking in the wrong place? Let's say it is ten dollars for going too fast, and three for illegal parking. If the alderman, or whoever it was that made the law, should decide next Tuesday to change those fines to fifteen and four dollars, respectively, they would have a right to do it. There is nothing in the nature of things that makes parking on the north side of Main Street wrong, and nothing that makes three dollars the exact amount to charge the offender, practical though it may be.

Some Laws Cannot Be Broken

There are other laws which are not on the statute books but are much more rigid, and rigidly enforced, than regulations about parking or school attendance. We some times call these laws of nature; but they are really laws of God. There is no law printed in a book anywhere that says that if a person neglects the care of his teeth he will get a toothache; but that is a law nevertheless. It is, so to speak, written into the physical constitution of every man. There is a higher sort of law still, called Moral Law, which is likewise rooted in the nature of things. Examples of moral laws: To every man belongs his due; whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap; hate and you will be hated, love and you will be loved. Such laws can be disregarded; they are disregarded every day; but they cannot be broken. They are not at all like arbitrary laws. There is a ghost town where parking spaces can still be seen marked on the pavement. But you can leave your car there now for a month and never get a ticket. The town government has just folded up and gone away. But God never folds up nor goes away. There is a corner in a city where once a left turn was permitted; now it is against the law. The traffic department changed its mind. But God does not change his mind.

How Nations Break Laws

Now, every nation, every community, every club or organizatioin of people has the right to make up its own constitution and by-laws, its rules, ordinances, regulations, laws and statutes. And it has the right to change these. Most nations, however, do not like to admit that there are laws which bind them. They do not like to feel that there are unchanging and unchangeable laws which govern them and all nations. Nevertheless, there are such laws, laws of God; and nations have been broken for trying to break them. Consider the case of the country of Judah. Prophets had been warning that country, its leaders and its people, for years, that disobedience would bring disaster. Ezekiel, whose book makes fascinating though often puzzling reading, did make one thing quite plain: that Judah's sins had reached the breaking-point, that God's axe would fall, that Jerusalem would be destroyed. Scarcely any one believed him. But when Jerusalem actually and finally fell, then "they knew that a prophet had been among them."

Crime and Punishment

What were some of the divine laws, rooted in the nature of things, which Judah as a nation had been breaking? We can name the two most important: Love and Justice. The nation lived by hate, fear, distrust and selfishness. As a nation, they hated other nations. They tried to build a little iron curtain around themselves. They would not trust other nation and they would not keep treaties they had made themselves. They let down their moral standards to the point where the typical Judah-ite (to judge from the pictures the prophets paint) was loose in his relations with women, undependable and dishonest in his business dealings, irreligious even in his "religious" acts, irresponsible in his civic duties . . you can fill out the discouraging list from the pages of Ezekiel or other prophets. You cannot build a good country with bad citizens, that is another law that cannot be broken, though Judah tried hard enough to break it. When disaster finally struck, the citizens were astonished; but God's prophets were not.

ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATIONS APPROVED FOR COUNTY

County auditor Harry M. Kirkpatrick reported this week that DeKalb County councilmen have approved additional appropriations totaling $9,900.-00.

The additional appropriations included $8,000 in transfers from refunds on state gasoline tax to the county highway department. The highway appropriations are $6,000 earmarked for materials and $2,000 for equipment.

The other $2,200 appropriated is for county offices. The appropriatians were $800 for printing and supplies for the county auditor's office, $900 for properties for the auditor's office and $200 for per diem for the county coroner.

In addition, the council also granted $300 a month salary for a deputy for the county surveyor's office from an existing appropriation of $1,200.

The appropriations will become final after approval by the state board of tax commissioners.

Services Held For Ashton Staman

Final rites were conducted Monday at Auburn for Ashton Staman, 81, who was found dead early Saturday morning at his home. Mr. Staman had been under a doctor's care for the past two months and died apparently of a heart attack.

Mr. Staman had been a resident of the city of Auburn since 1901. That year he and his father purchased the Fishler Drug Store located in the south half of the present Staman Building at Ninth and South Main streets in Auburn.

He was a native of Ashland County, O., born September 29, 1873, son of the late William Staman and Louisa Eighinger, former Auburn residents.

He was educated in the schools at Butler and was employed in Chilcote's drug store at Butler for a few years. Later, the drug store was moved to Hudson at the same time the Wabash Railroad shops were established in Ashley. Mr. Staman worked in the drug store at Hudson until he entered the Chicago College of Pharmacy, now the Illinois School of Pharmacy.

He graduated as a pharmacist in 1896 and was employed in Chicago drug stores and later was druggist at St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago before coming to Auburn in 1901.

In 1903 he purchased his father's interest in the drug business. Later, he purchased the space in the north half of the Staman Building which had been occupied by a bank. At one time, he operated two drug stores in Auburn. The second store was at the present location of Romeiser Drug Store at Seventh and Main streets.

His brother, William J. Staman of St. Joe, also a pharmacist, was associated in business with him in Auburn for several years.

In 1942 Mr. Staman semi-retired from the drug business, but continued until 1951 to work part time. His business was sold to Lawton Feagler, present proprietor of Staman Drug Co.

Mr. Staman married Elsie Caruth of Auburn on October 11, 1905. She died June 26, 1950. Two sons, Ralph, who died at the age of 18 months, and a baby who died in infancy, also preceded him in death.

Survivors are the brother; a niece, Mrs. Creede Baldwin of Minneapolis, Minn.; and two nephews, Dale Burdeno of Sturgis, Mich., and Paul Newman of Pasadena, Cal. A brother, Byron, who died at the age of four, and two sitsers, Mrs. Pearl King of Sturgis and Mrs. Effie Newman of Coldwater, Mich., preceded him in death. Mrs. King died two years ago and Mrs. Newman in 1938.

Mr. Staman was a member of the Masonic Lodge in Auburn and the Chamber of Commerce. He attended the Presbyterian church.

Rev. Miles Freeman, pastor of the Auburn Presbyterian Church, officiated at the funeral and burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery near Auburn

FIGHT AGAINST COMMUNISM—Under the Smith Act, a total of 86 Communist conspirators have been sent to prison with the conviction of nine Red leaders last month at Philadelphia. Forty-one more Communists, including Party-Leader William Z. Foster, have been charged with Smith Act violations and are awaiting trial.

The nine sentenced on June 20 were regional party leaders convicted of conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

GI VETERANS BENEFITS — Congress has recently passed legislation directly affecting veterans and the President has signed the bills into law.

Under this legislation, the Veterans Administration direct loan program for World War II and Korean conflict veterans who live in areas where private GI loan financing is not available, has been extended for two years and broadened.

The new law will permit a qualified veteran to get a VA direct loan to buy a farm with a farmhouse which he intends to occupy as his home or to alter, improve or repair a home. Heretofore, a VA direct loan could be used only to purchase or construct a home or to construct or improve a farmhouse. Eligible veterans also who have used a portion of VA guaranteed loan benefits would be permitted to use their remaining entitlements to obtain VA direct loans.

Legislation also has been signed into law providing for permanent dental outpatient care for certain qualified veterans. Previously such care was only provided on a year-to-year basis and veterans were required to apply for treatment within specified periods. Now they may apply anytime.

EMPLOYMENT SPIRALS — Congress has been furnished with information pointing out that manpower conditions in 149 of the nation's largest labor market areas continue their upward trend and employment is at an all-time high.

VOLUME LXX ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, July 21, 1955 NUMBER 29

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

With all the big news about the all-star teams of the little and pony leagues and the excitement of learning the identity of the local kids who were selected for the teams, it would seem that the picture is pretty rosy. But that ain't so. There's a lot of sunshine apparent, with a little disappointment thrown in.

If you've been around the ball diamond for the last few years, you've seen a little kid running his head off at practice when any and all teams were making use of the diamond. He's only big as a minute but his enthusiasm is that of a giant. Even at pony league practices (though he was too young and too small) the kid was doing anything just to be able to get his hands on the ball or doing just anything because he loves baseball. You may have heard Ray Moore at pony practices last year as he frequently made use of the kid's zeal—"Hey, Wetzel, get that ball out there"—"Wetzel, gather up the bats"—and so on.

Well, this year Wetzel is old enough for the little leaguers and he's good enough. In fact, he was good enough to be an all-star. Joe Robinson went out to the Griggs' home during the past week not expecting the unpleasant information he was to find. He was rounding up the information needed to turn in to the powers that be in regard to the all-star team selections. Included in the information required is a birth certificate. As Joe checked on the age of the kid who was chosen for the team, he said, "I'm sorry I have to tell you this, Wetzel, but you're too young." There was a stunned look then on the little ball player's face—as stunned as can be expected on a nine-year-old face—and a tear was formed on the little ball player's cheek.

Little leaguers can play if they are between the ages of nine and twelve. But to be on the all-star team, they must be ten to twelve.

Well, that's the end of the story, if you want to call it an end. Actually there is no ending because there will be more ball games and there will be more disappointments for others in the future. There is one disappointment right now, perhaps, and that is the fact that the little leaguers haven't won a game this year. There are other disappointments too, such as when no parents show up for the games their nine-to-twelve-year-olds are participating in — when eight, nine, ten and eleven boys—and a driver—pile into one car for a game away from home—when the only boosters those nine-to-twelve-year-olds have at games are themselves and their managers.

The pony league team this year is going great guns. They have a lot of talented players. But just a few years ago when little and pony leagues began, the older group had their disappointments, too. Their success today is the result of being exposed to baseball. The pony leaguers today are a success because yesterday they were little leaguers — making mistakes and losing games.

In every dark picture there is always a ray of light, though the light may be dimmed. The little league team isn't doing so good, and the kids are making mistakes, a lot of them. But they're just kids, some learning from scratch, some knowing what to do but needing time to perfect their application, others knowing what to do and doing it. There's a lot of gloom, sure, but there's always that faint glimmer that makes it all worth while—like for instance the future when these losing and learning little leaguers become winning pony leaguers—like for instance the enthusiasm that makes Wetzel Griggs an all-star.

Carl Carpenter clipped an item from a daily paper concerning a modern version of the 23rd Psalm given at the Young People's Luther League Convention at San Francisco by Rev. Marcus Gravdal, the president of the organization.

Here it is, as Rev. Gravdal lashed out at scoffers of religion:

"Science is my shepherd, I shall not want; it makes me to lie down on foam rubber mattresses; it leads me on four lane highways, it leadeth me into the psychiatrist's office for my ego's sake.

"Yea though I walk through the valley of the hydrogen bomb, I will not fear it, thy jets and atomic bombs comfort me.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of the world's billion hungry people; thou anointest my head with home permanents; my alcoholic cup runneth over. Surely pensions and social security shall follow me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in the old folks' home—forever."

If those words weren't so true, they would be funny.

—What fools we mortals be.

Dilley Reunion

The Fourth Annual Dilley Reunion was held Sunday, July 17, at the home of Mrs. Mary Baker.

Ninety-four members enjoyed a pot-luck dinner on the lawn. The president, Mr. Ashton Smith, introduced the program chairman, Miss Ethel Smith. After group singing, Mrs. Mary Baker gave a devotional talk. Several poems were read and Miss Violet Smith sang a solo.

Mrs. Warren Slater read several original poems.

The oldest member was Mrs. Ella Horn of Spencerville who traced the ancestry of the family back to her great-grandfather, Elijah Dilley, veteran of the Revolutionary War. Each family represented was introduced.

Following election of officers, the group sang, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and closed with prayer by Mr. Ray Smith.

Ponies Win No-Hitter

Gerald Lothamer notched a no-hit no-run game last week at the St. Joe Diamond as the Holsom Dairy Pony League team took a 20-0 win from the St. Joe Center nine.

In hurling the no-hitter, Lothamer struck out 11 enemy batters. Martin, the Center pitcher, fanned two Dairymen.

The locals had their hitting suits on for the game, getting a total of 18 base hits including doubles by Lothamer and Robinson.

Church Scores

Rain halted play last Friday evening after one-half inning had been played between Mt. Pleasant and St. Joe Lutheran in the activity of the St. Joe Church League.

However, Monday night's contests went on without a hitch and Spencerville Methodist added to its win column with a 14-9 victory over the Newville Church of Christ entry. Spencerville's won - lost record now stands at 8-1. Concord Methodist is in second place with a 6-2 record.

Mt. Pleasant won the second game Monday evening taking a close 12-11 verdict from St. Joe Church of Christ.

Newville held a 3-2 lead going into the last half of the second inning of Monday's first game. Spencerville then scored six runs on only two hits. They were aided by five Newville errors in the inning. Dwyer singled and Butler homered for the only safe blows.

L. Lyons homered for Newville in the third for a run and Spencerville matched that production in the last half of the inning. Newville then pulled up to a 9-8 deficit with four runs in the fourth on two hits and three enemy miscues. J. Blaker and Smith hit singles in that inning. The Methodists scored once in their half of the inning on a single ond an outfield error. Newville tallied once in the fifth on an error and a single by L. Lyons. Spencerville clinched the game with four runs in the fifth as the nine o'clock first-game deadline was reached.

Burgess Walter led off the second game with a homer for Mt. Pleasant opening a high-scoring second contest. St. Joe benefitted from walks and an error in the last of the first to score six times. Storer was safe on an outfield error. Two outs followed. Two walks, a single and five more walks before the side was retired made a total of six unearned runs.

Roop singled and Burmell Walter tripled for one in the top of the second. Four more walks gave St. Joe their seventh run in the second.

Mt. Pleasant got to the offerings of Pete Akey in the fourth as they lashed out six hits, five consecutively, combining them with a fielder's choice and a walk for seven runs. Burmell Walter had a double in the inning, while singles were contributed by Ewing, McClish, Surfus, Womac and Burgess Walter.

St. Joe scored in the fifth on a single by Simpson who advanced to third on a walk and an infield out and scored on a wild pitch. Mt. Pleasant garnered two in the sixth on two hit batsmen, a double by Surfus and a single by McClish. Pete Akey led off the last of the sixth with a long blast beyond the left field light pole, but Plummer dropped back to haul it in.

Mt. Pleasant scored what proved to be the winning margin in the seventh getting a run on a walk and a two-bagger by Carper. The Church of Christ rallied in their half of the inning as Simpson led off with a single, Storer walked and Gustin singled. Jack Hollabaugh then poked one out but was caught at the plate on the heels of Gustin as he attempted to stretch his three-base hit into a home run. A single and an error followed but no further scoring was accomplished.

Two games will be played on Friday of this week, between Newville Church of Christ and St. Joe Church of Christ at 7:30 p.m. and St. Joe Lutheran and Concord Methodist at 9:00 p.m.

RIGHT AND WRONG

Lesson for July 24, 1955

It is all very well to speak of the downfall of a nation, or of a national disaster, you can read in history books that such and such a nation finally was wiped out in such and such a year. Judah, for instance, ceased to exist as a nation after 586 B.C. But these are cold words. When a nation, a city, goes to smash, it means that homes are burned down, people are killed, business is bankrupt, nothing is "as usual" any more. There is no way a nation can crash without taking many individual lives and much happiness down with it.

Pulling Others Down

Out of the many lessons one can learn from the downfall of Judah and its capital Jerusalem is that innocent people suffer with the guilty and because of the guilty. Not every one in a wicked nation is wicked; some may have been doing their level best to keep the nation from going on the wrong track. Jeremiah is a prime example of this kind of man. An inspired prophet, he had been warning his fellow-citizens for years, as had Ezekiel and other prophets. But in the general disaster he suffered quite as much as anybody who was to blame for the whole mess. Jerusalem was swallowed, you might say, in two bites. The first was in 597 B.C. when the boy-king Jehoiachin was taken off to Babylon there to spend the rest of his days as a prisoner. Along with the kinglet went the royal family, the aristocracy, the top army officers, and a thousand skilled workers. Jerusalem and Judah were left to third-raters for eleven years; stupid, weak men who (to make a long story short) committed national suicide. Jeremiah suffered a great deal at the hands of these men. More than this he suffered in the final days of starvation and panic. (Of which more next week.) He was by far not the first, last or only innocent man to suffer in a nation's disaster. A good Christian like Niemoeller suffers for Hitler's madness; a saintly Christian like Kagawa suffers in Japan's defeat, even though both of them protested against their nation's policies.

Pulling Others Up

Needless to say, there is the other side of this. Just as the innocent are dragged down by the guilty, so the guilty are sometimes protected and benefitted by the good. A nation by breaking God's laws pulls down many individuals who keep God's laws so far as they can; and on the other hand a nation that keeps God's laws pulls up many individuals who are quite indifferent to God. Take America at the present writing, for instance. The picture may have changed by the time you read this; but while it is being written our nation is at peace, prosperity blooms on every side, we are one of the two most powerful nations the world has ever seen. Who deserves the credit? Not all of us, surely! We talk about the heroism of our forefathers, immigrants and pioneers; but we are not very heroic. We talk about American smartness and know-how; but how few of us know how! We point with pride to our vast educational system—and we read the comic strips. We are happy to see erosion brought under control and fertility restored to waste land. But how many farmers were eager for such a program at first? We are proud of progress, when if it had been left to most of us, we would still be stuck in the mud.

The Price Of Being Human

The truth is, and we cannot be reminded of it too often, that the human race is all tied together. Mankind is made for community. The human race is not like a tray of sand, where one grain can blow off without disturbing the others very much. It is more like a block of concrete; move one grain of that and it all moves. We are happy enough to be pulled up by the community or the nation when that is better than we are; so we have not too much to cry about when we are pulled down by the community or the nation when that is worse than we are. We can't have it both ways. We must not expect to benefit from the goodness of our good neighbors and at the same time not be hurt by the badness of our bad neighbors. It is the price of being human, that we are bonded together with countless others, and that with them we must often suffer the severe judgment of God.

FABRICS TREATED FOR SUMMER WEAR

Many fabrics on the market have been given special finishes to make them more practical for summer wear, according to Mrs. Lottie E. Sumner, extension clothing specialist at Purdue University. Labels read "wrinkle resistant," "soil-resistant," "stain - resistant," "perspiration - resistant" and "starchless."

"Wrinkle - resistant" means that the fabric has been so treated to make it more serviceable and retain the new look longer. It also means that it will have less of a tendency to wrinkle - not that it will not wrinkle at all. Some of those wrinkles will be less prominent after the garment hangs overnight.

"Soil-resistant" finish helps to keep the fabric clean longer. Since rayons and acetates do have somewhat of a smooth fiber, they have less tendency to spot or stain. However, this special finish may be applied to these fibers, making them resistant to water spotting but not grease.

"Starchless" finishes give sheer cotton fabrics crispness. Hence they may withstand repeated lauderings without losing much of their stiffness. During hot, humid weather a fabric with such a finish will not soil, muss or wrinkle as readily as a similar untreated fabric.

Many of the special finishes give the fabric more than one desirable characteristic. For example, a "wrinkle-resistant" finish may also make a fabric more resistant to shrinking or a "stain-resistant" finish more resistant to spots and creases.

VACATION PRECAUTIONS

The smart vacationist will take several precautions before leaving on his trip, the Chicago Motor Club has advised.

The club pointed out that a lot of worry on vacations can be avoided if the following hints are heeded:

Temporarily stop delivery of milk.

Notify the circulation manager of the vacation address so that newspapers will be delivered.

Shut off utilities such as water, gas and electricity.

Discontinue telephone, laundry and other services.

Provide for the dog, cat, canary or other pets.

Arrange for the cleaning and care of the garden or lawn at home.

Engage someone to pick up and forward mail.

Discourage prowlers by securing all doors and windows.

Notify police and neighbors of your trip so that they will keep an extra eye on the home. Also in case of an emergency, a message can be forwarded.

Have the auto checked over by a mechnanic before starting the vacation trip to help insure a safe and pleasant journey.

ASHLEY GROUP PROTESTS SCHOOL PROPOSAL

A group of Smithfield Twp. taxpayers are continuing their opposition to the construction of a new school at Ashley by filing a motion for a new trial. The motion was made Tuesday in the DeKalb Circuit Court at Auburn alleging that a previous finding against the group, denying a permanent injunction against construction of a new school, is not sustained by sufficient evidence and the finding is contrary to law.

On June 27 Judge Walter D. Stump ruled against the remonstrators. They had filed a petition to enjoin the Smithfield Twp. trustee and advisory board from financing the new building under provision of a lease arrangement with a school building corporation.

The remonstrators alleged that the act under which the lease arrangement was made is unconstitutional in that it is a violation of the constitutional debt limitation of two per cent on the assessed valuation.

The school building corporation was created to finance the proposed $200,000 school building at Ashley.

MUCK CROP TOUR NEXT THURSDAY, JULY 28

Farmers will have an opportunity to observe methods used by A. J. Custer, 1954 Indiana 5-acre corn champion, during the agronomy and horticultural muck crop field day in DeKalb County on Thursday, July 28.

Ernest Lesiuk, DeKalb County agent, is general chairman of the event sponsored by the Purdue University extension service. M. O. Pence, extension agronomist, and Roscoe Fraser, extension horticulturist at Purdue, will assist in the direction of the field day.

Custer announced plans last winter to apply 3 tons of fertilizer and have a population of 30 to 40 thousand plants per acre on his 1955 5-acre corn plot.

In 1954, Custer's 5-acre entry yielded 241 bushels per acre for an all-time record. Ideal weather conditions prevailed and adequate rain fell when needed to produce the tremendous yield. Progress of the current crop under 1955 weather conditions will be of interest to 5-acre corn club members as well as other Hoosier farmers.

Farmers will convene at the court house in Auburn and will depart for the Custer farm southeast of Garrett at 9:15 a. m. In addition to the 1-acre and 5-acre corn plots, Custer's tomato field planted on mineral soil will be viewed.

At 10:15 a.m. the group will arrive at the Russell Housel farm near Garrett, where a certified seed corn field and 5-acre plot will be seen. A high-population corn field, planted in various thicknesses for high yield, will be shown at the Lester Boger farm, R3, Auburn, at 11 a.m. Participants will then leave for the John Graham farm, R2, Auburn, to observe oat variety and corn fertilizer plots.

Dale Rakestraw, R1, Waterloo, will show his potato varieties to the farmers at 1:15 p. m. The tour will end at the Emery Vestal farm, R1, Auburn, where potato scab controls will be discussed. A peppermint field will also be shown at the Vestal farm.

Dr. R. W. Samson, extension pathologist at Purdue, will answer questions on muck crop diseases during the tour.

HEALTHFUL FOODS FOR HEALTHY FAMILY

Help your family to good health by serving healthful foods, suggests Miss Lois Oberhelman, extension nutritionist at Purdue University. Omit those rich foods that are high in calories only and contribute no vitamins and minerals. Science has proved that good health does not just "happen" but must be acquired by good means everyday in the year throughout life.

If a person wants to be healthy and active in later years, he must establish good eating habits when young. Expectant mothers should have well-balanced meals. Too many people wait until middle and old age diseases set in before they become concerned about improving their health. By then often times the damage to the organs has been done, and physicians can do little to control the degenerative diseases caused by a wearing out of the organs.

Milk is the one food for which there is no substitute. Penny for penny, more health benefits come from milk than from any other food. It is the most nutritious food available. The need for milk is never outgrown. The calcium, vitamins A and C and protein are especially needed for both growing children and older people.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE CABLE ADDRESS—ACDCO

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana, Springfield, Ohio, Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

Until further notice a Motorola radio, now, of course, will be furnished free at no extra charge with each one of our 1955 Ford automobiles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, BUICKS, CHEVROLETS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

PERMIT NEEDED FOR "FRESH" EGGS

"When Mrs. Indiana Consumer is offered fresh eggs by her retailer, she will know immediately that the retailer is co-operating with the Indiana fresh egg law, and displays a State Grade A permit to sell such eggs. To hold this permit, the eggs must meet state inspection for minimum standards of freshness," says E. R. Menefee at Purdue University.

However, if Mrs. Consumer's retailer is not a co-operator, she may expect to buy eggs as "eggs" with no assurance of size and quality. Eggs cannot be sold as "fresh" unless the permit is on display.

"This is a real opportunity Indiana homemakers now have when buying fresh eggs backed by state authority insuring size and quality," states Charles VanNuys, Indianapolis, president of the Egg Board, which has its headquarters at Purdue University.

"We are finding this program to be very popular among consumers as well as distributors and producers and has resulted in an increased consumption of high quality eggs in Indiana," Van Nuys said.

"Both producers and distributors have co-operated by offering a program assuring egg quality to consumers. Thousands of independent and chain-store retailers and wholesalers are co-operating by taking out Grade A permits, legally enabling them to offer high quality eggs to their customers," VanNuys explains.

VOLUME LXX ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, July 28, 1955 NUMBER 30

Around the Town

With the Editor

A copy of "The Valley News" from Sultan, Washington, came to the News Office last week. I looked through it to see if there was some item about local folks, perhaps, on a trip who might be mentioned in the issue. But I couldn't find any. It may be that the copy was sent by the editor, Ward Bowden, to show a column similar to this one which carries a similar name — "Around Our Town by A. C. Wolfe."

I'll send 'em a copy of this issue and maybe we'll find out how come we got theirs.

Maybe you noticed an item in one of the Fort Wayne papers last week about Bob Young, who formerly was a regional supervisor of the little league set-up and who appeared before the Lions Club and the P.T.A. a couple of years ago, now studying for the ministry. He also was public relations director for a Fort Wayne dairy.

His talks in this community were very impressive and indicated that he had a little more on the ball than most speakers.

Maybe it can be said that he is still a public relations director—who got promoted under a new Boss.

The weeds were growing thick and fast at the ball diamond. So Charlie Arnett graciously responded to a call for a cutting job Monday afternoon with his tractor and mower.

Like Don Keller said as we watched Charlie manipulate his rig, "He's a good boy."

A couple of times Charlie had to make a quick pass at this or that spot and just about the time I was ready to point he'd swing around and clip the stragglers.

I thought I had him though, on a patch back of the left field light pole. He had gone over it but because it was necessary to maneuver around the pole he slowed up and consequently some of the weeds didn't get their reward. Charlie made the final swipe and headed along the baseline. My mouth was open with "Hey Charlie—" ready to pop out and the finger was ready to point when I saw him taking a last look. Around went the tractor just that quick and—Charlie got 'em all.

He must be a good farmer.

There have been a few from the Spencerville community who have indicated that they want a "Spencerville" column rather than having all local items thrown together.

So, yours truly stopped at the Hollabaugh residence to seek the assistance of Janice in fulfilling the request. She said "I'll try" which is good enough for me. And Wednesday morning in came her first batch of news for this week.

A good start for the Spencerville reporter. Readers in that community are asked to keep Janice in mind with their news.

The Bible Speaks

Background Scripture: II Kings 25:10-12; Jeremiah 40—44.

Devotional Reading: Ecclesiastes 5:1-5.

THY WILL BE DONE
Lesson for July 31, 1955

They were a sorry lot, the people left behind after the last invasion. The puppet-king Zedekiah had asked the Egyptians to pull his strings . . . but the smart Babylonians got wind of it, and that was the end of Zedekiah, Jerusalem, Solomon's Temple, the nation of Judah. After a two years' siege the city fell, was sacked and burned, and anybody that was anybody was either killed or deported. Jeremiah, the city's most famous citizen, was offered a chance to go to Babylonia as a free man; but he declined. He preferred to stay with his own people, he said, and his own land. But they were a sorry lot, the dregs of the populace for the most part.

Vows, Good and Bad

They were glad enough to have Jeremiah with them. They seemed to recognize him at last as a true prophet. He had told them so often just what would happen—and it did. So they began to look up to him and come to him with their problems. One day they came up with a very important decision they wanted him to help them make. Should they go to Egypt or not? This was not as if they were going down there like tourists into Florida. This was for keeps, a full-scale emigration. A sort of Exodus in reverse, with Jeremiah the new Moses to lead them back into Egypt. (Why they wanted to go can be read in detail in Jeremiah.) They put this up to him: Find out what God wants us to do. You are a prophet and you should know. "Whether it is good or evil, we will obey the voice of the Lord God," they solemnly promised. But they did not mean it. Their minds were made up to go. When Jeremiah after ten days knew that the Lord did not want them to go to Egypt, he told the people so. But they paid no attention; on the contrary they bundled him up and took him along, an unwilling prisoner on their forbidden road. So they broke their good vow. Some time later down in Egypt they bragged to Jeremiah that they were keeping their promises now. They had vowed to make sacrifices to the star-gods and goddesses—and sacrifice they did, to the "Queen of heaven" and a lot more.

If You Knew God's Will . .

Before condemning those people too quickly, let the reader translate the story into the 20th century. Don't we all pray, "Thy will be done" Have we not all asked God more than once to show us what to do? When we pray "Thy will be done" we are making an implied promise that we will co-operate. What we mean is, of course, not "Thy will be done in spite of everything I do to stop it," but "Thy will be done, and let me know if I can help." This raises two questions. One is: How can we know God's will without a guaranteed prophet to help us out? Well, we have the Gospels, we have the Word of God. We surely can know a great deal about God's will. We at least know this much, that any scheme, plan or intention which is out of line with the great teachings of the Bible is out of line with God, and doomed to final failure.

Would You Do It?

The other question raised by that prayer-vow, Thy Will Be Done, is this: If you knew the will of God, would you do it? Those incient men of Judah scorned God's will, and scorned his prophet, although they had been pleading for light and direction. We had better be sure we are without sin before we cast at them the first stone. We often feel that God does not give us enough light. We pray earnestly for his will to be made known to us, and we are inclined to groumble at the silence of God. The trouble is we do not follow the light he HAS given us. A great American preacher called attention to Saul's request of the Witch of Endor, "Bring me up Samuel." For a long time Samuel had been telling Saul where he was wrong, but the king had paid no attention. A man who will not listen to Samuel living will not listen to his ghost. So with us. "Thy will be done" suggests sadly many a broken vow. How can we hope to persuade God that we will follow his will, if he will show it to us, when we have not followed his will when he did show it to us? We might make a humbler vow: O God, help me to go back and pick up some of the promises I have broken!

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all who sent cards, gifts and flowers and offered their assistance during my recent stay in the hospital.

Around the Town

With the Editor

There's lotsa news that you good people have brought in, but along about this time of year the politicians are figuring out how to spend your money and they need a lot of room to tell how in—or something. So budgets and notices got all the room this week.

Be patient with me, will ya. This happens every year along about the time I want a little vacation for swimming and fishing.

Like the old saying—everything happens at once.

NOTICE TO THE TOWN OF ST. JOE AND AFFECTED LAND OWNERS OF PETITION TO VACATE STREET

Notice is hereby given that Maurice Kline et al, have filed their petition in the DeKalb Circuit Court, wherein they seek the vacation of the following described part of a street, to-wit:

Commencing at the southwest corner of lot numbered 3 in Leighty's Fourth Addition to the Town of St. Joe; thence east along the south line of said lot numbered 3 and along the south line of lots 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 in said Leighty's Fourth Addition and east along the south line of lot numbered 6 in Eliza Grills Unrecorded plat to the Town of St. Joe to the southeast corner of said lot numbered 6 in said Eliza Grills Unrecorded Plat; thence south to the northeast corner of the School Grounds; thence west along the north line of lots 13, 14, 15 and 4 in Leighty's Fourth Addition to the Town of St. Joe to the northwest corner of lot numbered 4 in said Leighty's Fourth Addition to the Town of St. Joe; thence north to the place of beginning, all in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

Notice is further given that said petition is set for hearing in the DeKalb Circuit Court in the Courthouse at Auburn, Indiana, on the 12 day of September, 1955, at 9 o'clock A. M. Central Daylight Savings Time, at which time and place all interested and affected persons shall have the right to file objections or remonstrances to said vacation proceedings.

Witness the hand and seal of the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court this 19 day of July, 1955.

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P. M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,
M. J. Klinger

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

LOYALTY UNDER FIRE
Lesson for August 7, 1955

Something can be learned from history, even when it is the history of obscure men. Perhaps we can even learn more from the history of obscure, little-known, forgotten men, because we are mostly of that sort ourselves, than we can from the biographies of the rich and great. We are invited in this week's lesson to consider a little community of displaced persons more than 2,000 years ago.

Most of those displaced persons were citizens of Jerusalem, or had been. That city had been laid flat by Nebuchadnezzar's army. That the little nation of Judah had brought the war on itself, that the prophets, and especially Jeremiah, had predicted exactly what happened—all this did not soften the blow. Those people were exiles, but with a special bitterness. It is one thing to be driven from home hoping to go back some day; it is another thing to have no home to go back to. If those displaced persons could have been taken back to Palestine, to the exact spot where Jerusalem stood, all they would have found was rubble. They would have perished of starvation . . . They knew this all too well. Yet in their memories Jerusalem still lived, a dream-city unchanged by time. They wept when they saw it in their mind's eye; but tears did not wash away the picture they loved. Did it do them any good, this remembering and remembering a city that was no more, a city they would never see again? Yes, it did. For even if that city were less fair than their homesick minds portrayed it, the good which they remembered would remain as an ideal. The community they would build in exile would be as near like the best they remembered as they could make it. A remembered glory that comes no more may become an ideal for today's world. Loyalty to memory may be something better than laying posies on well-tended graves; it may be the best channel through which the best of yesterday flows into today and tomorrow.

Loyal to Life's Must's

These exiled Jews often dreamed of going back. That was before Jerusalem fell, and before Jeremiah wrote them a famous letter. (Jer. 29.) You will never see your native land again, he told them. The captivity will end, but not in your lifetime. Meanwhile be good citizens where you are. Build houses, plant gardens, live with your growing families. Seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile . . . That may have been hard advice to take; but they took it. Dreams of the past can be slow poison if all they produce is tears. Dreams can make men crazy, they can keep people from looking at life's realities. Dream-wishes can keep men from doing what is possible under the circumstances. Jeremiah did not wish these people to forget Jerusalem. He wanted them to recognize the Must's of the situation where they were. There is such a thing as loyalty to the inevitable. "Shake hands with the Inevitable" is a good rule, for the really inevitable is the hand of Providence.

Loyal to God

The story of the young men who chose death rather than be disloyal to God by worshiping Nebuchadnezzor's golden image, reaches one of its high points in what the young men said to the king. God will deliver us, they said; He is able to deliver us and we believe He will; BUT IF NOT—if there is no God, or if He is not able to save us, or if He does not choose to save us, if He forsakes us altogether, we will not be disloyal to Him. The story is a kind of parable about all the loyal servants of the true God in great pagan Babylonia during those exile years. Many Jews must have been tempted to take over the religion of their conquerors, just as after the second World War there was a rush toward Christianity in Japan. Certainly there in Babylon there were many voices whispering or calling aloud. Bow down! Conform, be like everyone else, when you are in Babylon do as the Babylonians do. Don't be peculiar, don't be stubborn, leave your invisible God and come worship the golden gods to whom the nation prays! But the young men made the right choice, hard then, hard always! They would be loyal to the true God, even if his deliverance was delayed.

It's hard to find anyone more enthusiastic than Mr. and Mrs. Creston Henderson, Rural Route 2, Grabill, who installed electric heating in their home in 1953. In their own words: "Electric heat is the added convenience necessary to give complete comfort and freedom in this age of electric living. It is safe, clean, economical, and gives us constant, dependable service during the coldest winter months."

Yes, I&M customers by their acceptance of this modern heating method have assured its future. Why not investigate the many advantages of electric heating today. Find out—like Mr. and Mrs. Henderson did—what it can do for your home and way of living.

Around the Town

With the Editor

A letter came this week from Howard McMaken who is not too enthusiastic over his plight. He had been stationed at Fort Bliss and is now at Camp Hanford, Wash. He says he didn't particularly like Fort Bliss—but he'd just as soon be back there.

He says "thanks" for sending the News to him, as have many of the fellows in service.

We're still glad to do it. Just give me your serviceman's name and address and the News will go to him for free.

With your permission, I hope, yours truly will be on his way to the lake for some relaxation when you read this. As in the past at vacation time, no issue will be published next week. So save up your items for the last week in August—and I'll be seein' you.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The July meeting of the Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Irma Allen with Maxine Kelley as co-hostess.

The club collect was led by Helen Reasor. Devotions were given by Arminta Steward. The history of the song of the month, "Yankee Doodle," was read by Irma Allen. She led the group in singing with Valda Brown at the piano.

Twenty-eight members and guests answered roll call with "a short patriotic poem or story." The secretary's report was read and approved. Lois Fisher gave an interesting report on summer conference. The parliamentarian, Arminta Steward, gave a report.

Members were urged to try the following practices: try to attend as many meetings as possible, be on time and refrain from whispering during the business meeting.

The poultry leader, Marjie Dwyer, told of the many diseases in poultry and of some of the cures.

Mrs. Isabella McClellan was a guest of the club and gave an educational feature on "Easy Does It." She summarized her talk saying, "If we do our work efficiently, we must plan our work and then work our plan. It seems to be lack-of-time that robs us of our personal freedom. Then we will have more time to live, think, play, read, for friendship, laugh, dream and more time for God, for it is life's only lasting investment."

The committee served delicious refreshments of frozen fruit, salad, wafers and ice tea.

Background Scripture: Daniel 1:5.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 6:10-18.

STANDING ALONE
Lesson for August 14, 1955

Then what? What happens next? What is goin to happen to me if I don't do what you want? What does "or else—" mean? If the person who asks such questions doesn't get answers he likes, but goes right on in his determined way, we say he is brave. If a man does what he does when everybody else is doing it, when he gets well paid for it, praised and rewarded, we do not call that brave. But when a man does what he does knowing pretty well that he will get hurt because he does it, we call the man brave.

Two Kinds of Courage

There are two kinds of bravery or courage. One we call physical courage, the other is moral courage. The physical hero dashes into a burning building or into a swift river, peril to his own life. He may refuse to disclose an important secret even though he is being tortured to make him reveal it. The moral hero stands up for what he knows is right even though this makes him unpopular or ridiculous in the eyes of people whose good will he would like to keep. We might say that physical courage is determination in spite of the prospect of bodily pain; moral courage is determination in spite of the prospect of mental or spiritual pain. Sometimes the two are combined in the same act and the same person, as with Daniel in the stories assigned for this week. Moral courage being rather more unusual than physical, let us take a look at that, especially.

Ridicule

Standing with the crowd never takes courage. Standing alone against the crowd always calls for courage, no matter what the crowd is carrying. Are they picking up stones? Then facing them calls for physical courage. Are they laughing their heads off? Then facing them calls for moral courage. The one thing that most people are afraid of more than anything else is being laughed at. Ridicule can be as cruel as any instrument of torture. Even men with a keen sense of humor don't like to be made fun of. Why do people who really know better, who down in their consciences know it is wrong for them to drink, drink and even get drunk all the same? The reason is, they can't stand being laughed at. It takes courage to stand alone against a laugh!

Contempt

Most men do not like to admit having made a mistake. It sounds a little like admitting one was a fool. And it has been observed that most men can more easily admit to being knaves than fools; we would almost rather be wicked than look silly. We can stand opposition more easily than we can stand contempt. But that is exactly what calls for moral courage in the man who stands alone. No one likes to be looked down on, no one likes to be thought of as so stupid or out-of-line that no one will respect him. But that is what young Daniel was facing in Babylon, it is what many today have to face. To take our temperance illustration again: Why do many people drink alcoholic liquors against their better judgment? They can't stand up against the crowd. Within the memory of living men there was a White House hostess who would not serve liquor at State dinners, no matter who was there. Many foreign ambassadors wrote home contemptuously about it; but she stood to her convictions. Not many have courage of that sort.

Loneliness

"Dare to be a Daniel, dare to stand alone!" is easy to sing, hard to do. The sheer weight of numbers overpowers people. They will climb aboard any bandwagon if it looks crowded; they will not venture into a heavenly chariot if they have to ride alone. It takes a little moral courage to stand up and be counted with a minority. It takes a great deal more to stand up and be counted THE minority of One. But such courage is possible. Daniel showed it; he showed that his moral courage was matched by his physical courage. And after all, he was not in the minority after all. God was on his side, or rather he was on God's side; and that made the difference. Many a time a good cause has been lost not by weakness but by cowardice; but on the other hand good causes have been saved by men who believed in their rightness so deeply that rather than deny their faith, they would be buried alive in loneliness.

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,
M. J. Klinger

We lived in it all last winter and found that the electric heating equipment kept the rooms at a constant temperature, and, most important of all, the slab floors were always nice and warm. From the experience we have gained, we can heartily recommend electric heat. It is economical and always does the job under the most extreme conditions."

Yes, I&M customers by their acceptance of this modern heating method have assured its future. Why not investigate the many advantages of electric heating today. Find out—like Donald Bieber did—what it can do for your home and way of living.

O.E.S. Honors Mrs. Baidinger

Fara Lee Baidinger of Spencerville was honored recently at a reception by the Indiana Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

The reception was held Saturday, August 6, at 3:30 in the afternoon at the Masonic Temple in Spencerville. Mrs. Baidinger is Grand Adah of the Indiana Grand Chapter and the reception was in honor of her office.

FARA LEE BAIDINGER

The chapter room was beautifully decorated as a garden setting with miniature picket fence, many pretty garden flowers, bird bath and lawn furniture. The program, under the direction of Charlotte Hudson, was opened with a piano prelude by Virginia Laux. Rev. Wayne Baxter offered the invocation and the Worthy Matron of the Spencerville Chapter, Mrs. Maxine Luker, extended a cordial welcome to those assembled. The pledge to the American and Christian flags followed.

Donzella Graham, Conductress, presented Mrs. Baidinger at the Alter where she was introduced and welcomed. She was escorted to the East through a line formed by Starlite members who greeted her with words to the tune of "You're the Cream In My Coffee."

The Scottish Rite Quartet of Fort Wayne sang three numbers. Ida Reed then gave the Star story, i.e. the life history of Mrs. Baidinger. This was followed by two dance numbers by young ladies from Auburn.

The introduction of distinguished guests, Starlite group and the Baidinger family were made and the meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer sung by Lois Fisher and Louise Zimmerman.

Approximately two hundred guests enjoyed punch and crackers in the dining room.

Mt. Pleasant vs. Sp'ville In Church Final

The play-offs of the St. Joe Church League have narrowed down to the final game with Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran and Mt. Pleasant to appear in the championship game on Friday night of this week.

The game is slated to start at 8 p.m.

Mt. Pleasant forced the series to its full measure by taking a 9-1 win Monday evening from the Spencerville team. Technically the game was a forfeit since Spencerville was unable to field nine eligible players. The game was played, however, using the ninth man who had appeared in only three regular season games. A league rule states that in order to be eligible for the play-offs, a player must appear in at least four season games.

Four teams had been eliminated prior to Monday's contest in a double-elimination play-off. Concord Methodist, one of the strong favorites in the play-offs, was knocked from contention with a loss to St. Joe Church of Christ, 12-2, after also dropping an 11-5 decision to Spencerville.

St. Joe Church of Christ dropped out with a loss to Spencerville, 7-3, and a loss to Mt. Pleasant, 4-3.

Newville Church of Christ and St. Joe Lutheran each lost their first two play-off games.

At Friday's championship contest the winner's trophy from the Church League and the sportsmanship trophy, donated by the St. Joe Valley Recreation Club, will be presented.

Scores of the play-offs follow.

Concord 17, Newville 4.

The party caucus was held Friday, August 5, in the town hall. George E. Baker, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, called the meeting to order. He in turn appointed Harvey Hull temporary chairman to conduct the business meeting including the nomination of candidates.

Twenty-one party members attended the meeting. Their choices for the town offices were as follows:

Trustee Ward 1 — Albert Wade.

Trustee Ward 2—Parlia Hull.

Trustee Ward 3 — Donald Kinsey.

Clerk-Treasurer — Loretta Musser.

The three wards are bounded as follows:

Ward 1—South School Street at the west, Washington Street (State Road 1) at the north and the city limits south and east.

Ward 2—North School Street at the west, Washington Street at the south and city limits north and east.

Ward 3—School Street at the east and city limits north, south and east.

With the appearance of the names of two women on the Democratic ticket for town offices, a new chapter in St. Joe history is written, as there is no previous record of women candidates in the town's political happenings.

The slate of candidates to be presented by the Republican Party will be chosen this week at a party caucus on Thursday evening. The meeting will be held at the town hall at 8 p.m. Derwood Ridgway is chairman of the local Republican Central Committee.

Could I borrow a cup of electricity?

Even a foresighted housekeeper runs out of something or other now and then . . . flour, sugar, or what have you. But the "what have you" never seems to include electricity. That's one thing that's always on hand no matter how much you use up, no matter how many new ways you find to use it.

With everyone adding new electric work-savers all the time, with new families and industries coming to town, how come there's always enough electricity to go around?

Electricity must be made and delivered, like everything else. Yet it can't be stored, or made more than a split second before it's used. And the plants that make it and the lines that deliver it take years to build!

Here's the reason you're getting all the electricity you need right now. I&M planned the building of the facilities that bring it to you so they'd be ready to serve you when needed. And the reason you won't "run out" five years from now, or ten, is that I&M continues to anticipate your growing needs that far ahead today.

Step in... and command the most modern truck power on any job!

New Chevrolet Task-Force Trucks

Seven new "high-voltage" high-compression valve-in-head engines!

Here's hour-saving, dollar-saving power for your job... the biggest choice of engines in Chevrolet truck history! And they're the most modern engines in the industry!

You've got it good under the hood with a new Chevrolet Task-Force truck! With two new V8's and five new sixes to choose from, you can pick the power that's tailor-made to do your kind of hauling.

Shortest stroke V8's in any leading truck! Both of Chevrolet's new truck V8's have an ultra-short stroke—shortest of any V8 in any leading truck. They're of modern oversquare design, which means that the piston stroke is smaller than the bore. The result is less piston travel per mile . . . longer engine life. Also, Chevrolet's compact truck V8's deliver exceptionally high horsepower per pound of engine weight. More power is actually available for hauling your loads!

Modern 12-volt electrical system! You get this great development in all new Chevrolet truck engines—both V8's and sixes. The 12-volt electrical system delivers twice the punch for quicker cold-weather starting (up to 30% faster cranking speed). It also provides a hotter, fatter spark for better ignition.

Come in and command the most modern truck power for your job!

V8 or 6 you get the right power for your job!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

GOD IN HISTORY

Lesson for August 28, 1955

What is it that makes the world move?—the world of men, of events, the wide world of history? What is the most powerful factor in history? Some say geography, some say climate (which is still geography), some say great men, some say ideas, some say the progress of inventions. The religious answer is strikingly different from all these: it is GOD.

The reason why historians seldom mention God (even when they believe in him) is that they limit themselves to what can be seen and heard. True, sometimes historians are concerned with thoughts, as for instance, what were Stalin and Roosevelt and Churchill thinking of at Yalta? But thoughts are facts that scientists all admit; while God is not the kind of fact with which science can deal. So "historical science" as it is called confines itself deliberately to the kind of fact that science describes. Now God—let it be repeated—is not in that class of things at all. He is not a thing, he is not in a class. He works in history, but not in the way a man works, still less like a force such as that of wind or rainfall or volcanic eruptions. God can be seen, but only with "eyes of faith." He can be known, but by no means as simply as you can be known. God works in history, not separately from events and men, but IN men and forces. As Paul says, God is over all, through all and in all.

King's Intention

According to the Bible, God can work in and by means of the acts of men who do not know him at all. There is a mystery here which no writer in the Bible undertakes to explain, a mystery which perhaps no human mind is capable of understanding. But the fact is believed by men of faith. Take for instance the famous king Cyrus, known to history outside the Bible as well as inside it. He was one of the great conquerors and administrators of all time. At a peak of his career he made himself master of what had been the Babylonian Empire. He knew that many a temple had been plundered and destroyed by the Babylonian kings, and he knew that the many displaced persons from all the conquered cities where those temples had been would be grateful for the restoration of those temples. So King Cyrus, in order to make himself "solid" and popular with this mass of subject peoples, adopted the policy of returning the "gods" of those peoples and authorizing the restoration of their temple worship. It used to be thought that Cyrus was a worshipper of the Jews' God, but archaeologists have discovered the original edict or announcement of Cyrus, explaining what he was doing and asking that all these gods whose worship he was restoring, would pray to Marduk, whom Cyrus regarded as the king over all the gods, on Cyrus' behalf. Isaiah says plainly that Cyrus did not know the true God—but God knew him, and wrought out his purposes through him, ignorant of God though he was.

People's Devotion

The Bible shows also that God works through the devotion and service of men who do not know him. We may doubt whether the proclamation of a Cyrus would have done any good if there had not been men who were eager and ready for just such a chance to return to Jerusalem and restore the worship of the true God. We have had in American history one of the many other illustrations of this same point in the freeing of the slaves. The emancipation proclamation of 1863 was not made altogether from charitable motives. There was a strong political-military purpose in it; the immediate object of the proclamation was not to free the slaves everywhere, but to win the war and restore the union. Later, when slavery was abolished by the Constitution, the freeing of the slaves would have done more harm than good if it had not been for the devotion of men and women of both races who made it their lifework to educate and uplift those who were like sheep without a shepherd. God does work in history; but he needs the service of those who understand his ways and work with him.

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P. M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

Nothing GOES like a Chevrolet V8!

Drive with care . . . EVERYWHERE!

It's the new winner in stock car competition . . .

and it's winning new, young-minded friends faster than you can say America's hottest V8.

Because of its liveliness, its looks, and because it holds the road like it loves it—which it does.

Come try it, won't you, if only for the fun of it!

NOTHING
(not even the high-priced cars)
HAS GOT SO MUCH TO GO WITH!

The most up-to-date V8

So advanced in design and so efficient in operation that it needs only 4 quarts of oil instead of the usual 5. Shortest stroke of any V8 in the industry. Delivers more horsepower per pound than any engine in Chevrolet's field. Take your choice of the 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire" or the 180-h.p. "Super Turbo-Fire," optional at extra cost.

Two Sizzling 6's

They're the most powerful 6's in Chevrolet's field—And like the V8's, they give you the extra punch, performance and reserve power of the only 12-volt electrical system in Chevrolet's field.

Powerglide, Overdrive or Synchro-Mesh

Chevrolet gives you the drive to suit your driving. A new and finer Synchro-Mesh transmission, or as extra-cost options, oil-smooth Powerglide automatic transmission or Touch-Down Overdrive.

New engineering advances on steering, springing, suspension

Special ball bearings in the steering gear roll with the turn of the wheel to reduce friction. Glide-Ride front suspension rolls the bumps smooth. Outrigger rear springs straighten the curves.

It's hard to find anyone more enthusiastic than Mrs. Robert J. Bumke, 2707 Genesee Avenue, Fort Wayne, who has been enjoying electric heating in her home since January, 1954. In her own words: "We like electric heat because of its cleanliness and room-by-room control. We have no registers to clean and the space usually required for a furnace can be used for living purposes. To sum it up, we are very pleased with our electric heat and know that if more people knew of its advantages, they, too, would prefer it."

Yes, I&M customers by their acceptance of this modern heating method have assured its future. Why not investigate the many advantages of electric heating today. Find out—like Mrs. Bumke did—what it can do for your home and way of living.

Around the Town

With the Editor

You know how it is when you come back from a vacation and get the nose back to the grind stone - or try to. That's what happened to the ed last week with those warm days and thinking about how nice it was to be able to jump in for a swim whenever it got too hot. What a temptation it is to join the kids in their wadding pool these days and do a little splashing around to cool off.

Three or four have asked if I got any fish while vacationing. Yep, just enough to make things interesting. I can't go out and set for hours at a time like some of the old pros hereabouts. I'm still just a kid yet - at least that's what some folks say - and after a couple of hours I've had enough. But I did stay out the Thursday before coming home long enough to catch the most fish at one setting that I ever caught. And at the most unlikely place and at the seemingly most unlikely time.

Pop and I went out on that Thursday shortly after noon and anchored (at Lake James incidentally) right at Pokagon Beach. We were at the north end of the beach about forty feet from the retaining ropes for the bathers, and caught bluegills, rock bass, perch, sun fish, crappies and large mouth bass. I got seventeen and Pop got eight (for once in my lifetime I outfished him) in the three hours or so we were out. The only reason I lasted that long is that they were biting. And boy! - those six and a half inch bluegills felt like whales!

There was one - the one that got away - that must have been a whale. I had a bite and gave a good pull. The line broke just like that at the tip of the pole and bait, hook, sinker, line and bobber went their merry way below the surface. We kept look-out for the erant line and, sure enough, it came to the surface a short distance away. Well, we wanted that line and what was on it, but we also didn't want to lose the place. So we kept on fishing. And the bobber disappeared again. I put a new rig on my pole and resumed the fun. Later we saw the bobber again and after having our fill of fishing pulled anchor and rowed over to the lost line. I had visions of coming home with a good fish story about the big one that broke the line but was eventually caught when we pursued the telltale red and white sliver and pulled it from the water, just as it went down. But, alas, we didn't have much pursuing to do. In fact, the bobber was disappointingly co-operative in staying where it was until we got over to it. I grabbed it with expectation, anyhow, that there would be a healthy tug from the other end.

Are you excited? Waiting for the climax of the story? Did he get a fish? Was it a big one? Was there a tug at the line?

There was a tug all right — all the tug that a perfectly clean baitless hook could muster.

Ah, but it was fun while it lasted.

Don Walters sent a nice letter last week from his present location with the U.S. Army. He's stationed at Fort Carson, Colorado, and says he has "a pretty good job. I am driving the Brass around where it wants to go." The only trouble with Colorado, Don says, is that it is too far from home. His outfit has been out in the field, up in the mountains 91 miles from Fort Carson.

Further on in the letter Don says, "I don't mind the Army to bad, but I'll take 'GOOD OLD HOME ANYTIME'."

I guess we know now where he'd like to be, don't we??

Another serviceman, this one a sailor boy, stopped in this week for a while. He's Jordan Baughman, who is home for a thirty-day leave. He's feeling pretty good because his boys from Mt. Pleasant won the Church League championship.

We were going to put an ad in the paper but let's just do it this way.

The Lions Club has some homemade ice cream from their recent social being kept at the local dairy. They made over fifty gallons for the social and didn't use all of it. If you want some, it's in three gallon containers for four dollars or two and one-half gallons for three-fifty. Contact Lynn Fisher or Maury Kline.

Republicans Name Ticket For November

The Republican ticket of nominations for town officials was selected Friday evening at a meeting in the town hall.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Thursday evening but there were not enough members present to hold a caucus. The meeting then scheduled for Tuesday night was held Friday night in order to have the ballot officially registered by the deadline, the last Saturday in August.

Derwood Ridgway, Republican Central Committee chairman, presided at the meeting which produced the following nominations by 27 persons present:

Trustee Ward I — Lester Pugsley.

Trustee Ward II—Derwood Ridgway.

Trustee Ward III — Orville Coburn.

Clerk-Treasurer — Willard Hurni.

The boundary of Ward II as outlined in last week's issue of this paper had an incorrect boundary in the description. The west boundary was listed as North School Street and should have read Spencerville Street.

Six Scouts Advance In Spencerville Troop 172

Six members of the Spencerville Troop 172 Boy Scouts of America passed requirements for 2nd class scout recently at a court of review held for that purpose.

The six boys advanced from the rank of tenderfoot to 2nd class scout. They were Don Baidinger, Jack Barnes, Terry Brattain, Wally Graham, Jim Hollabaugh and Parks Hollabaugh.

The court of review was held in the scout hall on the second floor of the fire station. Refreshments were served following the review.

Before the meeting the Boy Scout Troop and the Cub Scout Troop canvassed Spencerville for contributions to the emergency flood relief fund. A total of $34 was collected.

Mt. Pleasant Takes Extra-Inning Thriller, 6-5, For Church Title

The final game of the playoffs of the St. Joe Church League ended as a real thriller Friday night. Mt. Pleasant overcame a three-run deficit in the last half of the seventh inning to tie Spencerville Methodist-Lutheran at 5-all and then went on to win the championship in the ninth inning when Bob Plummer came through with a base hit with the bases loaded and one out.

Spencerville scored four runs in the fourth inning as a result of the generosity of Gene Carper, the Mt. Pleasant hurler, who gave up four bases on balls in the half inning. There were three hits and an error also thrown in during the scoring but the free passes to first base did the damage. Mt. Pleasant also scored in the fourth, getting two runs on two walks, a single by Max Peters and a double by Jim Surfus.

Spencerville scored their final tally in the fifth on a walk, a fielder's choice and a single by Jerry Leonard plus an error on the base hit.

The Mt. Pleasant rally in the seventh started with one out. Burmell Walter, who had suffered an ankle injury a few weeks ago in pre-game practice, inserted himself as a pinch-hitter and lined a solid single to right center field. He hopped, skipped and jumped to first on the hit, hampered by the game limb, put in a pinch-runner and went back to his coaching - managing chores along the base line. With this bit of inspirational managing as a starter, the next two batters waited out Leonard for walks. A strike-out then made the second out before Carper also received a base on balls, bringing in a run. Surfus produced his second clutch hit of the evening with a clean single scoring the tying runs. The rally ended on a pop-up to the shortstop.

Spencerville recorded a hit in each of the two extra innings but could not score. They appeared to have a golden opportunity in the eighth when, after two outs were made, Markle was safe on an error. Blaine Kimes hit a two-bagger and Kern Butler followed with a walk. But Plummer hauled in Bud Shockley's fly ball to left to cut the rally short. Frank Dwyer led off the ninth with a single. He was erased after Tom Hollabaugh's out in a double play on Leonard's infield grounder.

Mt. Pleasant's winning rally opened with one out. Carper hit his second double of the contest. Surfus got his third hit of the game, a single, and Roop walked. It was here that Plummer lashed out his game-winning hit, a double that brought in all three runners, though only one was needed in the scoring to record the win. He ended up on third on the throw-in to the infield.

Following the game, Harold Baker, vice-president of the Church League, presented the championship trophy to the Mt. Pleasant team. He also made the sportsmanship trophy award, this to DuWayne Goings, representing the Concord Methodist team which won the award.

Strength the Result of Equality

A disappointing characteristic that we humans have is our lack of consistency in what we preach and what we practice. And too often the inconsistency is the result of a benefit or advantage or concession granted for a specific group. The members of that group may not believe in principle in what occurs, but when it comes to refusing the actual direct benefit or opposing such a gain, it becomes a different story.

The greatest asset our country has, indeed, the very reason for its being as strong as it is, the reason for our having, as individuals, the great material wealth we possess, is free enterprise. We hesitate using the term because it has been proclaimed so profusely that it becomes meaningless. The term is used to such an extent that we take it for granted without looking to see what free enterprise means. To further hinder our appreciation of the advancement of man through such a system of indiviudal initiative, we give credit to such a system but in practice veer in other directions.

It would be a fraction of a percent of our citizenry who would answer this question with a negative answer - "Do you think free enterprise is the best economic system?" It would be the same fraction who would answer again in the negative to this query - "Do you think this system brought us our high standard of living?" Yet, we can take the great majority who profess belief in the system and credit it with bringing the greatest benefits, break that majority down into groups or classes according to profession, and get a negative approach because of their actions.

America has come to mean "free enterprise" to its people. Mention the words "free enterprise" to the man on the street and it's almost a sure thing that the first thing which pops into his mind is "America." Well, then, what does free enterprise mean? Would "business without restrictions or controls" be a likely answer? Probably, but it would only be part of the answer. When we speak of free enterprise, we not only mean that men have the opportunity to work at the job of their choice or to operate the business of their choice but also that in setting up such a system there will be no favored professions or groups, there will be no economic program or policy which tends to place a greater importance on one such group or profession than on another or others. Free enterprise is a culmination of a basic Christian and American conception of equality.

It would be a brave soul who would say today, "Free enterprise can't work." Yet, that is what we are saying, in effect, in our programs of subsidy. Imagine the condemnation that would fall on the head of the Congressman who would say, "Free enterprise is unworkable." Americans would be insulted at such a bland statement. They would be astonished at such a statement in the face of all the good things we Americans have today. But no resentment is forthcoming, no astonishment is evident when BOTH major political parties support and practice a program of subsidy for agriculture, when members of Congress vote with a majority to continue such a program of favoritism. Indeed, it would be a precarious stand for a Congressman to take to advocate eliminating government controls and regulations in agriculture. That man would be likely to lose his office in the next election over such a stand. But those who would put him out would still answer "yes" to the above questions relative to American free enterprise.

Can you imagine the chagrin of other businessmen in St. Joe should the St. Joe News propose to the Congressmen of the Fourth District that small weekly newspapers be guaranteed a minimum income for the papers they produce? What would the grocer think of that, or the hardware owner, or the garageman, or the service station operator, or the clothing store operator? In all probability this would be the general thought - "Why should HE get it and not us?" And soon there might be an organized pressure group for the small groceryman, for the hardwareman, for the garageman, etc., to get a similar program enacted for their particular groups.

Would there be anything wrong with such a movement? An emphatic "yes" is the only answer to such a question. Should such a program be started, we might as well chuck all the high-sounding praise of American free enterprise out the window and go the struggling way of other economic systems which dote on government regulation. We might as well forget the pretty title "leader of the free nations" for we would not be such. Actually, we are not such now as long as any group is given an advantage which other groups do not have. The entire idea is wrong because we are a nation of equality, favoritism is not to be given, favoritism is not to be expected.

"-should such a program be started-" is a conditional phrase of an actuality. Why not face facts; such a program, or trend, has been started in agriculture. If free enterprise is the best economic system, why isn't it best for agriculture? What makes that profession different from others. It would be interesting to have our Congressmen explain or justify subsidizing agriculture since they are the ones who propose and approve the laws of the land. It would be very interesting to hear specifically an answer to the question, "Why must agriculture be controlled?"

There is no profession which is more responsible for the strength of our country than any other profession. All work together for the strength that is the result of free enterprise. It would be fine if one or another could truthfully say, "Things wouldn't be as they are if it were not for me." Then the trend of today could be justified. But it just is not so in a literal sense. It IS true, however, when all members of all professions make the statement as individuals, not as economic groups, and recognize that their neighbor can make the same statement.

Every individual is important to the free enterprise system, but never more important than the next fellow. The same rule applies to professions.

Eighty thousand of the teachers in the nation's classrooms are not qualified to do the job properly, according to the National Education Association. Outdated teacher-licensing laws and senseless teacher-training programs in our colleges are turning away bright students and attracting many who fail to make the grade in other professions, says Kenneth Robb in Redbook. Writing in the September issue he urges reform of present licensing laws:

"Of the approximately 34 million children going back to public primary and secondary schools this month, a good many will receive poor education because their teachers are inadequate — and perhaps themselves uneducated. We are losing good teachers because we are choking off the source of supply with our outmoded and unrealistic teacher-licensing laws. The 'qualifying' courses prescribed by these laws are dull and unchallenging and are considered an utter waste of time by ambitious students.

"For an elementary teaching certificate, most states require a minimum of ten technique or 'professional' courses from the school of education. The fledgling teacher has one of two choices: he gives up all electives in order to get licensed, or he stays on in college an extra year. Few are able or willing to make the sacrifice.

"Those who do make the sacrifice are often sorry. The courses required by law are notorious on college campuses for their dullness, repititiousness and superficiality. Primarily how-to-do-it classes, their subject matter ranges all the way from educational theory to supervision of a May fete and operation of a school bus.

"The tragedy is that, no matter how competently teachers do their job, they are never completely free of the 'educationist's' apron strings. To get a pay increase or promotion, by law they must return again and again to sip of the same old soup. For professional graduate study, as educationists see it, is stranglely unprofessional unless it's in the School of Education.

"Ironically, though all states agree that teachers must take some how-to-teach courses before being certified, no two states agree on exactly what courses qualify a teacher. So mixed up is the whole teacher-licensing system that more than a thousand different certificates are issued by the 48 states. One state alone issues 60. This, to, contributes to the shortage.

"In addition many states have their own home-grown laws designed to pacify historical societies and chambers of commerce. For example, you can't teach in West Virginia without three credits in the state's history, goverment and geography and two credits explaining the West Virginia school system. Arizona demands you have a course in the Arizona constitution taken in an Arizona college.

"To determine whether an outdated law may be barring school doors to good teachers in your community, compare its regulations with the following provisions which might be incorporated in a model licensing law:

"One, required professional technique courses are kept to a bare minimum of not more than three of four.

"Two, special licenses can be granted individuals qualifying through examinations, interviews and standard tests that measure mental, emotional and professional fitness.

"Three, certification is possible through intern programs, on-the-job training, special extension and correspondence work.

"Four, the granting of permanent licenses and pay-increase and promotion schedules are based on a teacher's effectiveness in educating children."

ators that the word "trillion" has an "r" in it.

During recent years we have had a lot of trouble getting millions and billions straightened out. One of the most common typo's is to write $281,000,000 when we actually mean $281,000,000,000. They look pretty much alike. And they sound pretty much alike, too—million and billion. Just a matter of an "m" or a "b".

But now, as the national debt approaches new horizons and our Congress is thinking "big" we should probably all get familiar with the word "trillion." It's a little more complicated since, instead of just substituting a "t" for a "b", an "r" must be thrown in.

Another problem with a trillion dollar debt, from the newspaperman's standpoint, is the difficulty of making $1,000,000,000,000 fit into a headline. Of course a headline writer might use a note to say, "Zero's continued on page 8", but that hardly seems proper newspaper styling.

There is also an international problem. Here's how Webster defines trillion: "In French and American notation, a thousand billions, or in English and German notations, a million billions." Imagine what would happen if we started talking trillions in our foreign aid departments. Only safeguard would be another headline complication. It would probably be necessary to write, "Trillion (Amer. & Fr.)" or "Trillion (Ger. and Eng.)"

Under the circumstances, it would seem the better part of wisdom for newspapermen to fight the trillion dollar trend. It's too complicated. But—just in case—remember that trillion has an "r" in it—"R", like the first letter in the word "Ruin."

—Don Robinson in "The American Press, August 1955.

In the fable of Red Rding Hood, the wolf wore a friendly smile. In the animal kingdom the wolf has always been the predatory, calculating enemy of all; and yet time after time it has successfully used deception to fool its victims. Certain basic facts of life—the clearly seen realities—must be kept constantly in mind as the United States and her allies extend their talks and pleasantries with Communist leaders who for the moment are displaying a front which seems to change the historic nature of Communism.

One reality is this (as documented in the August Reader's Digest): Since President Roosevelt extended U.S. diplomatic recognition to the Soviet regime in 1933, Soviet-American talks have taken place some 3400 times. These meetings have produced at least 106 million words—and exactly 52 major agreements. Only two of the agreements have been honored by the Soviets: (1) to enter the war against Japan (two days before it ended, and strictly to her benefit); and (2) to permit Western air corridors to Berlin (of good propaganda value).

Before we take our first step toward trusting the Soviet leaders' words and placing our faith in their agreements, we should submit the Red Dictators to a reasonable test. They should be asked to effectively repudiate the Lenin line of the Communist International, to which all of World Communism is publicly dedicated. The Lenin line calls for the overthrow of the capitalistic nations and declares that the world cannot contain Communism and Capitalism: one or the other must be destroyed.

Before we give away secrets or alter any of our national defense plans and goals, we should insist that the Red dictators publicly identify each of the 5,000,000 Fifth Columnists conspirators in the 60 nations outside the Iron Curtain, and transport them to Russia unless they wish to renounce their revolutionary program of action. A congressional committee, after a two-year study, has placed the Fifth Column figure at 5,000,000. Let the Kremlin now actually break up this vast network of conspirators, trained for years in techniques for conquering all nations. This would be a reasonable test of Soviet sincerity.

Before we accept the idea of doing business with the Communist leaders we should demand to see a unified Germany established, with Soviet approval and with the Russians completely withdrawn from Eastern Germany; a unification of the two halves of Korea and Indo-China, after the withdrawal of all Communist Chinese troops and Kremlin agents from the northern halves of these countries. These are practical considerations. They would not molest the present Communist empire except at the three points, in Germany, Korea and Indo-China where nations are split unnaturally.

There is, of course, another acid test to which the Kremlin must be subjected before the U.S. accepts Soviet Russia as a decent world neighbor worthy of trust and friendship. The demanding of this mandatory acid test would in itself be a test of the moral character of the U.S.A. The test is this: all the nations that have been subverted or otherwise taken over by Communists must be freed and permitted to choose their own way of life.

If the present Communist leaders in Moscow would have a "rebirth," release the millions of captives in the slave labor camps of Siberia. and permit the freedom-loving people of all the subject nations to have freedom and build their own nations as they see fit, then the world could look forward to the greatest era in the history of mankind. America, in whatever dealings it has with the Communist bosses, must express a demand for these objectives over and over again. We cannot claim to be a Christian nation unless we do. We cannot keep alive the hope of the enslaved millions unless we do.

America has the weight of military strength, the overwhelming productive strength, and it should develop the moral strength to back up such demands upon the Soviet leaders. Russia is in serious trouble. The Communist idea is proving to be a terrible failure for the masses of humanity on whose behalf it was supposed to have been conceived. The spector of hunger stalks across Russia and China; the dictators are fearful. Here in America, on the other hand, the free way of life, the Godly way, is proclaimed with abundance and with incomparable economic strength. The Red dictators are desparate for time to consolidate their tyranny over the lives of 900 million people and then use them to conquer the world. America must do everything it can to thwart this evil plan.

—Dr. George S. Benson, Director, National Education Program.

We do not agree with the President of the American Medical Association who recently criticized the social security system as "out and out charity." It is nothing of the sort. Rather it is "out and out chicanery." If it were charity we would be all for it.

Charity is the voluntary giving of one's own substance to help others. Social security is the forcible extraction of your substance to provide for somebody else's retirement. Under the guise of providing an "insurance" program for your retirement, it collects "premiums" which are nothing more than taxes, and pays them out to those now over 65 and eligible under administrative regulations for benefits. The balance, which you have been told is to be held to provide for your security, is given to the U. S. Treasury which spends that money for other purposes, like foreign aid or agricultural subsidies. The Treasury gives the social security system government bonds in return for this money, but those bonds cannot be used to pay your retirement benefits until an equal amount of taxes are first collected by the Treasury to redeem them. In addition past Congresses have refused to raise taxes enough to build up this so-called "trust fund" so that there would be only enough to pay the benefits of those now on the rolls even if the bonds could be used.

So, the money you have "invested" and will continue to "invest" under the present social security system will be all gone when you retire, if you do. The benefits that have been promised to you must be paid for by the taxpayers working when you are able to quit, your sons and theirs. But they will have to pay higher and higher taxes than you do to keep you in the style to which your politicians say you must become accustomed. The Social Security Administration itself estimated, in 1950, before new additions were included in the benefits, that the cost of the program in 2000 A.D. would be between $13,236,000,000 and $20,604,000,000. That is conservative, because it does not take into account any future additions to the cost of the program by future Congresses. Democratic members proposed several such additions this year which were only narrowly blocked. In the past they have been upped five times in 20 years.

So to pay out your social security benefits in 1975, for instance, your sons and his associates will have to pay from 6 to 10 per cent of their income in social security taxes, none of which will go to provide for their own retirement. Will they be willing to do so? Will their employers, who will also be forced to pay from 6 to 10 per cent matching payments, also be able and willing to do so? If not, Congress is certain to limit, restrict and eliminate many people from the rolls and reduce the tax rate. Where is your social security then? Will you be cut off or won't you? Can you retire or can't you? The fact is you simply don't know today what social security is going to be like 20 or 30 years from now—if it is still in existence.

In the words of the American Institute for Economic Research, "Social Security is a scheme by means of which the working members of the population are forced to contribute to the incomes of retired individuals without regard to the need of those who have retired." This is another fundamental error in the program. You cannot collect social security if you earn over a certain small amount yearly. You can if you have savings and investments which, with your social security payments, will give you a comfortable income. So, "In practice only those who have substantial savings or some other source of income can afford to 'retire'." Those who worked all their lives and accumulated little savings or investments "must pay all their lives but will have no practicable choice but to continue working (and incidentally contributing) long after they are 65." If this feature of the law is changed by future Congresses it will simply mean that the cost will increase even more and so will the taxes.

A NATION'S WORSHIP

Lesson for September 4, 1955

It would be very nice to wake up some Sunday morning and find that everybody in America had decided to join our church. Suppose that up to now you had belonged to the First Universal Church of All Angels, and there was only one congregation of that denomination in your town, along with maybe six or eight other denominations. But suppose that on this Sunday morning as you walked to church you would find the Universal-Church-of-All-Angels sign on every church building you passed. Suppose you learned by the morning paper that this was because the President of the United States (himself a prominent member of your denomination) had issued a Directive ordering all churches to come over into this one—or be abolished entirely. Well, you would know that was a dream . . . because this is free America, and there is not and constitutionally can never be an official, government-supported, national, established religion.

The Nucleus

So when we talk of "a nation's worship" in America we can't mean what we would mean in a country where everybody is dragooned into one single kind of church, a country where to be born into the nation is to be born into the church at the same time. Still, there is sense in talking about the nation at worship, for take us by and large, we do worship; the church is too prominent an object in every landscape to be overlooked. And even in free America where church and state are separate, we can learn something from the ancient Hebrews who combined church and state in one. The first thing we learn is not to be discouraged by the fact that many people don't go to church at all. The whole story of Ezra and Nehemiah, the prophecies of Haggai and of Zechariah, show us that there were great masses of indifferent people in Judea after the "Return" and the restoration of the worship at the high altar in Jerusalem. There were the same difficulties with a building program that we have; preaching fell on many a deaf ear, just like now. Worship is now, and has always been, carried on, in the true sense, not by the masses but by a nucleus of devoted men and women.

The Opposition

The Jews who returned to Palestine to get their religion organized and under way again, with public services and all, found out another thing which we Americans might well learn—indeed, we have learned it. That is, not only is there indifference to religion, but it has many enemies. It is nothing but prettified nonsense to suppose that everybody in the world means well, that we all desire the welfare of society. It is contrary to the facts to believe that even those who do not worship with us and will not join us nevertheless wish us well. Don't deceive yourself. There are in America, as there are everywhere, people who are "plain mean." There are businesses that injured people, businesses that contribute to crime, indeed some businesses that even a not-too-moral police force labels as crime. Those who live by the profits of these enterprises just hate the church; let's face it.

Can Government Help?

Now in ancient Palestine, say Zechariah's time, not to mention earlier times, church and state helped and supported each other. King and high priest might even be related. Especially after the Exile, church and state became practically one. In our free America—and we would not wish it unfree, for a moment—can the government do anything to help the church? Readers who belong to Sunday school classes can start a very interesting discussion by asking that question, How can Government help the church? Ought Government to try to help us? One way, surely, by which the State can aid the church is by laws which will keep the Lord's Day free, so far as possible, from work-day necessities. Another way is be setting an example. When leaders in government set an example of sharing in the public and private worship of God, the nation is all the better for it.

The August meeting was held August 25 at 8 p.m. at the home of Carolyn Miller.

What is America?

We have been wondering just what kind of an impression the visiting Russian farmers will take home with them regarding America. Certainly the wide expanse of farm lands with the waving grain and the wonderful farm machinery both for planting and harvesting must be a part of their impression.

However, our hope is that they might be impressed with the great heart of America. The heart that causes our president to visit a recent disaster area and plan a fund (our fund) for the relief of the area. Also, the relief from sickness and paralysis that the Salk vaccine will eventually bring; the love and sacrifice of parents for their children; the present trend for better school facilities; the mutual help that capital and labor are giving each other; the continued search for spiritual security.

These are small parts of America that should impress all the world.

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P. M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,
M. J. Klinger

Around the Town

With the Editor

Red Heyman almost got himself hospitalized this week when the Mrs. was giving birth to their latest addition to the family. He said later Monday after Junior was born that things began to go 'round and 'round as he waited at the hospital.

Women just don't know what us fathers go through.

Things we like to hear in our little town—the pleasant greeting Tuesday morning at mail time as one grocer passes another's place of business—"Hi, Butch!"

Here's something worth maybe nothing.

A press notice states that "Hoosiers were among the nation's lightest drinkers of distilled spirits in the past year, an annual report of the liquor industry showed today. Average consumption in Indiana amounted to just over half a gallon for each man, woman and child. The national average was about 1.4 gallons. Washington had the highest rate of consumption, about 4.5 gallons per person."

Sayyy, are we Hoosiers going to let them go around us like that??

Hardware, News Office Thefted; Safe Blasted

Amstutz Hardware & Furniture Company and the News Office in St. Joe were broken into sometime late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. The safe at the hardware was blown open with explosives and an undetermined amount of cash, reportedly approximately $150, was taken. Several watches were also included in the loot, one stored in the safe, the others taken from a showcase.

The only apparent theft at the News Office was a dollar bill from the cash drawer. A cigar on one of the desks was shredded to pieces on the desk top.

Entry to both buildings was gained from the rear. A double door of the hardware was pried open, then pushed shut. The rear door of the News Office also was pried open.

The safe was opened by drilling a hole in the door of the safe, inserting the explosive and packing with soap. The blast, which no one has reported hearing, blew the door off in a job that appears to be the work of professionals.

The break-ins were discovered Thursday morning at the opening of the establishments for business.

State Police Detective Russell Hoffman conducted the investigation.

A Theory of Relativity

Albert Einstein is known for his theory of relativity. But what his theory of relativity means is contained in a world of the unknown for the average person. The mention of his name brings thoughts of complicated scientific knowledge, formulae and equations. The man on the street knows that Eisnstein has a brilliant mind and offers a theory which he developed because of that brilliance. But the meaning of the theory in specific terms is beyond common comprehension.

Einstein's theory of relativity need not be dismissed from our thoughts, however, because it is not understandable. We cannot offhand gain an understanding of this scientific theory of relativity. But for the average person a theory of relativity can be a help in both individual relationships and group relationships in society. If applied to everyday living a theory of relativity can be a help in solving the problems that men face in their lives each day. Einstein, in his scientific probings, has an advantage over men in their social experiences or relationships in that scientific knowledge is certain of definite reactions as certain substances are combined. When a scientific equation is developed, it is not developed on the idea that the result may be thus-and-so, but on the scientific knowledge that a particular result will follow. Einstein could not be the genius, he is were it not for the exactness of the resources with which he works.

When the scientist develops new theories, new equations to explain actions and reactions, he uses the theories and equations developed in past experience. These are constant, never changing. The experimental equations may be changeable, but these will be discarded until the constant is found. That is the basis of science, knowledge through experiment with the unknown to achieve the constant factors of creation. We wouldn't experiment with atomic power if we didn't have some knowledge of the constant factors involved with the atom. We wouldn't set off a bomb with the general knowledge that "something will happen; it may pop like a firecracker or it may blow our heads off." There is still a lot of the unknown connected with the atom. But the practical experimentation with atomic power thus far is with definite knowledge, or reasonably accurate knowledge, of the results to be expected.

It is difficult to apply an equation, in a sense, to the social realtionships of men. The difficulty comes in that the thoughts of men are not definite, not constant. We cannot expect that, because a man acts a certain way in one circumstance, he will act the same in another circumstance. It takes a great awareness of life and living to be able to apply a yardstick to future circumstances through knowledge gained by past circumstances. That is what makes ths world the complicated thing it is - not because it is complicated in itself but because men do not apply a theory of relativity to their relationships with one another.

All circumstance can be placed in categories divided as to right and wrong. And "right" can be placed in three divisions as "good, better and best." How does this so-called theory of relativity enter the picture? In the simplest manner, because the solution to men's problems is simple. Each incident of life may seem of a different type at first appraisal. There are times when we recall "something similar" from the past, but there is always a restrictive factor which puts a different light on the present, or so we think. It is this lack of recognition of relativity that produces the seemingly complicated existence we have today. All happenings are related because they all involve circumstance centering around the two categories of right and wrong. If this theory of relativity were to be applied to problems as faced by man in his relationships as a person, as a part of a group in society or as a part of a nation, "ironing out" our problems would become much easier. We fail to look at every situation in such a manner because we are human. If we are hurt by someone or some group, the reaction (or the natural impulse we might call it) is to "get back" at those who cause our discomfort.

We might ask, how is my personal problem related to the problem of the nation, for instance, in its world relationships? It isn't related in the sense of a problem related to a problem. We are not talking of just circumstance alone or the difficulties arising from circumstance; we are talking of facing the problems which result from circumstance, facing them with a definite pattern or policy or, speaking in a scientific sense, equation to follow. One of the parts of the equation of life is the religious belief of men. That part cannot be changed. We do not want it changed and have shown that we do not because in setting up our rules of society we have recognized the validity of Christian laws as contained in the Ten Commandments. So our equation has a constant represented in its religious beliefs. The other part of the equation, whether it is one person, a group of society or a nation, may differ with each problem. But the problem will always be solved and the answer will always be right because of the religious constant, the Christian constant. The theory of relativity, therefore, as applied to all spheres of life does not propose to link problem to problem, as such. Rather, it links problem to problem through the solution and relates them through the use of the same approach, the use of the same Christian constant.

The theory of relativity in everyday living is but a practical application of the Golden Rule. There is nothing mysterious about it, there is nothing complicated about it. There is something difficult about it, though, and that difficulty makes it of utmost value. A non-religious person cannot be a believer in the Golden Rule because it is a recognition of the Christian standards of existence. Applying this rule is difficult; we fail to look upon past circumstance and classify the incidents as right or wrong, then govern our actions with trying to do "good, better or best," this regardless of what others may have done before. If this theory of relativity is followed, we can explain the reaction to past circumstance, we can explain our troubles. Because, if the reaction is not governed by what is best, there is no other result but further turmoil.

So it goes, one thing piling up on another, the troubles of living appearing to increase with each passing day. We would have considerable less to trouble our minds if we would apply a theory of relativity to all things. We need not experiment in seeking a constant for the equation of life. It exists today as always in our Christian religion.

Once upon a time Labor Day meant an opportunity to glorify and rightly applaud the achievements of the American workingman under a system of freedom.

But nowadays it is used as an occasion for giving vent to the bitterness of class warfare. This must gladden the hearts of the Communists of today in their perennial effort to capitalize on discord in the American scene.

Hymns of hate came from the labor-union bosses over the Labor Day holiday—hate with all its violent phrases against "big business." Geoge Meany, president of the AFL, for example, vowed that his organization was resolved "to intensify the political activities of labor and free the trade-union movement of shackles forged by the political power of big business."

Mr. Meany said by "shackles" he meant the Labor-management Relations Act of 1947 (Taft-Hartley Law) and what he termed the right-to-work laws passed by 18 states which, he said, "prohibit union security contracts." The "union security" to which he refers would mean, of course, a union monopoly of all jobs and would carry with it a loss of civil rights to the worker.

Walter Reuther, head of the CIO, also declared war on business in America and used his Labor Day statement for the partisan political purpose of attacking President Eisenhower who, he said, has led a crusade for "big business."

Nowhere in any of these statements was there a single word of praise for or even mention of the constructive part played by business management in America without whose creative genius and unremitting efforts to expand there would be no such high employment in the United States as prevails today. Nowhere also was there any mention of the problems of the smaller businesses which are being forced to close or be gobbled up by larger businesses because of the uniformity of pay scales that can be paid only by the larger companies.

The Labor Day pronouncements emphasize the apparent belief of the labor leaders that only by more class warfare and more discord and more strife and more repression of the Constitutional right of the citizen to work where he pleases can the trade-union movement achieve its goals.

Both the CIO and AFL leaders are outspoken in their denunciation of Communism and they have had their troubles with Communist infiltration but when the Soviet propaganda writers in Moscow read the Labor Day statements of American labor chiefs they will find corroboration of their charges that the labor-union movement here is not free but is in the "shackles" of government. Likewise in the attacks on big business, the Soviet script writers will detect a familiar note, for it is they who constantly declare that class war must be fought unceasingly to break down capitalism.

There is not better way to sabotage capitalism than to provoke and sustain class warfare in America. Debate on the merits or demerits of labor legislation can surely be conducted without invective and the bitterness of class against class.

Both the CIO and AFL statements praise the coming merger which will certainly give the labor-union oligarchy that rules the top unions virtually complete control of all trade unions in America. Such a merger certainly is one the Department of Justice isn't going to be asked to look into as a "restraint of trade" though the Democratic politicians on Capitol Hill are never silent when there's a business merger announced.

The Labor Day propaganda against business management in America as issued by the labor leaders happened to sychronize with a rather remarkable statement by the social action department of the National

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday-School Lessons

Background Scripture: Nehemiah 1; 2; 4; 6; 12:27-31, 38, 43.

Devotional Reading: Nehemiah 1:6-11.

EXECUTIVE TASK
Lesson for September 11, 1955

The city of Jerusalem was a slum. There is no other good word for it. The people, poor and few and scared, were existing in the midst of rubble. Today in Korea the cardboard shacks are coming down, more permanent houses are being built; but in Jerusalem there was no rebuilding. Everything was left just as it was after the war. How long had that been? One hundred and forty-one years! Four generations — as far back from Nehemiah's time as 1814 is from us. Suppose the city of Washington had never been rebuilt, since the British burned it in the "war of 1812"? Nehemiah was amazed and shocked when he heard about it. Like all prosperous Jews who lived in Persia, he had supposed everything was all right back in the mother-land. When they told him how things actually were, he first cried; but then he acted.

Competition

Nehemiah, armed with a royal commission—for Palestine was now a part of the great Persian Empire—turned out to be one of the most remarkable executives in history. He went to Jerusalem as governor; but he saw it was no real city. In those days you could no more have a city without a wall around it than you could can have a city today without paved streets, or telephones. The wall was an absolute number one Must. No doubt previous governors had seen as much; but they had done nothing about it. Nehemiah at once went to work on this problem. In 52 days the wall was completed; 52 days to do what for 93 years (since the first "Return?) every one else in charge of Jerusalem had failed to do. How did Nehemiah succeed where so many had failed—or not even tried? The answer, in one sentence, is: Nehemiah was the kind of executive who can make hindrances and handicaps work for him instead of against him. One of the handicaps obviously was the many jealous divisions among the people. The class-spirit can be shown just as easily in a group of castaways on a desert island as it can in New York. Nehemiah knew all about this; and he organized his wall-builders by groups according to their occupation. The goldsmiths built here, and the priests built there, and so on. No group wanted to be outdone by any other group, so they all pushed on till it was done. It takes healthy competition to bring out what people can really do.

Fear Can Be Useful

Perhaps the big reason why the wall had never been built was that the people, ill-equipped and leaderless, knew that their watchful enemies would not want Jerusalem to rise again. They were afraid of "reprisals" or raids from one place or another, if they really set to work to build a real city again. Now Nehemiah did not wait till they got over being scared. They never would. So he (so to speak) tied that scare to their coat tails, like a pack of fire-crackers. He ordered the citizens, as far as it was practical, to build the part of the wall nearest to where they lived. Every man and woman (yes, there were women) working on the wall would think: If this section of wall goes down, my own home will be the first one pillaged! So of course these scared people worked like mad, each one determined that if the wall gave anywhere, it wouldn't be near HIS house.

Putting Human Nature To Work

All that business about the spears, and other army equipment—ordering half the people to stand by in battle dress while the rest worked on the wall—may have scared off the enemy raiders; but it did something else: it got the wall built in an amazingly short time. Just the sight of those spears would put everybody into high

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P. M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

Catholic Welfare Conference. It denounced the Taft-Hartley Act as a "most serious cause of alarm" and as "an excessively legalistic labor-management relations act which was destined to stir up bad blood between unions and employers and to involve them in wasteful litigation and finally to plunge them more deeply than ever before into a partisan struggle for political advantage."

Not a word was said in the same statement about the one-sided Wagner Labor Relations Act which had caused Congress to try in the Taft-Hartley Law to correct the injustices that had stirred up bad blood between employers and unions for many years.

Coburntown To Dedicate Addition Sept. 25

Dedication services for the $20,000 addition to the Coburn's Corners Church of Christ will be held Sunday, September 25, 1955. The date will also be observed as Homecoming for DeKalb County's first church, organized in 1837. The church is located at the intersection of State Road 101 and the Hicksville-Spencerville Road.

WILMER BALLOU

The day's observance will begin with Bible School at 9:30 a.m. Worship services will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. At noon a basket dinner will be served in the church basement. Ample time has been allowed for the renewing of old acquaintances.

At 2:15 p.m. the afternoon program will begin with music. Darris Hamilton, former minister of the church, will be the song leader. Mr. Hamilton is now located with the North Highlands Church at Fort Wayne. William Clague of the Markle Church of Christ, also a former minister of the local church, will deliver the principal address. The dedication service will be conducted by Wilmer Ballou, present minister.

The new addition is the first major building program since 1903. The recent improvements have added these advantages: a beautiful baptistry, three adult class rooms, two rest rooms, a storage room, additional auditorium space, a deeper basement with new cement floor and sound-proof ceiling under the entire structure, thus affording more room for the Junior Bible School, a new oil heating and air conditioning system, and additional parking space.

Mr. Ballou has been serving the Coburn's Corners Church for the past three years. He previously served at Polk, Ohio, for four years. The congregation gives credit for its present good standing to his powerful sermons, his work with the young people, his untiring zeal for the Lord and his dutiful attention to the sick, the elderly, the unsaved and those in need of counsel.

Did you see the Hope diamond on TV the other night?

Sure was a beautiful thing, wasn't it? The appraised value of that rock is somewhere between one and two million dollars. The total weight is approximately 45 carats. Since the owner has to have a bodyguard when it is worn and have it in a bank vault the rest of the time, the pleasure of ownership must be slight.

We know that our customers get much pleasure from the diamonds we sell them for there are no such precautions necessary. The Hope diamond may be bigger than ours (and it is!) but it is no better than ours!

We can furnish the necessary ring for that important engagement as low as $40. We guarantee the pleasure of ownership.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday-School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Leviticus 22:21-22; Malachi.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 5:1-8.

WHAT IS RIGHT?

Lesson for September 18, 1955

The most dangerous notion in the world is that "right" and "wrong" do not mean anything at all but "I like it" and "I don't like it." When people begin to think along that line, all the walls are down, they have made the surrender of their character. Right and wrong do mean something, and all the slippery philosophies to the contrary notwithstanding, a person who is blind to these green and red lights is headed straight into trouble. Even when people are professing not to see any sense in those great words, for themselves, however, they do see how important they are for others.

Doing As Everybody Does

One of the wrong ways to find out what's right and what's not is the simple, easy and foolish method of counting noses. That is, some people will think anything at all is right if enough people do it. At the lowest level, take some primitive tribe in Borneo where men are admired in proportion to the number of heads—human heads — they have cut off and brought home. The "best citizens" of such communities are the most murderous! Now it has not occurred yet to some of those people that this killing is wrong; everybody does it, everybody has always done it, so it must be right. At the upper level, or at higher levels anyhow, take some American school or college where more than two-thirds of the students cheat on examinations. Everybody does it, the freshman is told, so it must be all right. In the same community, perhaps, people who should know better will indulge in liquor just because "everybody" does it. But you cannot make a wrong thing right by addition.

Doing As You Like

Another mistake about right and wrong is to suppose that if a thing appeals to you strongly enough it must be right—for you. One man's meat is another man's poison, you will be told. If it is pleasant, that is a sign it is good; if it is unpleasant, that is a sign it is bad, or wrong. Now everybody knows how silly this is, when they see some one else putting up this kind of excuse. But when it comes home to one's own self, one sings a different tune. We hear talk like this: "I have a right to be happy, haven't I? . . . . You can't expect me to sacrifice my own interests . . . . something I want so much can't be very wrong . . . . I'm in the grip of something too big for me . . . . After all, I've got myself to consider . . . . If you knew how much this means to me you wouldn't blame me . . . . " and so forth and so forth. Now there is a grain of truth—no more than a grain, mind you—in this kind of philosophy of life. Certainly the opposite is wrong, too; if the pleasant is not always the same as the good, the unpleasant is not always good either. Stuff you hate to eat may be good for you (like spinach) or it may be bad for you (like underdone sausage). In an ideal life, a person would love to do what is right to be done; he would not hate it. Still it does not follow that duty is always delightful, or that the "kick" we get out of something is a measure of how right it is for us.

Doing What God Likes

Malachi the prophet many centuries ago said pretty plainly, in the name of God, what is the real difference between right and wrong. (And of course this is not the only place in the Bible where this comes out). The righteous (the good man) is one who serves God; the wicked man is the one who does not serve him. Now that is not as simple as it is true. The will of God cannot be read off like a blueprint. God does not stand at a man's elbow all day long dictating to him moment by moment what he must do. Nevertheless in the Word of God we have the main lines of God's will plainly shown. We are never to be saved the trouble of thinking our problems through. But yet we do have some course-lights, some beacons on our way. We have the Ten Commandments. We have the Golden Rule. We have the inspired word, "He that loveth his neighbor hath fulfilled the law." The will of God—the right for men and women—is as simple, and as profound, as love.

INDIANA FARMERS USE MUCH FERTILIZER

Indiana was among the top three users of commercial fertilizer among Corn Belt states last year, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in a statement based on National Plant Food Institute compilations.

Indiana farmers used 1,161,909 tons of fertilizer to boost crop yields per acre and cut costs of production in 1954, the figures show. Ohio used 1,008,400 tons and Illinois 897,322 tons.

In 10 other Corn Belt states fertilizer use reached an overall total of 3,642,319 tons last year. The state-by-state totals were: Missouri 649,750 tons; Iowa 609,868; Michigan 575,481; Kentucky 574,197; Wisconsin 422,268; Minnesota 313,238; Kansas 226,041; Nebraska 191,452; North Dakota 48,643; and South Dakota 31,381 tons.

"Farmers in the Corn Belt today are using six times more fertilizer than they did back in 1939," says the committee. "In that year, fertilizer use in the 13 states totaled only 1,048,362 tons.

"The steady rise in fertilizer use in recent years has been due to an increasing realizaton by farmers of three important factors: 1. plant food helps them grow more corn per acre, extra tons of hay and pasture and higher yields of small grains; 2. it enables them to cut costs of production and to boost profits per bushel and per ton; 3. fertilizer is essential in any good soil management or conservation program."

He's a good ball player but he's out! Or rather he was out, now he's in again!

It happened this way if you didn't read about it.

He was paroled from Sing Sing last week, then was picked up a few days later, his car loaded with furs and diamonds. It looks like the team will sign up their star first baseman again. You see he was on the prison team.

We are very much interested in keeping things clean. To that end we have two of the finest household cleaners on the market; Hoover and Lewyt. Come in or call in (phone 42) for a demonstration.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE CABLE ADDRESS—ACDCO

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

Around the Town

With the Editor

Ah me, last week was a week of mistakes for the ed.

A note from an anonymous reader who signs himself—or herself—"Yours truly, Phtttt," pointed out a pretty bad one last week on the front page.

And Marjorie Ramsey called my attention to the fact that Inez Hadsell suffered a broken hip, not broken arm, as reported last week.

Like I heard Olen Waltz say in the hardware this week, "That's the first mistake I ever made."

Every so often we have visitors in town who stop in to renew their subscriptions as the opportunity presents itself. Last week it was Mrs. David Furnish of Detroit, Michigan, who stopped in. She remarked that their family has been receiving the News since the year 1912.

And just a few weeks ago Cleota Crick of Anderson dropped in during a visit to the community. Seems to me she said she went to school here or taught school here in years past.

—Those names familiar to you??

The American League isn't the only place having some hot and heavy games in the last week or so. Some of the neighborhood kids have been playing their own hot ones in our back yard. Just Sunday afternoon there was a close 24-23 game that had the tying and winning runs on second and third with two out and the pitcher got out of the jam.

These aren't big games, tho', just two or three on a side. The kids include Joe Vincent, Merl Holden, Allen Amstutz, our Mike and Dave and Bob Clauser who sorta managed both teams Sunday. He got quite a bit out of the boys, too. In fact, the White Sox and Indians could probably get some pointers from him.

The way Marvin Dowden is limping around these days you'd think he opened his mouth and stuck his foot in it - and bit.

—And Marvin can't hardly do that no more.

Hate to say it, but - summer's over.

The weather may be plenty warm yet and we can still go around in shirtsleeves. But there's that certain smell in the air that tells you it's all over now but the raking.

Something new has been added this week. With the guidance of Mr. Hubert Stackhouse, whom I, for one, am glad to see back in the halls of Riverdale, the students of the school will contribute a weekly column of school news of interest not only to the students but also to parents and patrons. It's in this week's issue under the heading "Comet Capers."

—Some other title more suitable??

Gary Sible, Dale Dowden Win News Awards

The annual News Sportsmanship Award for the Little and Pony League teams were announced this week.

The winners for 1955 are as follows:

Sechler's Little League Team Winner - Gary Sible.

Holsom Dairy Pony League Team Winner - Dale Dowden.

The awards are given each year to a member of each team for his general attitude in participating in hardball activities of the Little and Pony Leagues. The determining factor is based on the player's general attitude in accepting the "breaks of the game," response to practice calls, effort and enthusiasm, and those qualities which are accepted as indicative of good sportsmanship. All players are prospects for the award as playing ability is given secondary consideration in selecting the deserving boy from each team.

The two winners will receive a trophy emblematic of their selection as practitioners of good sportsmanship.

Services Held For Alma Snyder

Funeral services were conducted Monday for Mrs. Alma Snyder, 67, who died unexpectedly Friday at her home near St. Joe. Rev. Wayne Baxter of the Concord and Spencerville Methodist churches officiated at the services. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery near Auburn.

Mrs. Snyder, the wife of Jay Snyder, died of a heart attack, shortly after she had returned home from seeing her physician. She had been in failing health but was not bedfast.

Born March 20, 1888, in Fayette County, Ohio, Mrs. Snyder was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rice. She married Mr. Snyder March 11, 1905. For more than forty years they resided in Concord Township.

Survivors include the husband; a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Stonebraker of Corunna; three sons, Roy of Hanover, Mich., George of Coldwater, Mich., and Henry of St. Joe; a brother, Marion Rice of Reading, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Dora Soll of Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Ray Tom of Lyons, O.; ten grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

More improvements are being made by the agriculture classes, such as cement work to the steps leading to the back of the school building.

The Riverdale Band attended the state fair this fall and won 24th place in a field of over 90 bands. They will play at the county fair this year on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and Friday and Saturday mornings.

A group of engineers and scientists have determined that a machine to do the work of the average human mind would take as much power as Niagara generates, would take as much water as there is in Niagara to cool it and would take a building as large as the Merchandise Mart to house it.

We certainly are wonderfully made, aren't we? No one except a loving, supreme being could do such a fine job.

Although nothing made by humans can compare with the handiwork of the Supreme Architect, yet some of the automatic appliances that we sell are little short of miraculous. The fine coffeemaker that will make your coffee, then keep it at the proper temperature as long as you like is just one example. Our stock of small appliances and major appliances is quite complete.

NOTHING IN ITS FIELD CAN MATCH CHEVROLET FOR ACCELERATION!

Drive with care... EVERYWHERE!

Great Features back up Chevrolet Performance: Anti-Dive Braking—Ball-Race Steering—Outrigger Rear Springs—Body by Fisher—12-Volt Electrical System—Nine Engine-Drive Choices.

When you need a quick sprint for safer passing, this V8 delivers! It's pure dynamite, and you have to go way, way up the price ladder before you ever find its equal.

Chevrolet's new "Turbo-Fire V8" packs a Sunday punch for safer passing that no car in Chevrolet's field can match!

The proof was burned into the sands of Daytona Beach at the NASCAR* trials earlier this year. In acceleration tests, Chevrolet simply walked away from everything else in its field. Plus—and get this—all the high-priced cars except one!

Surprising? Not when you consider that this beauty's been cleaning up on all comers in short track stock car events this season. That's where acceleration really pays off, as well as handling ease and cornering ability—things that mean safer, happier highway driving. Come on in and let a new Chevrolet show you what we mean.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE CABLE ADDRESS—ACDCO

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,
M. J. Klinger

HOUSE OF OUR GOD
Lesson for September 25, 1955

Why support churches? The first thing we need to understand about this, as Christians, is that support of the church is not optional, but a "must." During a year's time every citizen is confronted with more "causes" than most of us can keep up with. We are invited to share in many good works; orphanages, schools for the blind, boys' towns, foundations for the study of various diseases, hospitals for crippled children, the Red Cross, all sorts of things. Most of us have to decide which we shall send our few dollars to, and which not. But if a Christian thinks he has a right to decide whether or not to support the church, he does not understand what the church is. The central reason why the church calls for the support of the people of God is that it is the "house of our God."

Here They Know You

If those poor people in ancient Jerusalem pledged themselves to support the house of God, we who are Christians have even more reason to do so. For one thing, the church is where we really belong. Where else in the world is a person recognized for what he is, a child of God? Elsewhere you are a statistic, a consumer, a customer, a tax-payer, a cost item, a voter. These may be important facts about you. But the most important fact about any human being is not that he is kin to the human race, important though that is. The big fact is that every human being is made by God, for fellowship with him. Every man alive is a child of God. Either he knows that or he does not know it. Vast numbers of the human race live as if they were orphans of the storm, they live pigs' lives like the prodigal in Jesus' parable. But no one will tell them they are children of God. No one will tell them of the Father's house, no one will recognize them for what they are. Only in the "house of our God."

Here Citizens Are Trained

There are very shortsighted people who may tell you that money put into support of the church could better be spent in civic improvement, such as better schools or sanitation. On the contrary, supporting the church is the best thing that can be done for the betterment of society. It cannot be said too often: even if the church were only a listening post, even if a church did nothing at all but hold a meeting on Sunday, even if a church might as well be laid flat in ashes six days in the week, for all the work it does—still, even if it did no more than hear God's messages once a week, it would be doing a great and unique thing. For the people who hear those messages and believe them would come to know their true relation to God and their duty in his sight; they would live not as animals, not as the "beasts that perish" but as immortal sons and daughters of the Most High. Then if the church is more than a listening post, if it puts its members to work, they will be actually taught and trained in Christian living.

Here God's Will Is Sought and Taught

Are we talking about the real church or are we idealizing it? Well, of course no church is quite ideal. But taking the church by and large, these things are true, the church at its best wants them to come true, this is what it is driving at. For the church is the only place in town where large groups of people join in trying to know the will of God, and how to find it and how to do it. The church is the place where problems, personal and-or social, can and ought to be discussed in the light of heaven. A church that does not live up to its high calling is hardly worth support; but a church where there is a sincere effort to know what God wants for this community and for our part in it, a church where there is brave and honest opportunity for minister and people to think and to study and to speak out for God and his ways, a church which by prayer and service keeps the door open toward God, such a church is indeed a House of God; how can a Christian refuse to support it?

Ever meet an INDUSTRIAL

AMBASSADOR?

I&M has a number of them working full time! Officially, they're "industrial development consultants"—but industrial ambassadors comes closer to telling what they do.

They work for a balanced community...by helping to attract the type of industry that will fit in best with the resources and labor skills in the area we serve, the industries most compatible with those already here.

They contact industrialists outside our area that are looking for the best place to locate. They are helped in their efforts by the national advertising I&M is doing in papers read by industrial leaders throughout America.

They work closely with Chambers of Commerce, civic bodies, and other groups within our area who, like I&M, are interested in helping the communities we're so much a part of to grow and prosper.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Yoo hoo, can I come in?? — I say, yoo hoo, is anybody home?? — Well, where is ev--- - oh sure, it's FAIR time.

Ira Moore dropped in for a few minutes Monday. He's looking trim and healthy with a good coat of tan from that Arizona sunshine. Says he's working for an oil company and preparing to build a new home closer and more convenient to his work.

A little bird cheeped this week that Mrs. Draggoo really has an efficient new oil furnace. The way she operates it, it doesn't use ANY OIL.

—Of course, the house is a little cool.

Two weeks ago our family went to Chicago to see a ball game—who?—silly question—there's only one ball team in Chicago, and you know who we don't care who wins just so its the--.

Anyhow, on the way back, we got to the junction of 6 and 13 when there was a state patrolman walking to the center of the pavement brandishing a flashlight. I stopped and rolled down the window. The conversation went something like this with the officer leading off:

"Pardon me, sir, are you going straight ahead?"

"Yes."

"Well, will you please pull over into that station across the way? I'm going to give you a warning ticket; your right front headlight is out."

"MY headlight?!"

"Yes, sir."

You know, if all the state troopers are as polite as Howard L. Smith, motorists won't have a chance to get riled up at 'em. No kidding, I thought he was going to ask a favor of us when we were stopped.

There's more to the story. Trooper Smith also apparently has a sense of humor.

—So, when he gave me the warning ticket, I asked, "Do you suppose those stations back there (there were two open at the time at the intersection) can take care of it for me—put in a new unit?"

Trooper Smith replied quite unconcernedly, "I believe they can take care of it for you."

Back we went to one of the stations and the fellow said yes, he had a sealed beam unit and he could install it. While he was putting it in, I became curious and asked, "Do you do much headlight business?"

He looked up with a cat-that-ate-the-mouse grin and offered this information, "We used to sell one or two of these units a week. Now we sell a couple a night."

—And the officer said, "I believe (sic) they can take care of you"!!

Whatta straight man he'd make—between warning tickets, that is.

Legion Plans Activities

The regular meeting of Walter Whitehurst Post 283 of the American Legion was held at the Legion home Tuesday evening.

Plans were made to conduct an initiation of new members at the October 25 meeting. Eligible veterans in the area are invited to join their home town Legion post. Information about joining and the work the local post is doing in the community can be obtained from any member.

The Legion theme this year is "It's Great To Be An American Legionnaire." Each year the local American Legion is sponsor of community service programs that reap rich hometown dividends.

On Saturday, November 19, a pancake and sausage supper will be served to the public. Committees for this event will be announced at a later date.

Rinard-Panning

Mabel L. Panning and James E. Rinard exchanged wedding vows Sunday, September 18, in the First Methodist Church in Angola. Rev. R. Sapp performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Norval Conine of Spencerville and Mr. Benard Schaftner of St. Joe. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Rinard of St. Joe.

The bride wore a blue street length princess style dress of nylon taffeta with a corsage of pink rose buds. Miss Barbara Schaftner attended her sister as maid of honor and wore a gold street length princess style dress of Italian silk with a corsage of white gardenia.

Clarence Rinard of St. Joe served his brother as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride for the immediate family and close friends. Ice cream, cake and punch were served.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside in their newly purchased home in Butler.

Fred Gerkin Wins Sunday's Shoot

Fred Gerkin won Sunday's Honor Shoot sponsored by the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club. The shoot was given in honor of Dr. S. E. DeMuth who has been active in the sport of trapshooting for sixty-five years, as the doctor corrected last week's report of fifty years of shooting activity.

A good turn-out was on hand though smaller than expected. A gusty wind bothered participants somewhat, although the winner bagged 98 out of a possible 100 targets.

Dr. DeMuth was not feeling too well and had to drop out of competition after the first 25 targets. He was presented a framed honorary life membership certificate by the local club.

Scores follows

Fred Gerkin 98, W. Augsberger 97, R. Johnson 96, W. Notestine 96, R. Schlegel 95, Jerry Holtz 92, F. Vincent 92, A. L. Adams 91, R. Conrad 91, P. Krise 91, C. Wisch 91, L. Cookingham 89, D. A new baby every eight seconds! That is the amazing birth rate in America at the present time.

Right now there are 1,200,000 additional children in the schools of our country. Personally, we think this is a wonderful thing for a nation that only a few years ago was worried about race suicide.

With all of these new babies we thought we had better get some practical gifts for them. For instance in silverware we have feeding spoons, two piece sets, 3 piece sets, 6 piece sets, silver drinking cups and so on. The prices are nominal. We will be glad to show you.

Background Scripture: Luke 2:1-40.

Devotional Reading: John 1:-1-14.

B. C. and A. D .

Lesson for October 2, 1955

A make-believe story can be just as entertaining as a true one, and more so. The tale of Little Red Riding Hood is more interesting than some of the items in this week's paper. Furthermore, a make-believe story can sometimes get a truth across to people just as well as a true story does. For example, from Little Red Riding Hood we may learn not to trust strangers—they may turn out to be wolves in Grandmother's clothing. Many a fable and fairy-tale has fixed in children's minds many a useful truth. Nevertheless, the make-believe story sometimes only conveys falsehood. If I told you that my grandfather was the Most Wanted Man by the police of six states, that he came to his death in a gun battle with the sheriff in which he shot three deputies before they finally got him, it would be a much more interesting tale than the true one, of a simple law-abiding Christian dying in his bed of a very ordinary dicase. But it would give a totally wrong impression, it would be a lie for which there would be no excuse.

Jesus and Amida

Now, believe it or not, there are today and there have been often in the past those who claim that it makes no difference whether the Christian gospels are fact or fairy-tale, no difference whether Jesus was a historical character like Caesar or a made-up one like Cinderella. The Christian church has always resisted such a notion as this. For the gospel story aims to tell us something true about God, something true about man; and if the gospel story is not true, then what it says about man and God is not true either. Compare the Buddhist story of Amida. The story of Amida is very much like the story of Christ; it is the tale of a god, or at least a god-like superior being, who came to live among men a life of service and sacrifice. Songs are sung about him—"Amida loves me, this I know, for the (Buddhist) Scriptures tell me so." Temples are erected to him. But when you inquire, when and where did this Amida Buddha live, you discover that no one claims he ever lived anywhere. He is a great big official fairy-tale. A temple to him is like a temple to Cinderella's fairy god-mother. Amida was brave, self-sacrificing, loving, god-like—only he never existed!

World B. C.

For centuries, historians have counted time before and after Christ. All dates are either B. C.—Before Christ—or A. D.—Anno Domini, "in the Year of our Lord." B. C. does not mean Before Civilization or Before Culture or Before Columbus but Before Christ. What makes the world B. C. different from the world A. D. is Christ. The world B. C. was a world in which the "best" people supposed that without slavery you could not have civilization; a world in which a man could be required legally to have only one wife at a time, but in which it would have been thought ridiculous to expect him to be faithful to that one wife; a world in which unwanted babies (and tragically numerous they were) were simply left out of doors to die, unless men in the slavery buiness cared to pick them up to be sold later on; a world in which soical responsibility as we know it was unknown, a world in which men who held government posts were expected to get rich out of them. If you want to see what the world B. C. was like, read Romans 1. Paul had been there. He knew.

World A. D.

Who knew, that first Christmas night, that the birth of that baby to those poor people from Nazareth was the turning point of the history of the world? God knew it; and men have found it out. The world A. D. is so different from the word B. C. that even a stupid man, if he found himself carried back by a time-machine to B. C., would pray to get back to A. D. to a world where life is sacred, where children are welcomed and cared for, where Christian homes are found, where service is a common ideal, a world where there are millions of true Christians. Such real changes in the real world were not made by a make-believe Jesus, only by a real one.

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P. M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

M. J. Klinger

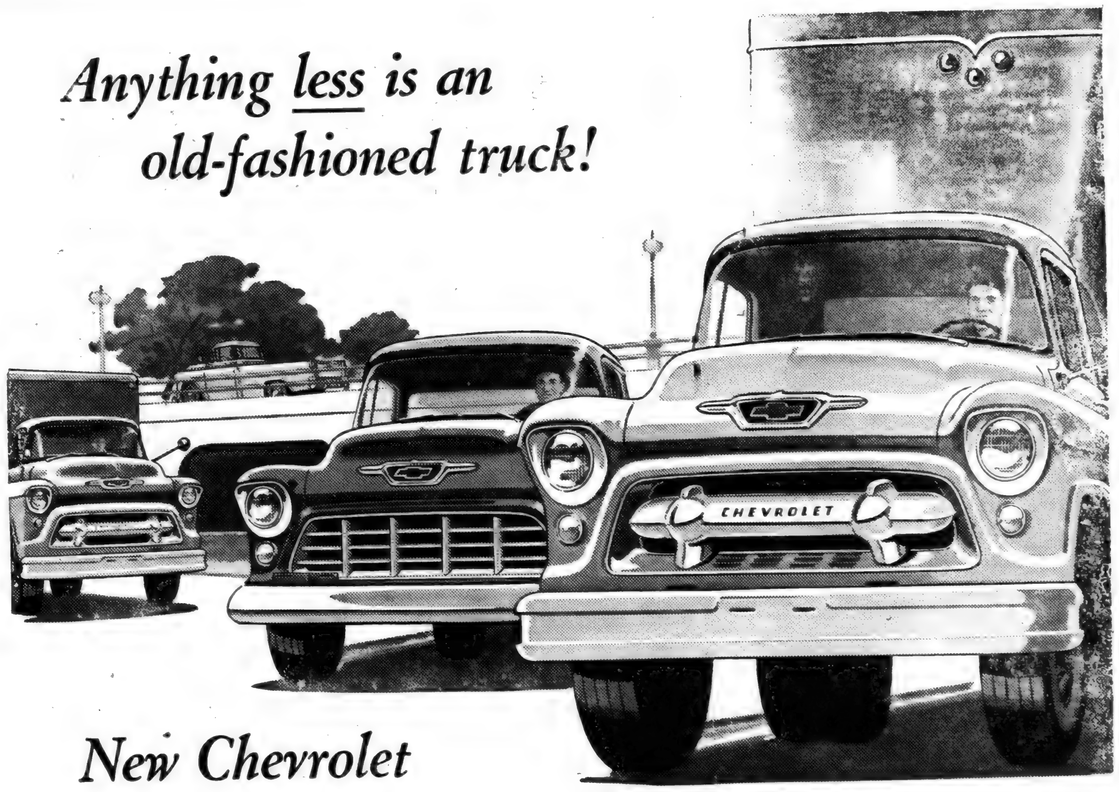
Anything less is an old-fashioned truck!



Chevrolet Truck Work Styling is well illustrated in these four models ranging from the Low Cab Forward and Cameo Carrier at left to the pickup and tractor-trailer unit at right.

New Chevrolet

Task-Force Trucks*

They're the most modern trucks on the road. If you don't get all the advantages they offer, you stand to lose money on the job today . . . and again at trade-in-time!

Most modern power—V8 or 6

In most new Chevrolet truck models, you have your choice of V8* or 6. Chevrolet's new truck V8's have the shortest stroke of any V8 in any leading truck! That means less friction and wear per mile. The valve-in-head sixes are new editions of the engines that have long been famous as the "work horses" of the truck world! And all Chevrolet truck engines have a modern 12-volt electrical system for quicker starting, better ignition and a greater electrical reserve.

The truck driver's "dream cab"

That's the closest we can come to describing the new Flite-Ride De Luxe cab. What truck driver wouldn't go for features like these: panoramic windshield for wider, safer vision; concealed Safety Step that stays clear of snow, mud and ice; High-Level ventilation that provides a more constant supply of outside air in all kinds of weather.

Most modern truck styling

We call it Work Styling—and you get it only in new Chevrolet trucks! Two fresh, functional styling treatments are offered—one for light- and medium-duty models, another for heavy-duty models. Your Chevrolet truck will do your job better—and look better doing it!

Most modern features throughout

Advanced suspensions, more rigid, ladder-type frames! Tubeless tires standard on ½-ton models! Come in and see all the ways you're way ahead with new Chevrolet trucks!

V8 standard in L.C.F. models, an extra-cost option in all others except Forward Control models.*

Coburn Corners Church History

Approximately 325 persons attended the dedication service and homecoming of Coburn's Corners Church of Christ last Sunday.

William Clague gave the afternoon address and Darris Hamilton led the song service. These men are former ministers of that church. Wilmer Ballou, present minister, was in charge of the dedication service.

History of the local church shows that in the early 19th century as Indiana was being slowly settled, a group of hardy pioneers came to the northeastern corner of the state and decided to settle on the level, fertile plain of the St. Joe River. Most of these people had migrated from eastern Ohio. After a short time, they felt the need of gathering together to worship God as His Word had instructed them to do. In 1837 a group organized the first congregation of any kind in DeKalb County. There were 11 charter members. They met first in the home of Benjamin Alton, on the bank of the St. Joe near the bridge now on state road 101. Mr. Alton was appointed as the first pastor and served several years.

The Alton family donated a plot of land on their farm which was to be used as a church yard and burial ground, but when the infant congregation was able to erect their first building, it was found that the center of population of the community had shifted to the south. The Coburn family then gave an acre of ground on the four corners known as Coburn Crners.

The first building was humble (the main part of the present auditorium running north and south at that time). Two doors faced south, one for women and children and one for men. Four windows on the east and west sides and a small raised platform were included. There was no basement, there were no classrooms, and heat was supplied by two stoves.

A small steeple above the entrance doors proclaimed this to be God's house.

Later the east door was closed and the platform extended to the east wall to make room for a choir. For several years only the pulpit and chairs were on the platform. The song leader used a tuning fork to get the starting note for many years. Later an organ was installed to add to the beauty of the congregational singing.

The original building served the congregation from 1861 to 1903 when an extensive remodeling program was undertaken. The building was turned to run east and west and two wings were added to the north and south with an entrance and a full basement. This was quite adequate until about 1951 when the congregation again realized that more room and modern facilities were needed. In September of 1954, a great ground-breaking service was conducted by the present minister, Wilmer Ballou, and the dedication held Sunday was the culmination of the congregation's latest efforts in the line of church improvement. The addition includes rest rooms, nursery, class rooms, auditorium space and the baptistry which is the first in the history of the local church. A beautiful oil painting hanging in the baptistry is the work of one of the members of the congregation, Glen Geyer.

Several of the youth of the congreation have gone out to preach the Word "unto all the world." They include Benjamin Alton, James Hadsell, John F. Coburn, Cyrus Alton, L. L. Carpenter, Edwin R. Coburn, J. N. Scholes (these are deceased), Walter Coburn of Boom Grove, Ind., Darris D. Hamilton of Fort Wayne, Annamae Leavell Adams of Paraguay, South America, Carleton Curie of Cincinnati, Bonnie Witt of Grundy, Va., Edsil Taylor of Great Lakes Bible College and a great number of Bible School teachers and workers.

(The above history was prepared for the dedication service by Alice Kagey.)

The Bible Speaks

Background Scripture: Luke 2:41-52.

Devotional Reading: I Timothy 4:12-16.

JESUS IS REAL

Lesson for October 9, 1955

It is hard to say what is the most important doctrine of the Christian religion. Probably you would get more votes for the doctrine we call the Incarnation than for any other; because so many other doctrines hinge on this one. If you do not believe in the Incarnation you haven't much left of the Atonement, and (if you really face it) you have lost what is most valuable in your doctrine of God. Be that as it may, if you asked for a vote among people who have given this some serious thought, as to what is the most DISTINCTIVE Christian doctrine, you would have a practically unanimous answer: The Incarnation. This is expressed in various ways both in the Bible and in Christian theology. About the simplest way of putting it in Bible language is that "God was in Christ" (II Corinthians 5:19). The simplest way of putting it in theological language may be that Christ was both human and divine.

Jesus Was a Real Person

You wouldn't think it necessary to hammer on the point that Jesus was a real person, that is to say that he really was, and didn't just seem to be, a child and a boy and a grown man. Yet the church has often had to call a halt to men and movements that explained-away the real humanity of Jesus till there was really nothing left of it. The great church council held at Chalcedon (the Evanston of that era) in 451 A.D. found it necessary to say—in their own way of course—that Christ is as much divine as God is divine, and as much human as you and I are human. For some strange reason, however, the reality of Jesus as a human person is forgotten or denied by men. Again and again we have to be brought up with a start by the gospel story, the story of a real man. Like all real men, Jesus grew from a real boy. The modern interest in childhood and the realization that "the child is father of the man."

The Child Grew

Legends, tales without foundation, have made the boy Jesus into a smaller-sized adult. According to some of these legends, when Jesus went to school, the very first day, he not only knew the alphabet already but he delivered a philosophical discourse that astonished the teacher. Luke does not give us any such picture of an already-grown mind in a tiny body. He gives us a glimpse of a real child, really growing. At first he grew without trying, of course, as everyone does. What he ate and drank made him taller and stronger. He learned the Aramaic language, spoken in his village and in his family, just as children learn their mother-tongue everywhere in the world, just by hearing it and trying to speak it, till it becomes as natural as breathing. His mind grew by what was put into it, because it was a really human mind. Dolls are all the same no matter what goes on around them: human beings on the contrary grow or shrink, depending on their surroundings. It is not too much to say that if (for instance) Jesus' mother Mary had been a different kind of person, he would have been different too. To think otherwise is to fancy Jesus a kind of doll.

The Boy Moved Forward

As has been often noted, Luke uses a different word for Jesus after his twelfth year. Before that, he "grew"—the same word used for flowers and buildings, elsewhere in the Bible. After that, he "increased"—and the word always implies will, effort. Up to a certain age a child can't help growing; he doesn't even give it a thought. But after a certain age, not the same in every one to be sure, if a person grows he has to put his mind on it; and he can choose the direction in which he will grow. Jesus could choose his friends; he could do what he would with his spare time. He grew by his work in the carpenter shop, we may be certain; but what about the hours when he was not working? When Jesus was fully grown, we know how familiar he was with the Scriptures. We know how well he understood people. Could he have achieved any of this without trying, without growing?

CARD OF THANKS

Many thanks to those who sent the beautiful floral offering for my sister, at the time of her passing away. Your kindness and sympathy are deeply appreciated.

National Newspaper Week

This is National Newspaper Week.

While the newspaper profession is not particularly inclined to seek praise at this time, or any other, still those engaged in that profession do appreciate the recognition and resultant appreciation that comes with setting aside a week for national observance. There are many such observances throughout the year for other professions and causes which serve the purpose of making people conscious of the world about them.

The importance of newspapers is immeasurable. Those who read these words cannot say how much or how little this weekly is worth to them except to say that they would or would not miss it if it were not coming into their homes. But it is significant that one of the first enterprises that result from the settling of a group of people into a community is that of a newspaper, a source of public information. And the growth and success of such a venture depends in the beginning as in later years upon the use which the community makes of its paper. Further, the events recorded in the pages of a newspaper become a permanent herald of the times.

A newspaper has an obligation to its community. It is obligated to present news of local happenings to as great an extent as possible. This is accomplished through the efforts of its own staff and through the cooperation of its readers in contributing items of interest that may in some instances become too numerous to be noted by the paper itself. This depends upon the size of the paper. In the case of this weekly, a one-man operation cannot be aware of the happenings of the entire community unless such events are pointed out or are submitted as a report for publication. There are many such small weeklies in this nation which depend upon their readers for such participation and cooperation.

The newspaper also has an obligation to its community in that it must "promote" its community in every possible way. It owes its support of the other business establishments in the community; it owes its support of those projects and programs which will benefit its community. This paper does so in every way that it can, realizing the relationship between its own success and the success of the other businesses in this area.

A newspaper has an obligation, as a source of public information, to promote "thinking" through the presentaton of editorials. It would be quite unusual for every opinion editorially presented to be acceptable to every reader. There would be, in such an instance, a hint that perhaps readers were becoming lax in their vigil over public affairs. Occasionally, it is necessary to be somewhat outspoken editorially in order to jolt, if you please, the reader into realization of existing conditions. Though it may seem that such outspoken words are given without due consideraton in some cases, it remains that those who present their views for public consumption are well aware of the reactions that may be forthcoming and are conscious, more than the average reader, of what may result from such editorials. Though it may not seem so at times, a newspaper is aware of its obligation to be fair to all concerned in every opinion it offers - a newspaper, that is, which serves to the fullest extent its purpose in its community.

This, your hometown newspaper, tries to do these things. If the readers of this paper consider it a success, it is fairly certain that they have put something into it. But then, isn't that the way we measure the value of all things, by what we put into them?

That's why our readers have seen these words so often on the pages of this paper - "You get out of - what you put into - Your hometown and - your hometown newspaper."

Indispensability

While no statistical data has been seen, it appears a sure thing that the recent heart attack of the president of the United States has evoked more editorial comment than any other event of national importance in quite some time. Perhaps it would be more correct to be specific and say "the recent heart attack of President Eisenhower", for certainly the popularity of the man as an individual, not as a public office-holder, has prompted the concern of the people in this country.

Though his recovery is not certain, it appears probable. But regardless of the extent of his recovery or the time it may take to reach the possibility of physical activity, two things stand out quite clearly as a result of the illness, one for the good, one not so good.

On the credit side of the ledger we may enter present public awareness of diseases of the heart. Reports have been forthcoming that since the president's attack, doctors have been swamped with requests for examinations and information, all relative to life's pump, the heart. Such individual awareness of the importance of the care of the body can result only in a better chance of a longer life for all concerned.

But there is another reaction which must be entered in the minus column. That is the reaction of the stock market which dropped considerably at news of the president's heart attack, recovered again as news of his health became favorable, dropped again when he had a restless night, then recovered somewhat again when the president again reacted favorably to treatment.

It is a desire of most humans to have the respect and admiration of their fellowmen. If there is one person in this country who has that admiration and respect, it is Dwight D. Eisenhower. But whether the average person realizes it or not, he does his country no good to conduct his affairs so dependent upon the health of one man. We have had in past years not too distant an instance of the indispensable man, or supposedly so. There is no such animal in the American way of thinking.

If it appears that much depends upon the health and activity of one man, that is the result of lack of activity of the public in general. The more active we become in government as private individuals, the less inclination there is for the seeming indispensability of one man. The more we participate in government, the less we have to fear for its stability.

The discussion came up at a recent luncheon with a nationally-known person of considerable scholarship. He asked me to give a definition of business. Not always being a sap, I said, "Let's hear yours." He replied,

"I would define business as 'an activity in which human beings engage for the sake of providing some service at a profit'."

I told him that I accepted that definition and then he went on to develop the idea that just being in business for a profit isn't a sufficiently moral justification and that any businessman who actually attempts to operate a business only for a profit, eventually has no profit. The point that he was particularly trying to make is that stressing the profit motive to the exclusion of the service motive is injurious to the preservation of the capitalistic system as we know it.

Actually there is nothing foggily idealistic or impractical about what my friend was saying. He was merely saying that you have to give value for what you receive and that anyone who wants to receive payment without giving value is going to go out of business quickly.

Service is the horse and profit the cart. You can't put the latter ahead of the former without disaster. The profit has to be the reward for the service, not the principal objective.

The classic Communists say there should be production for use. The classic capitalists say there must be production for profit. But intelligent capitalists of the kind we have in America say that we must have production for use at a profit.

The businessman who says I am only in business to make money is a sap if he means it, because he can't be a good businessman on that basis. He has to earn his profit and he can only earn his profit by providing a service, either directly or indirectly through the product he sells.

The guy who says he is only in business for profit and actually means it is trying to do what Lincoln rightly said couldn't be done, namely fool all the people all of the time. Sure, you can cheat in business by not giving value for what you receive, but not for long. An amateur running General Motors Co. could immediately put into effert all sorts of ideas that would enable General Motors to show a quick, temporary boost in profits, but at the expense of the G. M. products and at the expense of an eventual dropping off in G. M. sales.

Actually few human beings are so built that they could find any satisfactory rewards in profits only. What doctor could be a good doctor if he were interested only in his income? What lawyer could be a good lawyer if he thought only of his fees? What businessman likewise could maintain his sanity running a business, if he thought that his only compensation was profit?

Profit is the reward for the race well run and there is no satisfaction in a prize received, but not won. The biggest joy out of anything has to be a sense of achievement and there can be no sense of achievement merely in taking a reward without having done anything to merit it.

Fortunately this is an age when business generally is examining and re-examining itself and developing a philosophy which is tying in both materialistic and humane considerations.

—Clifford B. Ward, "Good Evening."

In New York City, ordinary people who have gotten on the wrong side of each other are experiencing a new kind of swift, sensible justice. Instead of months or years of delay, common in the courts of most cities, New York's "small claims" cases now take less than 21 days between the issuing of a summons and the time a decision is handed down. Each case is fully heard, yet the average trial takes about 20 minutes. Best of all, these cases are heard at night so that there is no time lost from work by the people involved.

OCTOBER

The Small Claims Part of Municipal Court specializes in small frictions and misunderstandings: people get mad at dry cleaners for damaged items; tenants and landlords rush to court for a variety of reasons; drivers get involved in minor street collisions. Such cases seldom make the papers, but they are doggedly important to the people involved.

Last year, when 53-year-old Daniel Gutman was appointed President Justice of New York Mniucipal Courts, he talked to the 68 Municipal justices about how to expedite small-claims cases. In the court's statistics he had found a clue to the extent to which these courts were failing the people. In 1953, for example, in nearly a third of the 61,000 cases filed, people didn't appear to press their charges. In large part this happened because they couldn't get time off from work.

Gutman remembered, from his early experiences as a young attorney in Brooklyn, how he had tried to make it easier for people with legal problems by keeping his office open in the evenings. Why, he wondered, couldn't the small-claims sessions be held at night? It seemed sensible except for one thing: the judges. Obviously he couldn't ask a judge who had sat all day in Municipal Court to sit in small-claims sessions at night. And he knew the city's budget-makers wouldn't approve the expense of more judges.

But, Gutman asked himself, couldn't citizens settle minor differences the way many large corporations do? In their contracts with other firms they pledged themselves to arbitration rather than going to court over disputes. The arbitrators chosen by both sides were always respected outsiders who had no stake in the case. Often they were lawyers. Perhaps qualified lawyers could sit as arbitrators in small-claims cases?

He talked it over with Mayor Robert F. Wagner and other judges and leaders of the New York Bar. All thought it was worth trying. Court attendants and clerks agreed to work at night without extra charge if they could get equivalent time off during the day.

In June of '54 Judge Gutman wrote a letter to the New York "Law Journal" asking for seasoned lawyers to sit as unpaid referees in night sessions on small-claims cases. Skeptics warned him not to expect much response. Yet within a few weeks more than 250 eminently qualified attorneys volunteered their services.

On a September evening Judge Gutman's experiment got under way in the Criminal Courts Building. Earlier Gutman had briefed the six attorneys who were to sit as referees.

"When you hear these cases, forget the rules of evidence and regular court procedure. Get at the basic truth of the issue; let the people tell their stories their own way.

"Your job is not mediation," he went on. "If the amount at stake is $50, there's no sense trying to get the aggrieved party to take $25 if he clearly deserves the $50. But when there is some justice on both sides, as there often is, by all means try to get them on common ground."

In court Judge Gutman explained the innovation to the hundreds of plaintiffs and defendants who had gathered there. He made it clear that there would be no stenographers present and so there could be no appeal. But, he added, "you will be heard as fully as though you were trying the case before one of the judges of the court."

That first night defendants and plaintiffs preferred the referees in a two-to-one ratio, the second night by three to one. That is the present ratio, too.

For several night I sat in on cases heard by the referees. When a case is called, the parties are asked to sign an arbitration agreement to abide by the referee's decision. Then, after he gets both parties to swear to tell the truth, the referee listens to them.

There was a postal clerk suing a laundry for $15 because of a shirt. The laundry owner admitted losing it but didn't believe it cost $15.

"Since when does a fella with a plain job in the post office shell out 15 bucks for a shirt?" he asked. "Maybe three bucks, Judge, but 15—that I can't believe."

The postal clerk bridled. "Judge," he explained earnestly, "I like the feel of fine cloth on my back. I don't smoke or drink, so I spend money on custom-made shirts." He opened a package and showed the referee some expensive shirts with his initials on the pocket. He trotted out sales slips for other shirts he had bought. The referee turned to the laundryman and asked, "Do you believe him now?" The laundryman shrugged: "Okay."

Some cases are over so fast you wonder why they had to come to court at all. There was the case of the landlord suing a tenant for $60 to pay for damages caused by a water overflow. The landlord told his story in two minutes. The tenant then said: "Judge, let's face it. I was careless and just let the faucet run. When he asked me for the money I was dead broke, so maybe I got a little rough with him. If I can pay it in installments, I can work it out." The case was over in five minutes.

Often a referee has to base his decision on character judgment. In one case a middle-aged woman sued a hat cleaner for $40. She claimed she had given him a $40 Borsolino hat she had bought on a visit to Italy and that he returned a much cheaper Borsolino that wasn't hers. The hat had no identifying marks.

The referee patiently questioned the hat cleaner on his ticket-numbering system; on how long he had been in business. In the same store for 31 years, the man said with pride.

The referee found in favor of the storekeeper. "A man who has been in business in the same neighborhood as long as he has isn't going to pull a cheap stunt of switching hats to make a couple of dollars."

In addition to promoting quick and fair justice the new night-court plan is saving the city money. In the first 18 night sessions the referees enabled 1157 more cases to be disposed than were handled in a comparable period of 18 day sessions in the previous May. Several other cities, including Buffalo, have sent judicial observers to watch the new plan in action.

Small-claims courts were originated in 1913 in Cleveland; they were quickly tagged the "Poor Man's Court" because the fees were usually only a dollar or two. Because lawyers were not needed by either side and the judges weren't bound by the rules of evidence, sessions were informal. This successful judicial innovation spread rapidly. Today there are small-claims courts in 24 states and the District of Columbia. While the claim limit in most of them is $100, the actual range is from $20 in the state of Washington to $500 in Baltimore.

The success of New York City's small-claims program has been called by David W. Peck, Presiding Justice of New York State's Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, "one of the most significant events of all time in the history of the judiciary of this state."

—Murray Teigh Bloom, condensed from "The Rotarian."

When the German Army was bearing down on Paris in 1940, the French official radio advised the inhabitants of places in the theater of operations to evacuate their homes and flee. Soon nearly ten million people encumbered the roads of northern France. The torrent of wretched humanity blocked any possible redeployment of the French forces. And the refugees made a desperate situation hopeless by communicating their panic to the soldiers, trapped with them on impassible highways.

It is easy now to see that a catastrophe resulted from fear propaganda promoted to the level of an official policy. Yet this country at present is busy building its civilian defense against atomic bombing on the disastrous foundation of a sedulously cultivated terror.

For reasons best known to themselves, the officials in charge have adopted the theory of mass evacuation of our cities as the approved answer to enemy A-bombs. Think what this would mean. Take a compass and describe a circle centered on New York City with a radius of 100 miles. The circumference would pass beyond Phliadelphia and New Haven and almost to Albany. Now imagine the roads of this area flooded solidly with cars, buses, trucks. Twenty million people in flight. Where will they go? How will they be lodged and fed? What will be the state of their morale?

If you wished to induce the complete collapse of industrial defense in this country, how could you do better than to arrange for millions of panic-stricken refugees to rush away from key centers of production and transportation? Our chief air-raid defenses consist of ground-to-air missile sites, arranged in rings around important cities. How would they be supplied, repaired or reinforced, if the roads were blocked?

Philadelphia has two million inhabitants. Officials talk glibly of evacuating the city on anything from one to six hours' warning. No staff officer in his right mind would undertake to move two million disciplined soldiers any considerable distance in under three days. How will things go in the case of a heterogeneous crowd in haphazard vehicles, bearing the sick, the infants and children and aged? What happens on the roads when cars break down or run out of gas? Isn't mass evacuation an infallible prescription for a colossal catastrophe?

The only object of a bombing raid on any city is to put it out of action, cripple its facilities. Isn't that exactly what mass evacuation would do?

Panic is the best ally an enemy can have. The strange part of the mass-evacuation scheme is that we ourselves are encouraging our own panic. A kind of fashion for fear rules public policy.

Many ordinary sensible people among civilian-defense volunteers regard mass evacuation as disastrous folly. Some of the areas around New York City, like Westchester County, have talked about putting up roadblocks to shut off any unmanageable rabble of refugees. Other suburban districts are unlikely to cooperate in the plan to dump millions of city dwellers in their laps, with no feasible way to feed or lodge them.

Remember that the authorities have given the public no complete information about the actual results of a nuclear-fission explosion. We hear only the apocalyptic predictions of Government press agents.

Officials apparently lack the courage to explain, or perhaps do not themselves understand, that civil defense does not mean saving as many lives as possible, at any cost. It means training a beleaguered population to take maximum cover, while standing by its machines and workshops, its communications and transportation networks, and its vital system of supply.

The duty of civilians in modern war, as in past wars, is to keep things going somehow, no matter what danger may threaten them. To carry out that mission calls for extraordinary courage, steadiness and devotion. That men can summon those qualities, when they are defending their homes, we know from the lessons taught us by the people of London and Leningrad, Berlin and Tokyo.

What they need from official sources is elementary instruction in rescue work, fire control and precautionary measures which may mean the difference between death and survival. They must be taught to go under cover, inadequate though it may be, while the bombers are overhead. But, when the danger has passed, they must be prepared to come out of their holes and go back to work.

Under the present policy there is a consistent effort to present total and disastrous war as just around the corner, In all the propaganda, facts are conspicuously ignored, and simple measures of protection forgotten in a vision of annihilation.

It seems to be regarded as something near treachery to tell anything like the truth. A radioactive fall-out, for example, might be dangerous for 48 hours, after which it would mean only a negligible risk. Navy doctors reported to the AMA on the clinical picture presented by the victims of the fall-out at the Eniwetok H-bomb "island-destroying" explosion. Early loss of hair and ugly skin lesions disappeared completely within six months, with no permanent deterioration of the blood. The doctors were inclined to believe that the one man who died (they saw 175 cases) lost his life as a result of complications arising during treatment.

If a human being is exposed to radioactive dust, prompt and thorough washing with soap and water will remove it without difficulty. Who would be in a better position to take this simple precaution—the family trained to make the best of the shelter of its own cellar, prepared in advance, or the family huddled by a roadside, in the open, caught in a jam of panicky refugees?

A sober and sensible approach to a problem which demands the utmost in cool courage would be infinitely better than this perpetual promotion of panic. We could do with far fewer speeches by public figures in which every other sentence begins with "I fear." The effect can only be to inject the slow poison of despair in repeated doses, until we are all convinced that there is no hope except to take to the hills.

Mankind has gone through many hard moments, and will go through more. It may be flattering to our conceit to believe that no generation ever faced anything worse than what we face. But it is hardly probable. Whatever befalls, it is better to meet it with courage than with fear. And for those who seek a consoling word, it may be well to state that many of us will survive any conceivable war, for the simple reason that, to the cold eye of the bombing expert, we are not lucrative targets.

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

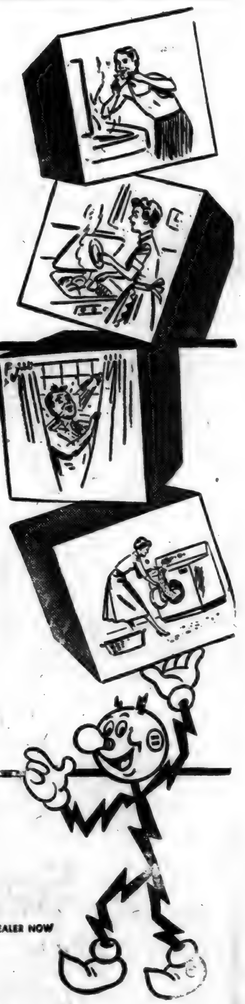
make light work of "hot water" chores...



Extra Safety too!

There's always hot water aplenty when an electric water heater is on the job. And with less work, too—for an electric water heater is fully automatic, never needs watching or tending.

Besides, electric water heaters give you extra safety. No flues or vents are needed. There's no flame. An electric water heater is so safe you can install it anywhere.

There is a size and type of electric water heater for every family's needs. Be modern—heat water electrically. Choose from upright or square cabinet models. See your plumber or electric appliance dealer.

With the Editor

I've known that in the past there was a lot more "going on" in the News Office than there is now. Today except for an occasional bake sale, there's just the ed—and you can't hardly find him in anymore.

There once was a dry cleaning agency here, and an electric company collection agency—let's see, there was a notary public here, and you could get insurance here—and this week P. G. Snyder pulled a new one on me. He said that there was an auto license bureau branch here, too. He thinks I ought to bring it back (if possible) and "make a few extra dollars. You can use it, can'tcha?" Yep, who can't? But that's getting into politics, and there's something about that license bureau "plum" that doesn't taste so good.

One thing I would like to know, though, in connection with all those past services and activities here—when did they work on the paper? ?

Janice Hollabaugh from 'way down south Spencerville way says remind 'em to "give me their items." So, to Spencerville readers, this is a reminder to help make that column a real long one by calling Janice with your news.

Thieves Get Over $850 From Safe Haul

The second safe robbery in the past few months was carried out Sunday night at the Spencerville Shell Station operated by Glenn Akey when thieves hauled away a 400-to-500 pound safe containing $868.60. This most recent safe robbery follows on the heels of one at the Amstutz Hardware and Furniture Co. just a month ago and an earlier robbery this year at the Shell Station in Spencerville.

The burglary was discovered at 7 a.m. Monday when the station was opened for business. It had been closed at 5 p.m. Sunday.

There was no attempt to blow open the safe at the station. Entry was gained through a rear door, the four-by-four safe rolled from the front of the station to the rear and out a rear door and then loaded in a small truck or automobile to be hauled away.

Approximately $90 of the money taken was the property of Indiana-Michigan Electric Company for whom the station makes local collections. Another $50 belonged to the Indiana Bell Telephone Company, also from bill collections. The remainder was the property of the station owner.

Auto accessories, tires, oil, and other equipment were overlooked by the thieves, as was $3 in cash which was in an unlocked cash register.

According to the sheriff, Frank Carpenter, the work appeared to be the work of professionals who knew what they were after and committed the crime in a short time. He could draw no immediate comparison with the robbery at St. Joe.

Seniors To Hit The Boards Oct. 21-22

Take one small southern town, 15 assorted and odd characters, and one sophisticated English mello-drama; mix well, and serve at the Spencerville Community Center on Friday and Saturday nights, October 21 and 22, at 8:00 p.m. CDT sharp. These are the instructions that are being followed by the Senior Class of Riverdale High School and their director, Mr. Hubert L. Stackhouse.

In three acts of farce by Tom Taggart, Mrs. Leffie Jewel Hunderstine, a small town "fountain of culture," attempts to stage her own play, shortly titled, "The Beautiful Lady From France," formerly, "The Son of Sir Roderic Wheeler, or, Who Done This?". A play about the troubles, trials and tribulations of putting on a play, this has been described by Mr. Stackhouse, its director, as hitting a lot of nails on their heads. The staging is further described as "highly unconventional," and for that reason the audience is asked to be in their seats not later than 8:00 p.m. CDT, if they do not wish to be mistaken for members of the cast.

The members of the Senior Class are now selling reserved tickets at sixty cents. Bleacher seats and a very few reserved seats will be available on nights of the performances.

—a rumbling on the stairs as the early lunch dismissals head for the cafeteria.

—some gasps of wonder as the gutters outside Room 2 windows filled up with soapsuds, washed down by the rains from the roof repair of last summer.

—a decreasing number of calls from the playgrounds during gym periods as the weather grows less favorable.

—and, first sounds of coming cold weather, made by winds blowing past the classroom windows.

Yes, these things, and a lot more, too, happen in a week of school.

You may have read a few days ago about Alvin and Betty leaving their homes to hitch hike to Mexico to get married. They lived near Chicago and found hitch hiking very rough. On the way Alvin put a ring on Betty's finger.

After trudging along for quite a while, they stopped at a grocery in a small town for some food. The grocer was sympathetic, learned most of the story, then figured he'd better call the sheriff.

To end the story quickly, the young people are back home again, and glad of it. You see—Betty is eight years old and Alvin is ten.

The ring that Alvin gave to Betty was out of a crackerjack box. We have some "crackerjack" rings that are out of this world. See our fine engagement rings, birthstone rings, emblem rings and wedding rings. You'll be delighted with them!

EXECUTIVE OFFICE CABLE ADDRESS—ACDCO

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,

JESUS IS BAPTIZED

Lesson for October 16, 1955

There is one notable day the church does not celebrate. We have a day for the birth of Jesus, one for his presentation in the Temple, a whole season (Lent) to recall his temptations, a day for the crucifixion, the resurrection, the ascension. But for remembering his baptism, no day is set aside. So it is well that the Sunday schools should do what the church does not do; for the baptism of Jesus was one of the most important events in his life. The reason why the church does not care to celebrate this event may be that the church does not know quite what it means. We know what other Christian festivals mean—Pentecost Sunday, Christmas, Good Friday and so on. But what does the baptism of Jesus mean?

Surely Not For His Sins

The heart of the difficulty is just this: Jesus was baptized by John, and John's baptism, we read over and over again, was a baptism of repentance. So we can put the dilemma this way: was this baptizing of Jesus also a baptism of repentance, and if so, what could he have had to repent of? Or was it altogether different, and if so, then what did it mean if it did not mean repentance? Since the Bible does not answer this question clearly, and since the church has no standard or "orthodox" explanation, perhaps the best thing this column can do is to run over a few answers to that question: why was Jesus baptized? The reader is invited to think about these and take his choice. One answer, which has three forms, the church has thought about, but generally has not taken seriously. It is the theory that Jesus was baptized, like every one else there at the Jordan, in token of repentance for sin. One extreme form of this theory is that Jesus repented of his own sins. Only a person who thinks of Jesus as an ordinary man could believe that, and the church does not believe it. Another form of this idea is that Jesus repented of his sinful nature: the idea being that if it had a really human nature it must have been a sinful one even if he never sinned. (Just as one may have a weak constitution that never breaks down.) This again the church has overwhelmingly opposed.

"To Fulfill All Righteousness"

Jesus himself gave a reason for being baptized. The trouble is, he did not explain what he meant. He said he did it "to fulfill all righteousness." (Matthew 3:15). It is quite plain that he meant he would not be doing right if he were NOT baptized. But just what does "fulfulling all righteousness" mean? The explanation most widely accepted in the church is that being baptized was part of the Jewish law at the time, and that Jesus as a loyal Jew observed this as he observed other laws of his religion. There are two weak spots in this theory. One is that there is little or no evidence that baptizing or being baptized was a regular religious observance among the Jews, and the other is that Jesus did not feel obligated to keep strictly all the laws, otherwise he would hardly have had the attitude toward the Sabbath which we know he had.

Friend of Sinners

Still another explanation which is impressing a large number of Christians today is that Christ, by insisting on being baptized, over John's protests that he did not need it, in a dramatic way was taking the side of sinners. We think of Jesus taking our part and representing us on the Cross. But, it is asked, when did Jesus first identify himself with sinners? Not until his last Friday morning? On the contrary, the suggestion is that Christ there at the Jordan had the opportunity to take his place, publicly and for all to see, either with those who despised sinners and made it hard for them and were proud of themselves, or with those who by being baptized were honest enough to confess their sins and to express their deep desire to be rid of them. So Jesus identified himself once and for all with the repentant—not that he himself needed to repent, but to show that the repentant are his people. First to last, he was the Friend of Sinners.

People, we all need the church. We need to attend the services of the church. In the sinful condition we find in the world, we all need to be regular in our church attendance. Here we are under the spell of the preaching of The Word and under the power of the Holy Spirit which will convict us of our sin and furnish the remedy for cleansing. P.T.A. VOTES FUND TO BAND DIRECTOR

At the P. T. A. meeting held at the St. Joe gym September 20, it was decided to pay the local band director fifty dollars for her work with the students during the summer. Miss Betty Boggs, the director, held many sessions with the members of the band in preparing for the state fair and for other occasions. The P. T. A. voted the money in appreciation of her efforts.

The first meeting of the school year was opened with devotions by Pastor Philip Barnhart. The school band then played two selections under the direction of Miss Boggs. The Wisler group provided further entertainment with an acrobatic and balancing act. Doneata Wallace of Auburn twirled the baton for the group.

The P. T. A. decided during the business meeting not to finance a blanket insurance policy for school students. Instead, each student is obliged to secure coverage through or her parents at a cost of one dollar per year, if such coverage is desired.

Price Brookfield, coach of Riverdale High School, held an open discussion on a summer recreational program. Suggestions are sought by the school as to what can be done to supply the facilities for such a program.

Room mother committees have been appointed by the P. T. A. with the following chairmen: Elementary - Mrs. Paul Graham, Mrs. Hubert Hudson and Mrs. Robert Helbert; High School - Mrs. Clayton A. Baker, Mrs. Lester Anthony and Mrs. Francis Lothamer.

VOLUME LXX — ST. JOE (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, October 20, 1965 — NUMBER 41

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, here it is just about that time again.

What time?—you a Hoosier and don't know what time it is?

Speaking of basketball, our coach is just as pessimistic as he was last year. Remember, it took a few games before the boys got the feel of things and then they did right well. Oh, well, we don't care how pessimistic he is as long as we get surprised later in the season.

He pulled me out of the hole, too, last year. After the fine showing the team made, EVERYbody knows where Riverdale is!!

Maybe it's a little repititious but the leaves on the trees at this time of year—every year—are worth looking at. Study them for a bit. It doesn't seem possible that so many colors can be arranged so beautifully on just one tree.

Speaking of pretty things, after the P.T.A. meeting the other night, the room mothers were asked to meet. But it looked more like a line-up for judging in a Mrs. America contest than a committee meeting. If Junior's and Sis's scholastic ability can be measured by Mom's looks, we've got an awful lot of bright kids in these parts.

Say, did you ever notice how many things Lois Fisher gets her fingers into—and does a good job while at it? She's in 4-H work, in Cub Scout work, in the Eastern Star, helps the old man in Lions Club work, works in home demonstration activities, helps the old man again at the store occasionally, has an office in her Sunday School, takes care of her own kids,—there's probably something else she's in but I can't think of it now.

At first it looks like quite a bit. But then on second thought it isn't such an amazing record. The explanation's very simple—she doesn't eat or sleep.

Concord Chicken Supper Oct. 28

The Concord Methodist Church will serve a chicken supper on Friday evening, October 28, beginning at 5:30 p. m.

The supper will be served at the church. The menu will include chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy, dressing, green beans, peas, salad, pie and coffee.

Adult servings will be one dollar and children under 12 years of age fifty cents. The supper will be served country style and everyone is welcome.

Hallowe'en Party Set For Monday, Oct. 31

Final plans were made Monday evening for the St. Joe Volunteer Fire Department's annual Hallowe'en Party.

The regular monthly meeting of the department was held at the town hall with eight members present. Chief Roy Bowser presided.

The annual party will be held on Monday night, October 31, starting at 8:00 p.m. with a parade from the downtown area to the school house. Derwood Ridgway will be master of ceremonies presenting a program of entertainment including "The Juvenile Troopers." This group includes guitar players, vocalists, accordian players, novelty acrobats, tap dancers, rhythm dancers, the Charleston, Indian dances, acrobatic dancers, waltz tap dance, hula dances, a rope dance under black light and the Bunny Hop. Entertainers in the group are from four to twenty-one years old.

As in past years there will be judging of costumes worn by those who attend. The department particularly invites participation of adults in the costume contest. The older kids have yielded the field somewhat in recent years to the small fry; more adults are urged this year to try their ingenuity at creating a suitable costume and trying for one of the prizes to be awarded. Included in the division winners will be a prize for the oldest costumed contestant, one for the youngest in costume, another for the prettiest, ugliest, most original, best couple, funniest, cutest, etc.

Refreshments will be served throughout the evening by the Riverdale Parent-Teacher Association.

The parade is scheduled to begin its march at 8:00 p.m., one half-hour later than in previous years. The procession will be headed by members of the fire department on the fire truck. Following the parade to the school, contestants will parade around the local gym while judges select the costumed winners. Entertainment will then be introduced.

Entertainment chairman is Joe Robinson. Lyle McMaken and Orville Coburn are traffic committee. Merl Guilford is chairman of the judging committee and Herb Amstutz and Andy Monroe are prize committee.

Comets' Season Opens Nov. 4 With Butler

As the saying goes, "time flies." And one need only to look at the basketball schedule of the high school and the calendar to realize the truth of those wrds.

In just two short weeks, to be exact, on Friday, November 4, the basketball season for the Riverdale Comets and Coach Price Brookfield will get underway with the opening game against Butler at the Butler gym.

The Comets will play six games before encountering their first "home" game. However, for the local team, home is where you can find it, for the inadequacy of the local gym plus other obstacles faced in securing the use of surrounding gym facilities has given the home game schedule a checkerboard appearance. Three gyms will be utilized in filling out the home game side of the schedule, Waterloo, Butler and Leo. Fans may be at a loss to know where they are—or should be—at some time or another this season, and may find it convenient to clip the accompanying schedule from the paper for future reference.

Coach Brookfield is reluctant to predict what may be expected from his charges. He did point out that it will take a few games for the boys to show much because of inexperience.

The complete schedule is listed below with home games in bold type.

Nov. 4—Butler at Butler.

Nov. 11—Waterloo at Waterloo.

Nov. 16—Ashley at Waterloo.

Nov. 19—Wolf Lake at Albion.

Nov. 22—Leo at Leo.

Dec. 2—Garrett at Garrett.

Dec. 3—Hamilton at Waterloo.

Dec. 9—Salem Center at Butler.

Dec. 16—Woodburn at Butler.

Jan. 2—Pleasant Lake at Waterloo.

Jan. 6-7—County Tourney at Butler.

Jan. 13—Hicksville at Hicksville.

Jan. 19—Ashley at Waterloo.

Jan. 21—Fremont at Waterloo.

Jan. 27—Avilla at Avilla.

Feb. 1—Churubusco at Leo.

Feb. 10—Harlan at Waterloo.

Feb. 11—Metz at Butler.

Feb. 17—Wolcottville at Wolcottville.

Season tickets will go on sale Friday at the principal's office. There are eight home games on the 1955-1956 schedule. Adult season tickets are priced at $3.50 and student season tickets are $1.75.

Seniors Say- 'Don't Be Late'

Take one small southern town, 15 assorted and odd characters, and one sophisticated English mello-drama; mix well, and serve at the Spencerville Community Center on Friday and Saturday nights, October 21 and 22, at 8:00 p.m. CDT sharp. These are the instructions that are being followed by the Senior Class of Riverdale High School and their director, Mr. Hubert L. Stackhouse.

In three acts of farce by Tom Taggart, Mrs. Leffie Jewel Hunderstine, a small town "fountain of culture," attempts to stage her own play, shortly titled, "The Beautiful Lady From France," formerly, "The Son of Sir Roderic Wheeler, or, Who Done This?". A play about the troubles, trials and tribulations of putting on a play, this has been described by Mr. Stackhouse, its director, as hitting a lot of nails on their heads. The staging is further described as "highly unconventional," and for that reason the audience is asked to be in their seats not later than 8:00 p.m. CDT, if they do not wish to be mistaken for members of the cast.

The members of the Senior Class are now selling reserved tickets at sixty cents. Bleacher seats and a very few reserved seats will be available on nights of the performances.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

On Wednesday, October 12, the Ladies Literary Club met at the home of its president, Mrs. Weldon Shafer.

The president called the meeting to order. Mrs. Glen Cole led the collect and the pledge to the flag.

For the lesson for this Bible evening, Mrs. Frank Shull read a paper written by Mrs. Harold Baker on the Minor Prophets. Mrs. Philip Barnhart explained the Major Prophets and showed an excellent colored film strip on the life and mission of the prophet, Isaiah.

Sixteen members responded to roll call.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Carl Carpenter gave the critic's report. The meeting was adjourned and the hostess served light refreshments.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background scripture: Luke 4:1-15.

Devotional reading: Hebrews 4:12-16.

HOW TO WIN

Lesson for October 23, 1955

Nobody can be tempted to do what he can't do. Nobody can be tempted to do what he doesn't want to do. Of course somebody can say to you, "Do this," but if you can't or don't want to do it, the words are only words in your ear, they are no temptation, and you can't be said to have "resisted" what did not appeal to you at all. Furthermore, nearly always temptation means the pull of desire, not for something evil in itself but only a good out of place, or a lesser good in place of a possible greater. If a child takes the money he was going to put in Sunday school and spends it for candy on Saturday night, that does not mean that candy is bad in itself, or that eating it is a sin. But the child is tempted to a lesser good when a greater good was possible.

Questions About Temptation

The higher in the scale of life you go, the more this is true. Persons who live on a low level may easily be tempted to gross sins, because they don't have any strong desire for good, or to do good. The temptation consists in seeing the lesser good so clearly that one forgets to look around and see the greater good. Now the temptations of Jesus were of this sort. There is no evidence that he ever felt an urge or even a slight inclination to do what is wrong in itself. There is evidence that he was tempted to do some good things that were not the best things. Take Luke's story of the temptations in the wilderness. One was to turn stones into bread—surely no sin? In a hungry world, to produce more bread would be a good thing. Another temptation was to get control of the kingdoms of the world. Was that not what he came to do? Or the third temptation again—to trust in the protecting care of God; who would call that a sin Yet each of these, under the circumstances and conditions, was not the right thing for Jesus, because not the best thing; and so he knew all these for what they were—temptations of Satan. We can ask many questions about temptation: where it comes from, what kind of persons are tempted, how to recognize it, and so on. But the question most of us want to know is, How can I win?

How To Lose

There are two sure ways of losing the fight against temptation, whether in its lower or its higher forms. One is by sheer resistance, just saying No. If your temptation is liquor, for instance, it won't do you a particle of good to stand in front of a tavern door or to sit in a chair with a glass in your hand, just shutting your eyes and shaking your head and saying, "No, I won't." Because, before long, you will. Mere stubbornness will go a long way; but not even Jesus tried to meet temptation with a simple empty No. Another way to lose your fight is to debate the question. In the vivid story of the first temptation (see Genesis 3) the serpent just gets Eve's mind to thinking about how fine that fruit was.

The Sword of Spirit

Every Bible reader knows how Jesus won his victory over temptations: by using the "sword of the Spirit," the Word of God. But there is a right and a wrong way to use a sword. There are two ways of using the Bible as a defense against Satan. One of these ways works, the other does not. It will not do simply to quote the Bible. The Bible is not a sort of magic wand which you just wave in Satan's face and it will make him go away. Just repeating Bible verses is not enough. The only Scripture which is any good in temptation's struggles is Scripture which you have first "hid in your heart," that is to say committed to memory, and what is more important, Scripture which has become part of you. It is not quite enough to say, "God says —." Take the next step: "GOD SAYS—AND I BELIEVE IT." You've got to make God's word your own, not just with the top of your mind but down to the bottom of your heart. So believed, the Word becomes life invincible.

MILK PRODUCTION UP IN INDIANA

Indiana's milk production rose 8 per cent in the past ten years even though the milk cow population decreased 23 per cent during the same period, R. B. Connelly, Indiana represntative of the American Can Company, reported this week.

Improved feeding and dairying methods bringing about greater productivity per cow were advanced by Connelly as one of the major reasons for the increased output.

The 3.8 billion pounds of milk produced on Indiana farms in 1954 helped set an all-time national record of 123.5 billion pounds, said the official of the can company which annually produces hundreds of millions of paper milk containers. Indiana farmers shared in milk receipts totaling about $135 million, he added.

This national record was produced by twelve per cent fewer milk cows than were on America's farms in 1944, when the cow population was at a record total of 25.6 million cows. However, the 22.4 millino cows in 1954 produced an average of 5,512 pounds of milk each, almost a thousand pounds more than the 1944 cows.

In the parable, one said, "I have bought a piece of ground and I must needs go and see it." Another excused himself because he had bought some oxen, and was going to prove if they were good and would pull well. What a fool he was, too, buying his oxen first and then proving them, instead of proving first and buying afterwards! A third could not come because he had married a wife! But he should have come, and brought his wife along with him. Christ never said to anyone, "Go away from me." But He does say unto all, "Come unto me."

25 NEW TROOPERS FOR INDIANA TOLL ROAD

Twenty-five Indiana State Police recruits who will be assigned to patrol the new northern Indiana toll road when it is completed recently were administered their oath of office. The swearing-in ceremony was held in the Indiana Supreme Court chambers in the State House at Indianapolis.

A total of 46 troopers will eventually be assigned to toll road duty when the 156-mile road is opened. Salaries of the toll road troopers and cost of their squad cars, uniforms and other equipment plus the cost of their training will all be born by the Toll Road Commission under a contract being drawn with the state police department.

The 25 new troopers are all graduates of the eight-week state police training school at Indiana University. They will be given three months of "in-service" training which includes riding with an experienced trooper. The new troopers are assigned to patrol on northern Indiana roads overcrowded with traffic from the Ohio turnpike.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE CABLE ADDRESS—ACDCO

DEAR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Our unusual automobile plan originated five years ago when our company president, Mr. Dallas E. Winslow, adopted the plan of giving each associate of our different companies a new automobile each year. Our companies are located at Auburn, Indiana; Springfield, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan.

The automobiles that have been driven by our associates have never been traded in on the new cars we purchase. Previously we sold these cars in quantity wholesale to automobile dealers. Due to so many requests from our friends and customers to sell them cars, we decided to offer these select automobiles for sale to our many friends and neighbors.

We now have available a fine selection of low mileage 1955 FORDS and OLDSMOBILES. These cars with certain extra equipment and practically new cars can be purchased at a substantial savings. At the present time, we have a wide selection of colors and body styles.

You will be interested to know we are now in a position to accept your automobile in exchange for one of our nearly new automobiles. This policy has made available a few select used cars of various makes, such as FORDS, DODGES, CHEVROLETS, BUICKS, PLYMOUTHS, OLDSMOBILES and other makes at very attractive prices and liberal terms.

We like to think of our terms as "terms with a heart". By this, we mean any reasonable terms you desire will be considered up to 36 months to pay. Your payments may be made direct to us and you may be assured of our co-operation in case an extension of a payment is needed as we do not sell your note.

The cars are being displayed in the factory showroom here in the plant and, for your convenience, we are open evenings during the week until 9:00 P.M. We cordially invite your inspection of them without any obligation whatsoever. Our telephone number is 113.

Assuring you of our friendship and co-operation,

Sincerely,
M. J. Klinger

'56 Chevrolet sets new Pikes Peak record in top-secret test!

Not long ago a hush-hush, camouflaged '56 Chevrolet scorched the nerve-breaking road up Colorado's Pikes Peak for a new NASCAR* certified record—the first time that old King of the Mountains has seen a new official stock car record in years! And what a road! 170 chilling turns and no guardrail! It's the first and only time a new model ever proved itself such a great road car before its introduction! The '56 Chevrolet showed the kind of performance that makes driving safer and more fun. So wait for the car that beat the King of the Mountains!

In a recent talk by Henry J. Taylor he was telling of the great improvement in our country's bombers since the late war. At that time it took eleven men to operate the bombers; now it takes three even though the planes are larger and more complicated.

Electronics makes the big difference. Two astonishing statements stayed with me as I heard him. One, there are over 1,000 vacuum tubes, such as in your radio, and two, there are 27 miles of wire used in the circuits!

Our stock of small personal radios do not have nearly as many tubes nor as much wire as these bombers but they have enough to do a fine job. And the colors! The rainbow will have to get more colors to compete with them! I guess there must be a color to match every color of finger nail polish. We think our stock is the most complete in Northern Indiana. Won't you come in and see them when you need a small radio? We service them, too.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Conversation with Albert Ewell and Bob Bishop during that balmy afternoon last Sunday brought out how things happened in three's on Wednesday of last week.

Harold Noragon got out by the skin of his teeth when a tree almost fell on him as the section crew felled it. Number two—Mel Corbin's appendix took him to the hospital. Number three—Sandra Taylor fell from the slides at the Spencerville school house and broke a hip and both wrists.

Now there's a young lady who could use some cheering up, I'll bet. She's at Sacred Heart Hospital at Garrett.

That horn tooting here a couple of weeks ago was a "belling" for a couple of kids who recently got hitched. Emma and John Strombeck were seen bundled up on that chilly evening getting a ride on the back of Gaylord Rediger's truck with a half dozen cars trailing along behind with horns tootin'.

Scenes about town — the Shuff twins using the reflecting qualities of the News Office windows to see that their lipstick is on straight.

Old Nick, the familiar figure at the filling station, not getting around too well following a stroke.

The bean traffic the past week or so as the farmers harvest the crop.

CULTURE CLUB

The ladies of the Culture Club met last Wednesday, October 19, at the home of Edna Amstutz.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Virginia Laux, and all repeated the club collect and pledge to the flag. Devotions were given by Edna Jenkins.

Alice Reidenbach selected two interesting articles from the October Reader's Digest entitled "Forest Fire" and "The Wisdom of Tears." Group discussion followed.

Margaret Drerup gave the critic's report. Fourteen members responded to roll call.

Special work was presented by Edna Amstutz who brought out a work table with an array of articles for autumn corsages. After a demonstration of her handicraft, the members spent an enjoyable half hour making corsages for themselves.

A very original luncheon in keeping with the spirit of Hallowe'en was served at individual tables.

Band To Lead Hallowe'en Party Parade Monday

The Riverdale High School Band, under the direction of Miss Betty Boggs, will lead the big parade next Monday night preceding the annual St. Joe Volunteer Fire Department Hallowe'en Party.

The parade of costumed party-goers will start at 8:00 p.m. from the downtown area and will proceed to the local gym. There appointed judges will determine the winning costumes in various divisions (most original, funniest, best couple, etc.) and then a program of entertainment will be presented. Derwood Ridgway will serve as master of ceremonies.

The sponsors of the party are anxious to see more adult participation in the costume contest. During the past few years the number of oldsters in costume has reduced, and the fire department points out that the night of fun and entertainment is intended for all age groups.

"The Juvenile Troopers," a group of four to twenty-one year old entertainers, will present musical and novelty entertainment, including guitar solos, vocalists, accordian solos, novelty acrobatics, tap dancers, rhythm dancers, the Charleston, Indian dances, acrobatic dancers, waltz tap dance, hula dances, a rope dance under black light and the Bunny Hop.

The Riverdale P. T. A. will operate the lunch concession stand throughout the evening for those desiring refreshments.

Carrier Thrown From Bicycle

Marie Carol Woodring, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Woodring of Spencerville, was painfully injured Monday morning when she was thrown from her bicycle while delivering newspapers at Spencerville.

The girl was struck by a car driven by Richard Eugene Loucks of St. Joe as she entered highway 1 from a driveway of one of her newspaper customers. Loucks swerved to avoid the bicycle but the car struck the front wheel of the bicycle and tossed the Woodring girl to the pavement. The car struck and knocked over a highway sign as it swerved off the pavement.

Unconscious for a short time, the girl regained her senses before being taken to the hospital. She suffered shock, bruises and chest injuries.

Two Veterans On Comets' Starting Five

Coach Price Brookfield has the task this fall of flooring a basketball team to represent Riverdale High School with but two hold-overs from last year's starting five.

The two boys who were on the starting varsity last year are Larry Emenhsier and Dave Walters. Three others, Paul Easley, Jerry Flesher and Donnie Sechler, were on the varsity squad of last year, but saw limited service during the course of the season.

Charles Easley, a junior, is the tallest member of the team at 6'-1". Phil Carpenter and Larry Coplin tip the tape at exactly the six-foot mark.
